Our friend the vegetable

Good vegetables deliciously cooked promote health

A NOTED scientist is addressing the women of America. He is talking to them because they hold the health of the nation in their hands. It is the women who control our daily diet. He enumerates a number of vegetables—lettuce, spinach, asparagus, endive, cabbage, eggplant and string beans. He reminds us that these foods are rich in vitamins and minerals, and that they fill the stomach, help to satisfy the appetite and leave a residue that prevents constipation.

He points out that the vegetables may be used fresh or canned, as modern canneries provide vegetables that are palatable and rich in vitamins. Each healthy individual should eat liberally of these foods each day, and also should include in the daily diet such fruits as oranges, grapefruit, strawberries, blackberries, peaches, pineapple, or watermelon. He then suggests a dash of sugar whenever it will make fruits and vegetables more acceptable to the taste.

Don't forget vegetables and fruits in the daily diet of every member of your family, and don't forget what a little sugar will do when added to the vegetables while they are cooking in a small amount of water. Two groups of women cooking experts recently rediscovered that the use of sugar makes the vegetables fresher, improves their color and develops the delicious flavors. Everyone knows the value of sugar sprinkled over berries, fresh pineapple and other tart, fresh fruits. And the value of sugar in preparing stewed fruits for delicious desserts. For better flavor sprinkle sugar over cereal. And make plenty of egg-nogs, milk shakes and milk desserts to encourage the ingestion of milk. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.
