SPANISH WAR VETS RECALL OLD VOYAGES

Woodburn—The burning of the ancient steamship "City of Sydney" by junkies on the San Francisco waterfront a few days ago brings to the minds of many people in this vicinity that day in May, 1898 when Company M of the Second Oregon volunteers embarked at San Francisco in this self-same old ship for the perilous voyage of many weeks across the Pacific ocean. The vessel had been used as a cattle freighter and the hardships experienced by the troops in their long confinement in such a boat may be imagined. No word from home was received in those days before the invention of wireless communication, nor was any news received in Oregon of the fate of the vessel until the following August when word arrived at Woodburn that the ship had finally reached the home folks. A look backward at the conditions then, as compared with those of today will give a vivid realization of just how far the world has moved in the last twenty-five years.
