OIL BLAMED BY TURKS FOR KURD REVOLT

Angora, Turkey (AP)—Priceless black oil seeping from the sandy Mosul frontier region was blamed Wednesday for the merciless warfare of Kurdish tribes against the Turks—a struggle that rapidly approached its climax Wednesday.

The conflict, which has brought strained relations between Turkey and Persia as well as reports of foreign financing of the Kurds, centered on Mount Arat, where Turkish troops were attempting to strike a final blow at the rebel tribesmen. Despite the refusal of Persia to cooperate in suppressing the Kurds, the Turkish troops were circling Mount Arat and crossing Persian soil. The Turkish foreign office has indicated it considers Persia has given passive assistance to the rebels by its refusal to grant formal permission for Turkish troops to cross her border.

Repeated reports here have indicated that oil discovered on the Mosul frontier last year has been responsible for the revolt and that the money of a European power has been spent to establish a new republic in the Near East.

The Turkish foreign office has started an investigation of the reports and promised to provide documentary evidence of the complicity of at least one European power in the conflict.

TRIO RETURN FROM COURSES AT BERKELEY

Dr. Estella Ford Warner, head of the former Marion county child health department, returned to Salem late Tuesday night in company with Miss Beatrice Walton, former secretary to Governor Paterson and Mrs. Mabel Robert, who had spent the summer at a school in Berkeley, California, at the close of the University of California summer session Saturday morning. They shared an apartment at Berkeley while attending the session. Dr. Warner took special work in public health and sociology, bringing back three A's. Miss Walton took an intensive course in child health. Mrs. Robert studied special work in psychology and education.

Dr. Warner is leaving Thursday morning for a week in southern Oregon with Miss Mildred Carlton. She will return to Salem the following Thursday and leave the next day for New York city to stay a month at the headquarters of the Commonwealth fund, founded by Mrs. Robert, in former demonstration here. In September, Dr. Warner will return to Portland with Dr. French and Miss Kraker of the Commonwealth foundation when those officials come west to confer with the state board of health in regard to subsidizing a health campaign in Oregon. Dr. Warner has been mentioned prominently as the founding representative in Oregon if the health campaign goes through, but she says that she has no plans farther ahead than September. Her mother, Mrs. Estella Ford, and grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Green, will remain here probably until the first of the year.

Miss Walton's plans are yet indefinite, but she will stay in Salem with her mother, Mrs. James Walton, for a while. Miss Robertson will resume her work as dean of girls at the high school with the opening of the school term September 22.

Reports that Irl McSherry, private secretary to Governor Norblad, is slated to succeed T. A. Raftety as chief of the state fiscal division through appointment by Hal Hoss, secretary of state, were denied Wednesday by Hoss and Governor Norblad stated that he knew nothing of any such contemplated action.

"There is absolutely nothing to it," Hoss said relative to the report. McSherry was out of the city, bound for Baker where he will represent Governor Norblad at the state convention of the American Legion convening Thursday.

LEGION ENVOYS AND DRUM CORPS OFF FOR BAKER

Traveling in special cars and accompanied by the drum corps, which will once again compete for state honors, delegates of Capital post No. 8, American Legion, will be in the Trade street siding of the Southern Pacific at 6:45 Wednesday evening for the annual state convention opening at Baker Thursday.

Because Salem post was the host at last year's convention here the local drum corps has not competed in the drill contest since 1929. Practice for this year's competition was concluded Tuesday evening with a dress rehearsal, parade through the downtown streets and an appearance at the regular Tuesday evening band concert in Willson park.

Delegated to the convention from the Salem post are Commander O. E. Palmateer, Douglas McKay, Carl Gabrielson, Brazer Small, H. C. Mason, Ray Abet, Ray Bassett, L. A. Hamilton, Vic McKenzie, William Elven and Mort Pilkington. Alternates designated to accompany them are Herman Brown, Newell Williams, C. K. Logan, Lloyd Ripston, Irl McSherry, Jack Burris, L. P. Campbell, Jack Jager, Reynolds Ohmart, Oliver Huston and Bud Welch.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING BRIEF

In a quiet session of the school board Tuesday night, the resignation of Anna Irons, elected to teach in the grade schools this fall, was accepted, and an order for the purchase of $134.94 worth of phonograph records for the music department was approved. Installation of the heating system for clothes at the Parish gymnasium and extension of electric wiring at Grant school were delayed pending the receipt of more bids.

A discussion of the status of Hollis Huntington, high school coach, had no results. A report was made that the building committee was remodeling the Salem Iron Works at a figure of $495 on radiators, $134 to $184 for pattern for castings, and about $33 for each casting.

Seek Referendum in November to Repeal City Milk Ordinance

The people of Salem will be given an opportunity to vote on the repeal of the city milk ordinance this fall if the city council fails to effect an ordinance to that end sponsored by Alderman H. H. Vandevort, it was understood Monday by sources identified with the repeal movement Wednesday.

Efforts made by a group of milk producers meeting in the chamber of commerce Tuesday evening and by Dr. Vernon A. Douglas, city and county health officer, who held a conference with Vandevort Wednesday morning, to induce the alderman to abandon his fight upon the milk act are understood to have been without results, although Vandevort could not be reached for a statement following his conference with Dr. Douglas.

Meanwhile friends of the repeal movement were challenging the spontaneity of the petition started by the milk producers Tuesday evening by requesting the council to defeat the repeal ordinance, charging that the Tuesday night meeting was packed with those who favor the monopolistic provisions of the existing milk regulations and that its actions reflect only the sentiments of those who have a pecuniary interest in legislation shutting out the small producer who may desire to keep and market the milk from one or two cows.

Attendance at Tuesday night's meeting of the producers, it is charged was limited to those who received personal invitations to attend, no public notice of the meeting was given and in arranging for the use of the chamber of commerce rooms for the meeting the request was made that no announcement of the meeting be given to the newspapers.

No explanation for the secrecy surrounding the meeting has been given by anyone connected with the producers association.

Vandevort was present at Tuesday night's meeting, but there was a conspicuous absence of producers who are not members of the association and the reception of his talk in defense of his repeal ordinance was cold. Practically all of the producers and distributors present responded with a favorable response to the call of Chairman R. W. Clark for a showing of those who favored the existing ordinance.

The principal grounds stated for the support of the producers and distributors was that the $20,000 or more they have spent to install the special equipment for handling milk in accordance with the terms of the ordinance would be wasted if the regulations were abolished and they were required to face the competition of producers who had not invested in the special equipment.

So far Vandevort has made no move to modify his repeal proposal by offering a substitute measure to satisfy those who insist that the city's milk supply must be protected by some sanitary regulations. Vandevort is taking the position that he is not necessarily opposed to all such regulation, but objects to the imposition of equipment requirements which prevent free and equal competition by whoever may wish to offer milk on the Salem market so long as it meets bacterial tests.

Other opponents of the existing ordinance contended that the efforts of the health officials should be directed toward requiring the maintenance of sanitary standards in whatever equipment is used rather than arbitrarily seeking to impose unwarranted and prohibitive expense upon producers operating on a small scale.

Following his conference with Vandevort, Dr. Douglas said that the alderman was confusing the health and economic aspects of the milk ordinance, declaring that the economic feature existed prior to the enactment of the ordinance and equal competition by whoever may wish to offer milk on the Salem market so long as it meets bacterial tests.

"We are absolutely not favoring the big fellows in the advertisement and checking up of the ordinance requirements through this office. As a matter of fact, we have had more trouble with the big fellows than with the little fellows, or small producers, in enforcing the ordinance. The big fellows have had to change their equipment too, and oftentimes it is relatively more expensive for them to install the new or added equipment in their pasteurizing plants than it is for the small producer to bring his plant up to date.

"As to accusations against J. E. Blinckhorn, city milk inspector, the chief troubles seem to be that Blinckhorn is a married man, and as a married man has to have a father-in-law," the health officer stated. "But when the facts are known, Blinckhorn's father-in-law, who lives near Hubbard, is not regarded as a large producer, and furthermore he sells the most of his milk to the Portland distributors, so that his plant is checked under the Portland ordinance which has more stringent requirements than the Salem ordinance. So any accusations of favoritism are baseless. Blinckhorn is in my opinion, one of the most valuable and conscientious employees the city has.

"As a matter of fact, the ordinance is of great benefit to production.

A marriage license was issued Wednesday to Clarence D. Brownley, 23, of LaComb, Ore., and Mabel C. Thompson, 21, Oregon City.

Henry T. McCall has been discharged as executor of the estate of Sarah J. Swanson in an order issued by the county court.

BOOP-A-BOOP GIRL IS NOT TO TOUCH MONEY

New York (AP)—Helen Kane, a boop-a-boop girl, is restrained under a supreme court order from touching $40,000 in her account in the Plaza Trust company.

The order was issued at the instance of counsel for the creditors of the Bond Dress company, in bankruptcy proceedings, who charged the Murray J. Posner, a partner in the firm, gave the money to Miss Kane out of funds which rightfully belonged to the creditors.

A process server, armed with a subpoena, left for Chicago, where she is appearing on the stage. The subpoena directs her to appear in court here to testify to the circumstances under which she received the $40,000 from Posner.

Boop-a-boop—Helen Kane, who is boop-a-boop-ing in a loop theater, denied charges by creditors of the bankrupt Bond Dress company, in New York, that Murray J. Posner, a partner in the dress firm, had given her $40,000.

The creditors obtained an injunction in the New York state supreme court restraining Miss Kane from touching her account in a New York bank. They charged Posner gave Miss Kane the money out of funds which belonged to creditors.

"Mr. Posner is a friend of mine," said Miss Kane, "but I never heard of his money business. Maybe I've been more dooped against than dooping."

BAN ON HAZING IN PORTLAND SCHOOLS

Portland (AP)—Orders to discontinue the old practice of "running the gauntlet" in the public schools have been issued by Charles A. Rice, city superintendent of schools. The superintendent's orders followed a recent complaint by K. G. Lundstrom that his son, Vincent, suffered a fractured arm when forced to "run the gauntlet" at Benson Polytechnic school. He asserted that he was struck with books and sticks as he raced between two lines of students.
