

GIRL SWOONS UNDER PROBE AT GRAVE SIDE

New Orleans (AP)—Before an open grave on the shores of the Mississippi, lone Ord, sophisticated city girl, gasped, swooned and finally admitted Thursday that a bullet torn body was that of Jack Kraft, New York newspaperman and adventurer, with whom she had started out to see the world.

A small tattoo of an Indian head on the forearm furnished the identification along with a scar on a knee, which George Kraft, older brother of Jack, who had come from New York, said established the identity beyond any doubt.

The girl swooned a half dozen times and attempted to fight her way free once.

The scene was on the banks of the Mississippi 55 miles below New Orleans and one mile below the spot where her traveling companion's body went hurtling from the Creole, New York-New Orleans boat.

Revived by the sprinkling of river water on her head she was subjected to questioning as natives, peeping from the underbrush chattered in queer old French.

She said neither she nor Sam Epstein, ship steward, had shot Kraft, but would not swear that John McGouldrick, second officer, had not shot him. She declared she did not know who had shot him.

She said both McGouldrick and Epstein had come to her assistance when Kraft was beating and choking her in a jealous rage. She declared she had seen Kraft leap overboard. She could not explain the coroner's verdict that Kraft was dead before he hit the water.

The girl was held over the rough prairie to a negro tenant's cottage, where she was given coffee.

Suddenly and silently a detective laid a bedroom slipper on her lap. With a shriek she hurled the slipper across the room, jumped up and fought the doors and walls in an effort to escape.

It was a slipper worn by Jack Kraft and washed ashore with his body.

Then the investigators drove back to New Orleans stating they were convinced the girl knows more than she has told about the tragedy.

The case will be laid before the grand jury Saturday.

SECOND TRIPLET SONS IS INJURED

Silverton—Earl Hay, one of two living triplet sons of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hay of the Creaser addition was brought down from Camp 5 at noon Thursday, on a stretcher, by Bert Meyers and taken to the local hospital.

He was hurt when a bridge he was working on collapsed. How badly he was hurt has not as yet been ascertained.

One of his triplet brothers was instantly killed in one of these camps a few years ago when 19 years of age. There are also two sets of twins in the family. The triplets were named Earl, Merle and Verle.

SEMINARIANS TAKE ACTION UPON COURT

L-O-Y-A-L-T-Y

If you work for a man in Heaven's name, work for him. If he pays you wages that supply your bread and butter, speak well of him, stand by him and stand by the institution he represents . . . If put to a pinch, an ounce of loyalty is worth a pound of cleverness. If you must vilify, condemn and eternally disparage, why, resign your position, and when you are outside, damn to your heart's content. But as long as you are a part of the institution, do not condemn it. If you do you are loosening the tendrils that hold you to the institution, and the first high wind that comes along you will be uprooted and blown away, and probably you will never know why.—ELBERT HUBBARD.

Prices Not For Sale!

WHO would think of going into a store and asking . . . what have you in prices today?

Yet some stores seem to have nothing but prices for sale!

Most emphatically, we are not among those who affect to disdain the matter of price. We are as much interested in helping you keep down your living costs as we are in helping you keep up your living standards. But we keep price in its place!

Price is to be measured only by its associations. There's all the difference in the world between a low price and a lone price. No price is satisfactory unless you are satisfied with what you get for it.

There is a level below which worthy merchandise cannot be bought and sold. Beware the danger line!

Prices are not for sale at this store. But you can always take low price for granted—just as you take quality and style for granted.
