LOW SEEK TO ENFORCE WEED CUTTING LAW

Walter S. Low, city street commissioner, is playing no favorites in a resolution that will go before the city council Monday night declaring as nuisances the vacant lots of several hundred citizens of Salem. Included in the list, it is said, are properties owned by some of the most prominent business and professional men of the city.

The street commissioner is proceeding under an ordinance passed at the last meeting of the city council. This makes the offense of allowing weeds and grass to grow without restraint a misdemeanor punishable by fine or imprisonment or both.

Though not mentioned in the ordinance it is understood that the declaring as a nuisance any lot that has become an entanglement of weeds and grass is based on three things. These are the fire hazard, the fact that weed seeds blow upon and befour neighboring property, and the unsightly appearance it gives the residential districts of the city.

The Monday night session of the council promises to be barren of matters of great importance with the exception of the weed resolution and the Trade street vacation matter. It is understood a protest against the vacation of Trade will be presented in behalf of a number of citizens who think it is better for the welfare of the city to keep the street open rather than allow the Oregon Pulp & Paper company to use it as a location for an addition to the paper mill.

Alderman S. A. Hughes, chairman of the street committee, will recommend that the city advertise again for bids on a melting pot for the street department. This will be based on the fact that only one bid was received at the last meeting and that bids had not been advertised for prior to the meeting.

KAY EXPECTS EAST OREGON TO BACK HIM

dleton recently when nine of the committee members from counties east of the mountains met and signed an agreement to not become individually pledged to any candidate prior to the Portland meeting. Reports current in Portland say that 14 Eastern Oregon committeemen have not signed this round-robin agreement.

There is nothing in the agreement indicating favor for any one candidate, or that its signers are binding themselves to vote as a unit. But the very existance of the agreement has given rise to reports that the members from the eastern part of the state are going to vote as a bloc in an effort to force the nomination of a candidate from their section. Signers of the agreement, however, have insisted that they are not pledged to any such sectionalism, and that they will individually support any candidate possessed of the qualifications for a governor of the whole state.

It is strongly indicated and not denied that they are going to insist upon a square deal for Eastern Oregon and its interests from both the state committee and the candidate it nominates.

"Without exception," Kay said after his talk with these committeemen, "these men said they were not going to be governed by the unit rule, and that the agreement did not so bind them.

"I was well received everywhere and the trip was very satisfactory. Many expressed surprise at my good health, having gotten the impression that I was an invalid."

Commitment of the nominee and the state party organization to an unequivocal declaration for development of the Umatilla rapids project and similar enterprises in which they are vitally interested, assurance that the counties east of the Cascades are to receive their share of the political plums disbursed and the possibility of securing representation on the board of control if a new state treasurer is to be appointed, are some of the things in which the Eastern Oregon delegates are known to be interested.

The formal bid of the ex-service men of the state, as represented by the Republican Service league, for recognition by the state party organization, and the announcement of Julius Meier of Portland of the platform upon which he asks the republican nomination at the hands of the state committee are other outstanding developments over the week-end in the mid-summer political rumpus.

Meier's "statement of principles" embraces an "unqualified subscription to each and every plank" in the platform of the George Joseph, with whom Meier was intimately associated in business, politics and personal friendship over a period of 30 years.

"I was in full accord with Senator Joseph's political principles * * * and gave him my whole-hearted support," said Meier's statement, addressed to T. C. Elliott, Umatilla county central committeeman.

Meier also pledged himself "as governor to do everything within my power" to protect the state's lumber industry from foreign competition, stated his approval of the legislative program of the state grange including the initiated water power development district measure, protection of fish and game through an administration free of politics; support of a program to aid in solving the unemployment problem through development of new opportunities; equalization and reduction of the tax burden and economy "coupled with application of business principles in administration of state affairs;" fostering of public school system and higher education; continuation of highway department; impartial law enforcement and appointment to office "only of such men as respect the law and are qualified in all respects to execute the law."

The formal bid of the ex-service men for political recognition, rumored and expected for the past several weeks, took the form of a petition to the state central committee signed by about 150 members of the Republican Service league from 21 counties of the state asking consideration of any "world war veteran of high standing and ability" whose name might be suggested in the deliberations of the committee over a candidate for governor.

The petition does not mention any particular candidate as being a possible candidate, nor does the letter signed by Harry N. Nelson, secretary of the league, which accompanied the petition, among the signers of which are Douglas McKay, Perry Quisenberry, R. H. Bassett, Paul F. Burris and Dr. W. Carlton Smith for the Salem veterans.

The letter transmitting the petition calls the central committee's attention to the representative nature of the league over the state, and stresses the fact that the democratic party in Oregon has seen fit in the primary election to nominate an ex-service man for governor, Senator E. P. Bailey.

Generally the petition is not considered as a serious bid for the nomination of a service man for governer, inasmuch as the league offers no suggestions as to whom of their comrades might be considered available and none have been suggested from other quarters, but rather more as a maneuver to place the veterans in a position for consideration in the election of a chairman of the state committee and to give them a place in the sunlight if Tom Kay should be gubernatorial nominee and the selection of a new state treasurer left to the committee.

Since before the death of the late George Griffith, former state commander of the American Legion and then deputy state treasurer, the service men have had a covetous eye upon the state treasurership.

HEAT RECORDS FOR 25 YEARS BROKEN

District of Columbia. If readings of 98 were included, it would add the states of Pennsylvania, Texas, Tennessee, and Oklahoma.

Deaths were reported from widely separated sections. There were many drownings, as the nation's swimming pools and beaches swarmed with holiday millions. Prostrations, too, were numerous.

The northwest, which has had its fill of hot weather this season, gained relief Sunday when severe wind and rain storms swept sections of that country. The fortunate few in Michigan's upper peninsula, sandwiched between Lakes Superior and Michigan, enjoyed temperatures in the upper sixties.

The heat wave will be broken late Monday or Monday night in a large part of the north central states, the Chicago forecaster prophecied. Prediction for Kansas, Nebraska, the Dakotas, Wisconsin and Illinois carried such encouraging phrases as "somewhat cooler," and "seasonable temperatures." The break in heat had penetrated into western Iowa Sunday night.

The double damage of heat and drought was noted in many grain states. In Iowa, particularly, the fired corn threatened serious loss to farmers unless benevolent rains fell soon. An unofficial observer in Iowa reported finding top soil in corn fields at a temperature of 144 degrees.

The Iowa corn loss, some
