Mark McCallister, state corporation commissioner was elected second vice-president of the national security commissioners association at the annual conference in St. Paul, Minnesota last week, according to word received here by Mrs. McCallister. Mr. McCallister is president of the northwest commissioners association, having been elected to the office in June. Following the convention sessions last Thursday which were attended by the commissioners from every state in the union, the delegates and their wives were entertained by St. Paul sportsmen with a two-day fishing trip to Greavie lodge, a 150-mile drive from St. Paul. Mr. McCallister arrived in Salt Lake City Sunday night and is now in attendance at the three-day conference of the national building and loan association which opened there Monday. He is expected to return to Salem Friday evening.

Mrs. Roxanna Ferris, curator of the Dudley herbarium at Stanford university, spent Monday afternoon and most of Tuesday in the Willamette university herbarium checking some of the specimens with material she is gathering for a book on the trees and shrubs of Oregon. Mrs. Ferris is touring through the northwest with her husband, an instructor at Stanford, and their little daughter. On her arrival in Salem Mrs. Ferris called Professor Morton E. Peck, head of the botany department at Willamette and asked him for permission to visit the herbarium. Because Professor Peck is ill he asked Prof. J. C. Nelson of Salem high school, to take the California visitors to the university museum. Mrs. Ferris expressed much interest in Professor Peck's herbarium but it is exclusively Oregon including specimens of Oregon flora only. Professor Peck's card index system which provides a map of the state marked in the locations where the particular plant or flower occurs, was also lauded by Mrs. Ferris.

REGENTS FAVOR 5 NEW COURSES FOR UNIVERSITY

Portland, Ore. (AP)—Approval of five new courses at the University of Oregon and a plan to encourage gifts for an endowment fund were the highlights of a meeting of the state board of higher education here Monday.

The new courses are: democracy, public opinion, political problems, stage design and theater workshop.

Dr. Frank R. Menne was appointed to succeed Dr. R. L. Benson, resigned, as head of the department of pathology of the medical school. Resignation of Clinton Thielen, assistant professor of pharmacy at the medical school, was accepted.

The board accepted the resignation of Delbert Obersteuffer, assistant professor in the school of physical education and director of the department of men at the university. E. R. Knolin was appointed associate professor and Gordon Ridings instructor in the department.

The assistant professorship in the school of business administration from which James T. Brown resigned, will be filled by George W. Robb, formerly of Gage, Jr. & Co. Earl B. Moore, associate professor in the department, resigned. Raymond Leach and Ronald Hobbwer were appointed research assistants.

Ralph D. Casey was promoted from associate professor to professor in the school of journalism. Robert F. Jackson, Ralph Leighton and Etta Robnett were appointed research assistants and J. D. Day is an appointee teaching fellow.

Miss Claribel Nye will succeed Mrs. Jessie B. McCormack as state leader of home economics at Oregon state college, January 1, 1930.

The national bureau of statistics and locations has started work in Marion county on the making of a county directory. The entire county will be mapped on a basis of square miles and the location of every farm and farm owner will be included in the directory with a key map showing his location definitely and the road he lives on. The bureau in question is a private firm.

L. Johnson, Silvertown, failed to stop at a primary highway while driving a car last August 4. He might have been let off easy for the offense if he had appeared in justice court as he was directed by the traffic office. However, he chose to ignore the order, officers state. Tuesday he was brought into court and received a $20 fine and his driver's license suspended for a period of one year by Judge Brazier Small. A similar case was the one of E. A. Jarvill. He is a young man who says his folks live in Wenatche, Wash. Several days ago his car was stopped by officers who told him to have his lights adjusted. He, too, failed to have the matter fixed up. Brought into justice court Tuesday he was ordered to pay a $10 fine.

C. W. Baldrin, a driver for one of the through truck lines, had his license suspended for 30 days and paid a $10 fine Tuesday when he was found guilty of reckless driving. Baldrin was arrested south of town when he pulled out of line with his big truck and trailer. His act caused a second truck to upset and roll into the ditch. A traffic officer happened to be on the spot clearing up wreckage from a previous accident and placed Baldrin under arrest.

The final account of Albert Reiling, administrator of the estate of Catherine Reiling, has been set for October 1.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Stephens, teachers in the Amunville high school four years ago, were callers at the county school superintendent's office Tuesday afternoon. During the past year Mr. and Mrs. Stephens have been teaching at Ukiah, Or., in the Blue mountains, south of Pendleton. Beginning this fall they will teach in the Tygh Valley high school south of The Dalles.

Mrs. Mae Engle and Miss Mary Gibson, teachers in the Union school between Woodburn and Mt. Angel, were visitors at the office of Mrs. Mary L. Fulkerson, Marion county school superintendent Tuesday afternoon. Union school and Mill City school will open for the new year next Tuesday, September 3. They will be the first schools in the county to start the new year.

Mrs. Frances Fields, teacher in the Silver Falls school in the hills above Silvertown, was a Salem visitor Tuesday.

Rev. Walter Mollenber, a former Mt. Angel boy ordained to the Catholic priesthood and now assistant pastor of St. James church in East Portland, was a Salem visitor Tuesday.

Ed Brandenburg plead guilty to the charge of uttering a false instrument when he was brought before Judge J. H. McMahan in circuit court Tuesday afternoon. He was sentenced to two years in the state penitentiary, after he waived time of sentence, and the judge paroled him to his aunt, Maud B. Rundlett. Brandenburg was indicted by the grand jury last week.

Horse Show At State Fair Draws Entries From Best of Stables

Attention of horse fanciers all up and down the coast will be focused on the Oregon state fair, September 23 to 28, when the largest horse show ever held here, is scheduled. Returning exhibitors and new stables showing at Salem this year for the first time will bring this show up to the forefront on the coast. It is believed by those in charge.

Stakes for the numerous events, higher this year than at any time in the past, are being sponsored by horse lovers in both Oregon and Washington. It is among these are E. Stuart, Seattle; Aaron M. Frank, L. R. Banks, Roy Otis, Mathis-Otis Co., E. B. McCaughy, First National bank, John C. Alsworth, United States National bank, Lee Schlesinger, Olds, Wortman & King, all of Portland; Montgomery Ward & Co., Ladd & Bush, bankers, Salem.

Many of the Salem horse show's old standbys will return this year to perform in the tan bark arena at the spacious stadium. As well as the many first appearances, under the management of A. P. Fleming, well known in the horse show game from his work with the Pacific International, the Seattle, Palo Alto shows and many others.

Some of the finest hunters and jumpers on the coast will be here for the six night performances, and among them many who will make their first appearance at the capital city this year.

Out standing of the newcomers will be the string of Mrs. John N. Hoskins (Alma Spreckles) and brother, Adolph Spreckles, both of San Francisco, who maintain separate stables of the highest class hunters and jumpers. Kula Kula, the famous brown gelding, formerly owned by Mrs. Claud D. Starr, will be put through his performance here by Alex J. Young, Jr., of San Francisco. Other fine hunters are John E. Short, Sacramento, and Miss A. Callaghan, Van Nuys, Calif. Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Held, Portland, will return with their well known string of thoroughbred hunters and jumpers.

Horses from the stables of Aaron M. Frank, Portland, will appear at Salem again this year. Outstanding of these are Stella Vane and Buckley Vedie, one of the finest pairs of harness horses on the coast. Scott, a young stallion from England, an exceptionally fine horse, will probably be shown.

One of the largest individual stable stables in America will show here when the Carnation farm stables bring their three and five gaited horses, roasters, harness horses and ponies, and hunters. With them will be the champion harness horse, Carnation Lavendule, who with the 1928 title will appear here for the first time.

Billet Doux and Fuse, the champion pair of America will be brought here by Ben R. Meyer, of Los Angeles. Ben has other fine horses in his stables, including saddle horses, both three and five gaited, and many harness ponies.

Ador Stock Farm, Reseda, Calif., will show five gaited horses, and C. Jefferson, of Van Nuys, Calif., will show his own three and five gaited horses and the famous de Millie stable also.

From San Diego, owned by Alice and Marjorie Marston, with Roy Robinson as manager, will come an exceptionally fine bunch of horses including Patty Miller, acknowledged one of the greatest roadsters on the coast, and two outstanding five gaited horses, Carnation Rosebud and Carnation Chief. This is the first time they have included Salem on their circuit.

George Howell, Los Angeles, will return this year, showing the Fessler stables which are now under the name of Mrs. James C. Mercer (nee Fessler) and Miss Marcorie H. Hellman, daughter of Marco H. Hellman, famous horse man.

The Irving H. Hellman stables, Modesto, Calif., will make a first appearance here with three and five gaited horses. Rosewell, one of the most consistent five gaited horses on the Pacific coast and considered the champion fine harness horse, is being anticipated by horse lovers.

It is highly possible that Marjorie L. Ladewig, Los Angeles, will join the party with her three and five gaited horses. Bright Spot, five gaited, one of her best known horses, has been a consistent winner, his latest blue ribbon being from the recent Coronado horse show, in which he headed the gaited horses in the amateur class. Girl of My Dreams, another of Miss Ladewig's champions, was awarded the $2,000 stakes at Kansas City. Her horses have also received stakes at Minneapolis and Denver, as well as at numerous other shows.

Harry Goelitz, Jr., Oak Park, Ill., will return with his famous string of hackney ponies and harness horses, and Bridgetford brothers, from Joy, Ill., well known here from previous appearances, will bring harness horses, hackney ponies, Shetlands and a famous pair of roasters. Horse lovers will also welcome barn boys Ruby, Mason City, Iowa, who will show a fine string of roasters.

D. Q. Welty, Nevada, Iowa, will furnish amusement for young horse lovers with his famous string of Shetland ponies. Old friends returning to the horse show this year include Louis R. Banks, Portland; Mrs. E. C. Grelle, Portland, and Stanley G. Werahul.

An unusually fine showing of draft horses will be here for the fair exhibitors will include A. C. Ruby, Portland; D. F. Burgie, Albany; the Damascus unit of the Carnation products farm, Portland; H. W. Merritt, Rosalia, Wash.; R. G. McCroskey and Harvey White, both of Garfield, Wash.

Judge McMahan has ordered J. H. Hathaway to pay $150 to the clerk of the court for costs in the divorce suit now pending, which he has brought against Ella C. Hathaway.

COMPLAIN OF STORES ABOUT HIGH SCHOOL

It was understood Tuesday morning that a formal protest to the activities of small stores and confectioneries in the vicinity of the Salem high school building will be made before the school board Tuesday evening by several parents of high school boys.

These parents will request the board to take steps toward making it impossible for high school students to loiter around the little grocery store across North Church street during the school day. These parents feel that such a condition is an exposure of some of the conditions existing in the back room of the store. The parents claim that much of the bootleg liquor consumed by high school boys reached them through bootleggers who called at the back room during the school day. One of the parents said Tuesday morning that this particular location was equipped with a gambling table that would be credit to a professional gambling den.

The store which is the target of the parents' concern recently changed hands and while it is not known what the sentiment of the new owners would be regarding the presence of high school students during the school day, the parents are strongly opposed to taking any more chances with a repetition of the last 18 months and they will ask the school board to take action before the new school year starts.

Superintendent George W. Hug said Tuesday morning that the principal of the high school, Fred Polf, is thoroughly acquainted with the situation and that he is prepared to stop the excuse slip system which made it possible for students to be excused from their study halls for entire periods.

Superintendent Hug will make a report of his summer's work at the University of Michigan when he meets with the board Tuesday evening. Several teachers will also be recommended by Mr. Hug for election to the Salem faculty to fill existing vacancies.

PACKARD HEIR DIES IN CRASH OF AIRPLANE

Detroit (AP) — Warren Packard, heir to the Packard motor millions, was killed in an airplane crash near Greece Isle, Mich., last Monday night. Talbot Barnard, Packard salesman, who was piloting the plane, was seriously injured. They were flying Packard's private seaplane.

According to expert files who witnessed the crash, the men were flying at an altitude of about 1,000 feet when the motor apparently stalled. Barnard pulled up too steeply instead of going into the glide which the situation called for. The plane went into a tall spin from which Barnard could not right it and struck a marker in a marsh near the Detroit river.

The men were rushed to a hospital where Packard died a short time later. It was thought Barnard would recover.

Mr. Packard was 35 years old. He was married and the father of two children. Three years ago he inherited the twin fortunes of his father and uncle, founders of the Packard Motor Car company. He was a veteran of the world war and a lieutenant in the United States naval reserve.

Two years ago Mr. Packard organized the Detroit Air Yacht club for the purpose of promoting aviation.

COURT EXCUSES BANK DIRECTORS

Portland, Ore. (AP)—Directors of the defunct Condon National bank cannot be held responsible for $42,000 in loans which the receiver of the bank, H. P. Schilling, had sought to recover from them, according to a decision handed down Monday by Judge McNary.

The suit was brought against G. W. Farman, L. E. Fowler, J. W. Maidment and A. K. York on the ground that these men, as directors, were liable for loans made, credits extended because of failure to foreclose and protect the interest of the bank which closed its doors in 1927.

Judge McNary held that the notes were renewals of notes given to cover interest payments due and not new loans impairing the capital of the bank or after it had been impaired. The bank was improving its positions by renewing the notes as this prevented the statute of limitations from outlawing them.

A. J. SHERWOOD OF COQUILLE PASSES

Marshfield, Ore. (AP)—A. J. Sherwood, 70, pioneer attorney of Coos county, president of the First National bank of Coquille and one of the most prominent Democrats in this section of the state, died at his home in Coquille early Tuesday after being taken suddenly ill a few days ago.

Sherwood came to Coos county in the early eighties, and practiced law while teaching school. He came from Iowa after graduating from the University of Iowa law school.

The resolutions committee is considering another resolution seeking amendment of the retirement law, providing more liberal pensions.

Committee chairmen included J. S. Houghton, Portland, was and member; Mrs. L. G. Geer, Portland, union labels; law and legislation, C. M. Ryerson; F. J. A. Boehringer, Salem, rules or order; Auditing, N. Propo, Portland; E. J. Diack, Portland, education; Joe Reed, Portland, constitution and bylaws.

PEOPLE URGED TO LOCK CARS

Governor Patterson issued a letter to the people Monday in which he endorses and commends a special effort that is to be made during the month of September to get motor vehicle owners to lock their cars when parked. The governor mentions the contribution to lawlessness of automobiles that are taken from streets by joy-riders, as well as the more serious practice of car theft by experienced criminals.

"Every good citizen should be eager to do his part in discouraging crime and promoting law enforcement," the governor writes. "The locking of his automobile is a small precaution to ask of a law-abiding citizen, but if this precaution is consistently observed it will have important results in decreasing lawlessness."

BUILDING PERMIT FOR STATE BUILDING

Planning of the permit for the erection of the new state office building which is now under construction, upon the records of the city building inspector Monday evening swelled the total of building costs for the month of August by $500,000.

No fee was charged the state. Until this permit was issued, the records for the month were not making a very favorable showing. Other permits issued during the past 24 hours included:

- City of Salem, erect a fire station at 790 Jefferson street, $6100, Barham Bros., have the contract; Mr. Bittner, erect a dwelling at 1690 Oxford street, 1500; Rosella Crossen, repair dwelling 1530 South Commercial street, $160; H. H. Smith, build garage 639 South 13th street, $150, and Gran Watkins, repair dwelling, 607 South Liberty street, $37.

A "reasonable" amount to be paid in attorney's fees in the settlement of the estate of Dr. W. H. Byrd will be decided in a hearing in probate court August 31 at 10 o'clock, according to an order of Judge Aldermund. The executor, Clarence Macrum Byrd, has formerly renounced his right to executor's fees. He says in a declaration filed in probate court Tuesday that the heirs to the estate feel that the $2,582.35 attorney's fees which is the minimum which they could receive in accordance with a schedule of the Marion county bar association, is more than reasonable, and they ask the court to decide on a fair amount. The estate was appraised at more than $123,000.

INSURGENTS HIDE BEHIND CURTAIN

ments and again in the election authorizing bonds to finance those projects.

"Out taxes," is the war cry behind which the malcontents seek to mask the motives actually inspiring their actions in shelving the sewer construction program and curtailing the building of permanent bridges.

Yet, significantly, their proposals suggest no reduction in the city tax levy, nor do the plans of Mayor Livesley and his supporters contemplate any increase in municipal levies beyond that already authorized by vote of the people.

Personal grievances and injured pride, apparent frequently, since Mayor Livesley first started to pick his chief lieutenants from among those who fully supported and helped to execute his policies, are the actual influences behind the insurgent uprising, which has for its so far unproclaimed object the elimination of all Livesley appointees and sympathizers and the forced resignation of Mayor Livesley, himself.

Harass him as they may by their opposition, Mayor Livesley announces that he will not resign, nor will he abandon the policies upon which he is elected.

Except when talking for publication the "bolshheviks" are frank and eager to proclaim their dislike for the Capital Journal—they don't like the frankness with which the Capital Journal discusses their official actions and they resent the credit given by the paper to those who have aided Mayor Livesley in his endeavors to make a city out of Salem.

The lengths to which the conspirators will go to justify their position is evidenced in the content of the majority report of the special committee named to investigate the bridge situation, which chiefly criticizes the costs of the South Liberty and North High street projects. Carefully avoiding the fact that both the South Liberty street bridge and the North High street culvert were completed with expenditures well within the contract prices, the objectors ardently add to the projects the cost of opening those two streets to connect with the bridges to make a showing of exorbitant costs.

Publicly the "insurgents" are posing as the champions of a public voice clamoring for retrenchment—privately they are conspiring to elevate Alderman S. E. Purvine or some other of their two or three strategists to the mayoralty and fill the city offices with their friends.

Alderman Chris Kowls is reputed to be their choice for city attorney to succeed Fred A. Williams, with Chris' seat on the council slated for occupancy by a hand-picked successor equally unfriendly to the Livesley administration.

Future and existing projects endorsed by the Capital Journal, or advocated by the city officials whose actions have been supported by the Capital Journal are to meet with unrelenting opposition from the rebels, whatever may be the detriment to the public welfare.

City officials friendly to the Capital Journal have already been given to understand that continued friendly relations with the paper may cost them their jobs, as it did the bridge engineer, regardless of their efficiency.

In framing their majority report Aldermen Rosebraugh and Herick plead their inability to secure information as to costs of the different bridges, and state that "as to the costs of each bridge we are able to arrive only at approximate figures."

At the same time the Capital Journal asked for and secured from the city treasurer prior to the special meeting of the council a detailed report by individual bridges of every cent expended from the bridge fund, except that engineering and general overhead for the bridge engineer's department were grouped separately, and itemized, and the work of the engineers was spread over several bridges under way at the same time and segregation was not only impossible but useless.

Nor did the majority report reveal that Chairman Townsend, as soon as the detailed figures were available to him, called a meeting of the special committee with the bridge engineer present to explain every item and give such other information as was desired for 7 o'clock last Saturday night; that this meeting was adjourned without action after Townsend, Herick and the engineer had waited 45 minutes for Alderman Rosebraugh to appear, and after Herick had refused to proceed with the investigation or join in the formulation of a report without Rosebraugh being present.

Miss Eva Joberts, clerk in the county Assessor's office, will leave Wednesday for a stay of several days at the beach.

The county clerk has given Howard R. Roberts $5 a license to marry Louise M. French, legal age. Both gave $15 shipping street, Salem, as their address.

Vern McIlmmonds has been given a permit by the Marion county court to haul logs over the Jefferson-Buena Vista road, market road.

SHOP LIFTER PROVES TO BE EX-CONVICT

Despite his assertion that prior to his arrest here Saturday afternoon he had never been connected with crime, the records show that John A. Johnson, accused of larceny in a store as the result of shoplifting 11 neckties in the C. P. Bishop store, has been convicted of crimes running the gamut from petty larceny to violation of narcotics act, according to word received Tuesday from Portland by Chief of Police Minto.

A term in McNeil Island has been served by Johnson. This is the only time he has done time in a penitentiary, the other convictions bringing jail sentences and dismissals. All told Johnson has been in prison 22 times prior to his appearance here.

When he was given a hearing in justice court Monday, Johnson showed considerable familiarity with the workings of the law and courts. Officers at that time gave no credence to his statements of past good behavior.

GUINEAS LIBERATED IN SANTIAM REGION

Fifty-one guineas obtained from the Oregon state game farm near Pendleton were liberated from the Santiam county game warden Monday by Ben Claggett, game warden. After being taken from their containers the fowls, with much clatter, flew into the surrounding brush in a manner similar to grouse.

That the wild turkeys turned loose in the same district a month ago are going back to nature rapidly is indicated from the fact that the birds are found in pairs and small bands, Claggett states. Herebefore the entire lot remained pretty much as a unit.

Persons living in the Detroit county have taken a great deal of interest in the importation of the turkeys and guineas and are determined to protect them to the limit.

Someone shot a two point deer along the river Sunday, the game warden states and then left it where it fell.

AIR MAIL EXTENDED

Washington, (AP)— Extension of the air mail service from Pasco, Wash., to Spokane, Portland, Tacoma and Seattle, effective September 15, was announced Tuesday by W. Irving Glover, second assistant postmaster general in charge of the air mail service.

BODY FOUND

Redding, Calif. (AP)—The body of Richard Gell, 60, Eureka laborer, victim of a forest fire was found near Dordick, Trinity county. He was trapped while fighting the blaze.
