

FINAL STATE TOURNEY TEAMS KNOWN SATURDAY

FEW DISTRICTS REMAIN WHERE TITLE UNKNOWN

With the deadline for team qualification in the state basketball tournament rapidly approaching, and with a few districts entering the final stages of their elimination series, Saturday night will see the last of the 12 districts chosen for the classic which is scheduled to begin under the auspices of Willamette university next Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. After that hour, games will come thick and fast during the remainder of Wednesday and through Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Some 20 contests will be staged during the four days, 11 in the championship flight and 9 in the consolation.

Many of the winners in their respective districts have been selected. District 1 is still in the throes of a tournament, with Baker favored to take the series. Pendleton has been crowned champion in District 2, while Redmond and The Dalles will fight it out Saturday night for honors in District 3.

Ashland defeated Phoenix to win in District 4. The winner in District 5 will be decided Saturday night in the finals of a tournament being held on Coos Bay. Roseburg and North Bend are favorites down there. Eugene won the flag in District 6 when it defeated Newport recently, while Dallas clinched District 7 Friday night by defeating Columbia.

Tillamook is favorite in District 8. The Astoria fishermen will again represent District 9, having defeated Rainier Friday night in the deciding game.

The two Portland teams will be Commerce and Lincoln, while Salem will make up the 12th quint.

The first game will be played Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 with Eugene and either The Dalles or Redmond participating. The second contest of the afternoon will find Pendleton and Dallas battling it out.

The initial contest Wednesday night will see the Portland teams fighting for a chance to continue in the running, while the winners from District 5 and 8 will play the second evening game.

The first game Thursday morning at 10:30 will find Astoria meeting Ashland, while Salem will get its baptism of fire Thursday afternoon, taking the winner of District 1, which likely will be Baker.

While the seat sale for the classic has been slower than at a corresponding period last year, it is believed that with the deciding district games out of the way, demand for "ring side" places will be considerably enhanced.

Dallas To Play For District 7

POLK COUNTY TEAM DEFEATS COLUMBIA HI

Dallas high school basketball squad Friday night on Willamette floor defeated the Columbia university prep 25 to 18 and won the right to represent district 7 in the interscholastic tournament which starts next Wednesday. Dallas will take the floor Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock for its first endeavor in the state classic, with the Pendleton Buckaroos as opponents.

Outside of the first quarter, which ended in a 3 to 3 tie, and for a short time near the close of the contest when they started the "keep away" process, Dallas players had the upper hand. Both sides played a tight defensive game with the Polk county leads out-maneuvering the Portlanders repeatedly to let Vaughn and Uglov through for shots at the basket.

Columbia checked in its effort to break through Dallas' defense, resorted to long range work which proved far from successful, for many of their shots missed the backboard entirely. Stone and Shea for Columbia were the only players on that team to score baskets during the first half, and they were limited to one each. The half found Dallas leading 11 to 7.

The Dallas defense continued to function during the third period with the Cliffdwellers scoring but once during the eight minutes, while Coach Wright's men added nine points to their total.

When about half of the final period had been played, Dallas resorted to stalling. The long lead they had piled up saved the game for them for Columbia, becoming desperate went after their opponents with a vengeance and repeatedly took the ball on out of bounds plays or through interception, with Warren, Stone and Dwyer putting the ball through the hoop for two points each.

The score, however, in the opinion of the majority of fans, represents the approximate strength of the two teams. From the financial standpoint the outcome of the district scrap should be satisfactory to the state board, for Dallas apparently has a red-hot bunch of followers who will likely flock to the state tournament.

Summary: Columbia—

Warren, f	1	3	3
Stone, f	2	1	1
Shea, c	2	0	1
Casey, g	0	0	3
Edwards, s	0	0	0
Totals	7	4	8

Dallas—

Vaughn, f	3	2	2
Quiring, f	1	0	1
Webb, c	2	0	0
Griffin, g	0	0	0
Uglov, g	4	3	3
Totals	10	5	6

JUNIOR BALL PLAY TO GET STARTED SOON

Preliminary play in the American Legion junior baseball struggle for supremacy in Marion county will begin just as soon as possible, Cliff Parker, in charge of the Salem district stated Saturday in issuing his call for players to come in and sign up for workouts which will lead up to the formation of regular teams.

No boy will be permanently placed on a team at this time, Parker states, a weeding out process having been decided on for the present in order that a lot of surplus material will not have to be contended with. Present plans call for four teams in Salem. These squads, under the direction of Luke Gill, Ivan White and Frank Brown and possibly one other man, will play a series of games leading up to the city championship. With this tournament out of the way, work of picking an all-Salem team will be started, with the best boys from each team being considered.

It is the hope of Parker to create considerably more interest in the junior game this year than was exhibited last season. He believes there is a wealth of material here and that a winning aggregation can be turned out.

Boys desiring a chance for district, state and possibly national honors should see Parker at the Brown sporting goods store next week.

The amateur wrestling tournament which will be held at the Salem Y. M. C. A., Friday night, April 4, will be held under intercollegiate rules, it was announced Friday. It is expected this change from the A. A. U. rules will tend to make the matches much speedier, since they will more nearly resemble professional contests. Under the intercollegiate rules four holds are barred—hammer lock, toe hold, astrangle and full neck.

The change in rules has necessitates a shift in weights. The new weights will be 115 pounds, 125, 135, 145, 155, 175 and heavyweights, with a variation of three pounds over allowed.

Cohen had been a strong favorite to defeat the Oregon fighter, but with the exception of the first two rounds failed to live up to expectations.

Marcus was floored for a short count in the second round when Cohen connected with a hard right. Cohen had taken the first round by scoring repeatedly with long lefts to the head.

The third, fourth and fifth rounds were even, but from then on Marcus had things his own way. The Portland boy, had he been a stiffer puncher, would have floored Cohen for the full count.
