EARLY BRITISH SECRETS YIELD TO EXCAVATION

London, (UP)—A determined campaign to wrest from long-buried ruins the secrets of early Britain is being waged the length and the breadth of the English countryside.

The summer months are the "digging season" in the Celts, Romans and Saxons are trooping to new retreats, driven from their ancient haunts by the pick and shovel assault of the archaeologists.

"Probably never before has such interest been shown in historic and prehistoric Britain," Dr. R. E. M. Wheeler, keeper of the London museum and one of England's foremost archaeologists, told the United Press recently.

"Archaeological excavation has become one of the recognized sights of our summer countryside. During the next few months, excavators hope to throw new light on many periods of this island's existence."

The modern trend of the excavating methods, Dr. Wheeler pointed out, is indicated by the use of the airplane at the old Roman town of Caistor-by-Norwich. An aerial photograph was taken of the cornfield where the town was known to lie and the Roman streets were revealed in the picture as shaded lines in the ripening corn.

Working from the photograph, it was possible to locate the Roman temples and baths and the probable site of the forum. The Roman walls and towers also were discovered.

"Air photography may henceforth be regarded as a necessity to the field archaeologist," Dr. Wheeler said. "In the past, the ruins of this region contributed little to the archaeology of Britain and the Roman remains of the country were almost unknown. Now all that is changed; the air photograph is irresistible."

Near Dunstable in Bedfordshire, the University College Anthropological society is working on a huge mound containing alone age, bronze age and Saxon relics.

The mound was built about 1500. B. C. for the burial of a woman whose skeleton was found with a flint knife at its side. In a higher stratum were found bronze age instruments including a bronze urn containing burnt stones.

The mound was used later by the Roman conquerors for the burial of slaughtered prisoners. The skeletons of 50 men were found with indications that they had been slain with their hands fastened behind their backs.

SWEDES TO CROSS ATLANTIC, SMALL BOAT

Kristinehamn, Sweden (UP)—Crossing the Atlantic ocean from Sweden to the United States in a 24-foot boat is the hazardous undertaking planned by two young Swedes, Eolf Anderson and Bertil Sjoedahl of this city. They have built their own craft, which has been named the "Ocean Crosser," out of spruce, on oak ribs. It will carry a 20-square meters sail and an auxiliary engine of 25 HP.

The entire boat is covered with a deck, and an iron keel weighing 600 kilograms will keep it steady in storms and heavy seas. The two adventurers intend to make their way along French and Spanish coasts, and then set out across the Atlantic. They will carry provisions for two months.

ERROR IN SPECIES PROVES VERY PAINFUL

Whitehall, N. Y. (UP)—Max Gordon enjoyed sleeping in a tent until recently. The reason for his change in attitude was a porcupine which he mistook for his pet poodle. It happen thus: One night while dozing in his tent Max felt a small animal moving across his bed. Thinking it was the poodle, he aimed a vigorous kick at the intruder. He spent the rest of the night picking quills from his foot. Hereafter he will sleep indoors.

COST OF LURING AMERICANS TO GERMANY IRKS

Berlin, (UP)—Complaint has arisen that it costs too much to lure American tourists to Germany. The complainant, writing in a Berlin newspaper, believes that many German hotels, baths and resorts contribute more to the upkeep of the public utility machine and travel bureaus which they operate in the United States than they receive in return from the American tourist trade.

"The whole year around," the writer asserts, "they must pay out a considerable sum for the operation of the two German travel bureaus in New York. Then from year to year they ask themselves whether the returns are worth the outlay. Most of them must answer in the negative. A few have openly declared that they can no longer carry this item, which often runs into the thousands of marks."

"The cost of this solicitation of American tourists every year is extraordinarily high. The sum paid out for publicity alone is well over a million marks, according to the most conservative estimates, while the whole cost can not be reckoned. On this point there is anxious silence; all that can be learned is that other countries are spending several millions themselves for the same purpose."

It is no secret, the complainant continued, that these expenditures have not yet produced a steady, self-compensatory income, though "one is confident," he added, with a touch of sarcasm, that eventually this goal will be attained. On the other hand, he admitted, the stream of foreign tourists coming into Germany is swelling. Unfortunately most communities keep no check on the number of tourists they entertain so there is no way of accurately measuring this increase, although Munich, one of the few cities which has taken to counting alien heads, has reported a marked growth in the number of tourists coming from the United States.

CHINESE GIVING GROUND IN TILT OVER RAILROAD

Shanghai (UP)—Dwindling prospects of foreign mediation coupled with the loss of Russia's heavy tea purchases is reported to have prompted the Nanking government in its latest conciliatory move in the Chinese Eastern railway controversy.

The latest instructions to Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang are reported to suggest the partial restoration of the status quo on the railroad and re-instatement of the Soviet department chiefs. The instructions have not yet been made public.

Necessity of maintaining a large defense force along the Russian border further convinced the government of tremendous financial difficulties that will accompany an unyielding policy.

While the belief continues that heavy fighting is unlikely to develop Manchurian officials have made necessary preparations for defense.

El Paso (UP)—El Paso thieves are ambitious. A 300 pound safe was carried from club rooms here. It contained $200 in cash and $175 in jewels. They buried it in the sandhills near here. Passerby found it and reported to police. The robbers evidently were too tired, after their long haul to molest the safe.
