Arrangements are being made again this year for the annual showing of Mrs. Lester Pearline's narcissus blooms at the United States National bank with the show set for next Saturday. Mrs. Pearline not only raises large quantities of narcissus blooms on a commercial scale among the more ordinary varieties but she has annually imported large numbers of the newer and high priced varieties to grow on in small sorts for future stock. As a result she is able to make a wonderful showing of the new varieties which makes her display exceedingly interesting to the lovers of these early spring flowers. It is likely she will have an excellent display of many varieties this year not seen here before and as work of hybridizing the narcissus is constantly being carried on many are looking forward to the display with interest.

Filtration Plant Site Formerly Mill Pond Later on Filled Up

"Along in 1888 when I was driving a delivery wagon there was a mill pond at the spot where the Oregon-Washington Water company is excavating for their new filtration plant," stated John Farrar, postmaster, Friday who was thrown into a reminiscence mood by the progress being made in that part of the city.

"The rock and earth the big power shovel is removing from that place has all been hauled in there since the time when I as a boy of 15, in common with others, drove my horse and rig into the pond to wash the mud from the horse's belly as well as from the vehicle. We always did this in the evening after the day's work. Then we would drive the animals to their stables."

"This pond was formed from the backwater from a dam lower down the stream, while water from the mill race was poured into it, to be taken out at the downstream edge by a flume and used to operate the old flour mill. A covered wooden bridge crossed the stream where the modern concrete structure now stands."

"The old frame building which stood in the depression along Trade street and was used for a tool house by the water company for many years and which was recently torn down, was located where the Commercial book store is housed now," the postmaster continued. "My mother had a millinery establishment in the structure, while the family has lived in the rear and upstairs of the building."

During the course of the postmaster's conversation, he revealed the fact that as a youth he helped in moving many of the old time structures in Salem. Old Lausanne hall, which was torn down a number of years ago to give way to the modern structure, was moved from a corner at Capitol and Court, Farrar assisting in the operation. He also helped in moving the original Brennan house which stood on the corner of Court and Church, to its present location at Chemeketa and Church and now occupied by the Fred Delano family. The Boise dwelling which replaced the Brennan house, will in a few days be moved to a location on North Summer street while a filling station will take its place.

SALEM MOVIES DRAW CROWDS

"Standing room only," was the greeting ushers at the Bligh Capitol theater used Friday night as Salem turned out to see itself in the movies and shortly after 7 o'clock found people waiting for the second evening performance.

Pictures at the Bligh Capitol were offered by William Carde, Spokane cameraman, as well as the screen tests taken on the stage Wednesday and Thursday. The presentation was enhanced by Leo Carde, radio baritone, who in addition to singing over the theater microphone, commented upon the "home talent" as familiar faces appeared on the screen. Young Carde displayed his versatility while here, appearing in solo numbers, directing screen tests and his announcements.

The pictures are being shown for the last times Saturday.

STORM BRINGS RAIN TO GOLDEN STATE

San Francisco (AP)—A storm centering about 100 miles southwest of San Francisco brought rain to nearly all parts of California Friday, and snow to the Sierra Nevada mountains.

The United States weather bureau predicted Friday night, however, that the disturbance will lose force rapidly within the next 24 hours, and California will experience clearing weather over the week-end.

DEACON ADAMS NOT AUTHOR OF TARIFF ATTACK

Washington (AP)—The senate was held Saturday by Senator Allen, republican, Kansas, that the Charles Francis Adams who wrote the letter in 1906 characterizing tariff advocates as "thieves" and "hogs" was the former president of the Union Pacific railroad and not the present secretary of the navy.

The Charles Francis Adams letter was published recently in the New York World and was placed in the Congressional Record by Senator Connally, democrat, Texas, who attributed it to the secretary of the navy.

"I discovered," said Allen, "that the Charles Francis Adams who wrote this letter is a former president of the Union Pacific railroad. I discovered that the author is not the secretary of the navy but that he is in the grave where he has been for 15 years."

The Kansas said he was surprised when the letter was first published to find that "a man appointed by the president to his cabinet chose to put us in the lower class of animal life and called us hogs and thieves. Friendly to the administration as I am," he added, "I had a feeling that the president should have known his Adamses better."

He then related that his research showed that John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States and the great grandfather of the present secretary of the navy, was the "first protective tariff leader," the forebearer of Reed, Smoot and Grundy.

NEW TAX ACTS HELD AS VALID

By sustaining denunciations of the defendants and signing orders of dismissal Judge J. H. McMahon of the circuit court Friday upheld as constitutional the new state intangible tax law, the American Automobile association for the advancement of athelism, Joseph Lewis, president of the free-thinkers of America, and William Z. Foster, national secretary of the trade union unity league.

The motion states that the state police harass and threaten to arrest all drivers of trucks coming under the law and that Hoss has ordered arrests of all such drivers, who have not complied with the law regardless of pendency of a suit in the circuit court here attacking the validity of the new license law. Under the law trucks of a weight of 4500 pounds or over are charged 100 per cent of the regular annual license fee and trucks of less than 4500 pounds 50 per cent of the regular fee.

The suit attacking the validity of this law and basis for the present motion for a restraining order was filed here several weeks ago.

TRUCK OWNERS SUE TO RESTRAIN HOSS

The Portland Van & Storage company in circuit court here Saturday afternoon filed a motion for a temporary restraining order against Secretary of State Hal E. Hoss to prevent him or his agents and the state traffic police from attempting to collect certain license fees on trucks imposed by the last legislature.

The motion states that the state police harass and threaten to arrest all drivers of trucks coming under the law and that Hoss has ordered arrests of all such drivers, who have not complied with the law regardless of pendency of a suit in the circuit court here attacking the validity of the new license law. Under the law trucks of a weight of 4500 pounds or over are charged 100 per cent of the regular annual license fee and trucks of less than 4500 pounds 50 per cent of the regular fee.

FLAMES DESTROY DALLAS RESIDENCE

Dallas—Fire destroyed the house occupied by the N. E. Hartman family about 10 o'clock Saturday morning. Mrs. Hartman who was alone at the time, had started a fire in a stove in the front room and went to the rear of the house to wash her dishes and in a few minutes the blaze was under way. Hartman was working at the mill at the time. Very little property was saved and the loss is estimated at about $3000, partially covered by insurance.

The house was owned by Mrs. I. E. Titherrow, elderly widow living in Portland, and is located on the side of a hill. Several nearby dwellings were threatened as the blaze was fanned by a strong breeze.

PRISON TERMS FOR TOO MANY WIVES

Grand Rapids, Mich. (AP)—William D. Cates and his son, Richard, who between them married 10 women, were sentenced in federal court Saturday for violating the Mann act.

The elder Cates, who married seven women, drew a sentence of seven years in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kans. The son, who was accused of three marriages, was sentenced to three years in the federal reformatory at Chillicothe, Ohio.

The father and son were alleged to have married the women for their money and deserted them when it was gone.

POLICEMAN SHOT BY BANDITS NEAR DEATH

San Francisco, (AP)—While police corporal Eugene Egan waged a battle with death on his hospital cot here Saturday, with a bullet wound just below his heart, police continued to search for the two bandits, who shot him after holding up and robbing a branch of the Bank of Italy of $3700 last Friday.

Egan, a veteran of 23 years with the police department, was shot down when he confronted the bandits as they were leaving the bank. They fired five times at him, one bullet entering his left breast, just below the heart. As he fell Egan drew his revolver and from his position on the sidewalk fired three times as the robbers jumped into an automobile. One of the bullets was believed to have found a mark in a bandit.

BROWN SUED FOR $41,594

What is possibly the largest and if not one of the largest amounts ever asked in the local courts for damages based on injuries arising out of a motor vehicle accident was filed in circuit court Saturday afternoon against Ken Brown, well known sporting goods store man. Action was brought by Delmer Hansen, minor, by Betty Hanson and damages sought aggregate $41,594.

The complaint avers that the accident on which the suit is based occurred August 21 last year at Liberty and Mission streets and that due to alleged reckless driving on the plaintiff's part his automobile struck a motorcycle ridden by young Hansen and that the motorcycle was thrown approximately 65 feet. The complaint asks for $40,000 in general damages, $194 for loss of wages, $400 for damages to motorcycle and $1000 for hospital and similar services.

The complaint says the defendant suffered fractures of the skull in several places, that his forehead has been impaired and he has been permanently injured and suffers headaches which it alleges will be a permanent condition due to the accident.

GRAND JURY PROBE OF PROHIBITION UNIT

Seattle (AP)—The Seattle Times Saturday said that orders from Washington, D. C., were being awaited here to start a federal grand jury probe into the report and evidence submitted by department of justice agents who recently completed an investigation of the prohibition enforcement unit of the Pacific northwest.

The report of the investigation, started several months ago, has been completed and was filed two weeks ago with the chief of the bureau of investigation at Washington. Officials of that department are making a careful study of the findings prior to submitting them to the office of the attorney general for action, the Times said.

The investigators, many of them under-cover agents sent here from other sections of the nation, delved into the activities of the prohibition unit until Roy C. Lyle, administrator, and William M. Whitney, legal adviser.

TWISTER HITS NEAR LOS ANGELES

noon, Hawthorne is a suburb west of Los Angeles.

The twister originated in Lawrence adjoining Hawthorne and swept through the residential district, also down a part of the business street wrecking considerable damage. A number of garages were blown over and many small frame dwellings damaged.

The fire and police departments responded immediately, patrolling the district of the twister and prevented fires. Telephone and power lines were torn down in the path of the freak wind. The path of the damage appeared to be more than a mile long.

FORMER WOODBURN RESIDENT PASSES

Woodburn—Olin W. Love, 40, former Woodburn resident, died in a Portland hospital Friday evening, following an operation. He had been in poor health for several years. Funeral services will probably be held from the Methodist church here Monday afternoon.

Love is survived by his widow, Mabel Goulet Love, who he married here about 20 years ago; a daughter, Alvie; two brothers, one sister and his mother, all in California.

The family lived here for many years, going away and returning again. They had not lived here for the last few years.

SALEM VICTOR DRAMA TOURNEY AT CORVALLIS

Salem high school won the Willamette valley high school drama tournament at Corvallis Friday night by the unanimous decision of the five judges. The unanimous decision is regarded by local people as the highest compliment which could be paid the local high school dramatic activities. A silver cup was awarded the local champions, to become the permanent possession of the first high school winning it three times. Salem, Albany, Eugene and Corvallis high schools were entrants in the tournament Friday night.

Salem high school's presentation was the one-act play, "The Last of the Lowries" by Paul Green, a play based on a historical incident which occurred during the Civil war. The play was coached by Miss Margaret Burrough, characters were taken by Yvonne Smith, Fern Shelton, Ruth Howe and Alex Volkoh.

Judges at the tournament Friday night were Miss Elizabeth Barnes of the drama department at Oregon Agricultural college; Mrs. Otillie Seybold of the drama department at the University of Oregon; Mr. Munroe of the English department of Albany college; Dr. Robert M. Oakley of Willamette university, and President Landers of the Oregon normal school at Morvouth.

Salem high school plans to enter the winning play in the state high school drama tournament to be held later in the spring at Eugene.
