MacDowell Concert Enjoyed

Presenting William Wright, saxophone, and Byron Arnold, cornet, in a program of vocal and instrumental numbers, the Salem MacDowell club auspiciously opened the eleventh year of their activities Monday night in the studio of Professor and Mrs. T. S. Roberts. And if all the programs which are presented by the local musical organization this winter are as enjoyable and thoroughly worth-while as the opening concert Monday night, the Salem MacDowell club will have the outstanding season of their entire career.

Both young artists were of more than usual interest locally, as Mr. Wright is tenor at the First Presbyterian church of Salem, and before Mr. Arnold was connected with the music department at the Oregon Agricultural college, he was a member of the music department at Willamette university. Their popularity with the audience which crowded the Roberts' studio, for their artistry merited the ovations that recalled their time and time again.

Mr. Arnold opened the concert with a group of three numbers from composers of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. Mozart's "Rondeau for Pipe Organ" was particularly delightful. The organist, although he obviously would have used more combinations of stops if he had been accustomed to the Guenther organ in the studio. The second group of organ numbers, from contemporary American composers, displayed the young organist's versatility. The whimsical "L'Organo Primitivo" (Yon) was one of the most unusual numbers ever given in a concert number. The pedal work in the final number, Gullman's "Marche Funebre et Chant Seraphique" was most effective and done with fine coordination of the hands. For an encore, Mr. Arnold played a negro spiritual, "Deep River," by Burleigh.

Although giving a heavy program of twelve solos, including dramatic as well as lyric numbers, Mr. Wright's voice was as refreshing and smooth as the tone of the concert as in the first number. His total quality is delightful, and his diction is unusually clear. The aria from Don Giovanni (Mozart), which closed his first group, showed fine control and technique as well as emotional rendition.

While all the songs were selected with a sense of balance and contrast, the two numbers which were outstanding were "The Old Refrain," (Kreiser) with its lyric melody, and Protheroe's "The Pilot" which is intensely dramatic. Mr. Wright sang Sullivan's "If Flowers Could Speak," as an encore. His accompaniments were played by Prof. Paul Petri of Corvallis, with whom Mr. Wright is studying.

Miss Frances Virginia Melton, president of the Salem MacDowell club, introduced the young artists. After relating the ideals of the organization, which are to encourage and foster youthful and local talent, and to support it by presenting before the public the club's proteges, she announced the program of concerts for the coming season.

An informal reception for associate members, honoring Mr. Wright and Mr. Arnold, followed the program.

Zena Pioneer Has Birthday

Zena—Mrs. Alice Judson was happily surprised Sunday afternoon when a large number of relatives came to wish her many happy returns of the day, the occasion being her 74th birthday. An immense birthday cake bearing 74 cream colored candles was served in honor of the event, punch and coffee being served with it. She received a number of nice gifts.

For 55 years Mrs. Judson has lived at the east end of Judson street in South Salem, her parents being early pioneers of Oregon. Pictures were taken during the afternoon among them being a group of four generations made up of Mrs. Alice Judson and her son, George, and his son, Robert, and his son Robert. NOISY YOUTHS ARE TAKEN IN CUSTODY

West Salem—West Salem officers found it necessary to arrest five youths on Halloween for general obnoxious behavior. At least part, perhaps all of them, were under the influence of liquor.

They were permitted to stay at their homes during the night but required to meet Justice Cook Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the city hall. All but the ring-leader were set free after receiving a severe reprimand from the judge.

FAREWELL DINNER FOR MRS. GIDDENS

West Salem—Mrs. Homer Barber was hostess at her home, 1516 Sixth street, at a joint birthday dinner party honoring her daughter, Mrs. Ralph Sebern, and her friend, Mrs. J. K. Giddens, whose anniversaries occur on the same date.

The gathering was also in the nature of a farewell for Mrs. Giddens, who was preparing to go to California. Dinner was served at the noon hour, when covers were laid for Mrs. J. K. Giddens, Mrs. Ralph Sebern, Mrs. F. A. Miles, Miss Willa Sampson, Miss Juanita Sebern and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Barber. A fine birthday cake, made by Mrs. Miles, centered the dining table. Mrs. Miles is a daughter of Mrs. Giddens.

Mrs. Giddens started Monday morning for Modesto, Calif., accompanied by F. A. Miles, who is motoring here as far as Medford, where he had business matters to attend to, if circumstances permit he will take her all the way to Modesto. Mrs. Giddens is going to the home of her son, K. W. Giddens and family, for an all-winter's stay.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any drugstore, get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.
