Old Uniforms Lost Salem Drum Corps Louisville Victory

If the drum corps of Capital post No. 9, the drill and musical organization of Salem's American Legion unit, had gone to the national convention at Louisville, Ky., with new uniforms and better equipment they would have won the national championship.

The corps returned home and showed the standing of the five leading corps as they were scored by three judges from the United States regular army.

The Salem corps, the scores show, lost 1.9 points on uniform and equipment and lost first place by only 1.2 and there was less than two points between Frankfort, Pa., the winning corps, and the Salem contingent which was accorded fifth place.

On cadence Salem's score was perfect, and on music it was 39.8 out of a possible 40. But it was the old uniforms, with boots that wrinkled at the ankles and hats that didn't fit, that put Salem in fifth place instead of first where the Salem boys otherwise would have gone.

The standing of the first five teams was as follows: Frankfort, 98.52; Fort Dodge, 98.10; Chicago, 97.55; Los Angeles, 97.45; Salem, 97.10.

The corps members from the various parts of the United States were greeted by the strict scrutiny in regard to equipment, as well as in the judging of drill, music and equipment.

The officers who were the judges, said Rudy Schultz, musical trainer of the Salem corps, "would grab a trumpet, look it over and shove it back at the musician as if it were a live rifle. One Salem man had a hat that sat loosely on top of his head. An officer grabbed it off and made a sharp remark about the fit."

Schultz was profuse in his praise of the winning Frankfort team and the other teams that scored ahead of Salem. Frankfort merited its victory, he said.

A crowd of perhaps 1800 persons greeted the Salem corps upon the arrival here at 12:40 o'clock Monday afternoon. The Salem band also was at the depot and played as the train came in and the corps left the coach. The corps was lined up by Drum Major Williamson and played for several minutes then paraded through the streets and to the Elks temple where a banquet was served. Besides leading members and officers of Capital post, Governor Patterson and Secretary of State Hal E. Ross were present at the banquet.

The boys will be free the remainder of the day, although several parties for individual members will be given.

Tuesday night at the Legion hall the drum corps members will be honored with a special entertainment and banquet. It is also installation night, the officers for the coming year being inducted into office. Frank Kelly, owner of the Capitol theater, has provided free theater tickets for the corps members, good for them and their families all of this week.

When the corps detrained here it was joined by Corporal Allan Stevens who carried a large bouquet.

County Commissioners Jim Smith and John Porter surveyed the work on the new road Monday morning.

Kansas City, Mo. (AP)—The body of Jeanne Eagels, stage and movie picture star, Monday rested in Kansas City, her old home. Funeral services for the actress who became a "trouser" of the old school at the age of five, and who later played in Kansas City stock companies, will be held here Tuesday morning.

SHOWERS FALLING IN CENTRAL OREGON

Bend, Ore. (AP)—Rains were reported from many parts of the central Oregon forest area Monday although precipitation was very light in some parts of the wood. The dry Fortrock district south of Bend received about .15 of an inch, reducing the fire hazard. At Crescent, fifty miles south of Bend, the fall was .12 of an inch.

Skies were generally overcast in this part of the state, and it was believed the storm would resolve itself into a general rain before moving east. Although no heavy precipitation had been reported Monday morning, high humidity and the light rainfall enabled Deputies forest officials to reduce the protective force. Only four lookouts remained on duty Monday and one guard in each division except the Lapsin district, where four guards are on duty. This was the first reduction in the fire fighting force here since the opening of the fire season.

In quick succession duck after duck had felt the edge of the axe. When it was all over Mrs. Lewis had $19 worth of gold and 17 dead ducks.

WEST'S SUIT FOR $20,000 FROM STATESMAN UP

Whether or not Ben West, Salem printer, is entitled to receive $20,000, or any part of $20,000, from the Statesman Publishing company for failure to keep a promise which he claims was made to him at the time of the labor union troubles on the Salem papers, more than two years ago, will be decided by three housewives, four farmers, one stockman, one contractor, two merchants, and one machinist.

This group of people made up the jury selected in circuit court Monday morning to try West's damage suit against the Statesman and J. J. Hendricks, its former editor who is still connected with the company. Walter Winslow and Willard West were handling the case for West while Hendricks was being defended by James B. Mott and James Heltsel.

The case got off to a slow start Monday after four jurors were refused. The jury now includes Ansel K. Lawrence, house wife; J. F. Molencop, contractor; L. A. Byrd, merchant; Tina Jette, housewife; Lee Hobart, farmer; C. P. Darst, farmer; Walter Beardsley, machinist; Gilbert B. Benton, hop-grower; Ira J. Pitts, merchant; Evelyn L. Travis, housewife; Chester G. Cannon, stockman; and A. L. Collins, farmer.

West claims that at the time of the strike when all of the union printers walked out, Hendricks approached him with the offer of steady and continued employment as foreman in the Statesman Publishing company shop, if he would give up his union affiliations. West says that in spite of this promise, he was later discharged.

The West-Statesman case opened the October term of circuit court which has a full docket up to the 25th of the month. Although only one day was allowed for the first case on the docket, court attaches thought Monday noon that the case would run well into the second day.

Waterville, Me. (AP)—The largest single gift ever received by Colby college was announced Monday by President Franklin W. Johnson. It is a bequest from Frank A. Champlin, who died recently in Los Angeles, of $500,000, to be part of the permanent endowment funds of the college and to be known as the "James Tift Champlin and Mary A. Champlin gift."

REPAIRS TO TIE-UP BUENA VISTA FERRY

The Buena Vista ferry will be tied up for several days while repairs are being made to cable blocks and cogs, said the county court Monday afternoon. Although the present ferry, operated by a gas engine, was built only three years ago, the cables have already worn out some of the blocks.

County Commissioners Jim Smith and John Porter visited the ferry Monday morning to see what repairs are necessary. The parts were brought in to Salem for repair. While the repairs are being made the shafts will be enlarged.

The Buena Vista ferry is a free ferry operated jointly by Marion and Polk counties. A ferry has been operated at this location approximately 15 miles up the river from Salem, for more than 50 years as Buena Vista was one of the oldest towns in the valley.

England's new airship, the largest in the world, will cruise over London in July.

FLIERS SEEKING LOST EXPLORER NOT HEARD FROM

Winnipeg, Man. (AP)—Five additional fliers were missing Monday at the conclusion of one month's search for Colonel C. D. H. McAlpine and his party of seven explorers.

C. H. Dickens, one of the most successful pilots of the north, left Fort Resolution on the south shore of Great Slave lake Wednesday and headed for Fort Reliance on McLeod bay. He intended to set out on an extended reconnaissance flight from that point and if possible penetrate to Bathurst where supplies have been cached. Not a word has come out of the barren lands to tell of his fate.

Pilots Andy Crulchank and H. Hollock Kenyon, carrying two mechanics took off from Stony Rapids for Baker Lake Thursday. They have not been heard from.

Due to the fact that all pilots engaged in the search for McAlpine have been given strict instructions by Dominion explorers officials to take no chances and to report daily, anxiety was felt for their safety.

To make matters worse, a change of weather was forecast for Monday. Rain or snow and much colder with a low ceiling and high winds was the prediction. This convinced headquarters officials that all planes must be equipped with skills before further search for McAlpine's two planes can be undertaken above the Arctic circle.
