Life Was a Misery

"Before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was weak and run-down, could not sleep and had troubles which come at my age (forty-three). Life was a misery. Nothing did me any good until I tried the Vegetable Compound. I am on my third bottle and I cannot recommend it too highly. I feel like a new person and I really think I would have been dead if I had not taken it. I think every lady ought to take it at the change."—Mrs. Eunice M. Worthy, Route 4, Spartanburg, South Carolina.

Your City's Water Supply is nothing to juggle with

The efficient operation of a water plant in a city like Salem isn't a one-man job. It isn't a five-man job. It's a job that calls for constant co-operation on the part of a small army of highly trained and long experienced experts in finance, engineering and management.

The system by which a series of smaller companies work under one management enables smaller cities to get the same type of service that formerly only larger cities were able to have.

It has brought about better financing, skilled engineering and well seasoned management.

It has NOT brought and cannot bring ABSENTEE LANDLORDISM for the reason that the service companies, necessarily, are localized.

It means a management operating under the best conditions to hold down costs and increase efficiency so that high grade service may be effected as economically as possible. Equal benefits accrue to the company through increased business and increased good will on the part of customers.

This is not altruism. It is our obligation to act and it is GOOD BUSINESS.

The "five water commissioners" provided by the amendment to direct the affairs of the water system would have to be five supermen possessed of unbounded leisure, because if they handled their job as it should be handled, they'd have to devote every moment of their time to the countless problems which day by day would beset them.

The amount of energy those five men would have to display is almost unthinkable; but if possessed of all that energy, willingness and leisure, they'd still lack the fundamental water-works training and experience. Their toil would be in vain.

Your city's water supply is nothing to juggle with.

If you think you'd like to try out a political scheme like municipal ownership... for heaven's sake don't begin on the city's water supply.
