FLIER DELIVERS TREATY SAFELY TO STEAMSHIP

New York, (AP)—The official text of Japan's ratification of the London naval treaty was here Friday, brought across the continent by air courier on its way from Tokyo to London. Lieutenant Irving A. Woodring landed at Mitchell Field Thursday night, ending the last stage of a dash from Victoria, B. C., with the document which was brought from Japan on a fast steamship. Pierre De Baal, assistant chief of the division of western European affairs of the state department, will board the Letician with it Saturday to deliver it to Ambassador Matsudaira in London. The ratification is being rushed to get it to London before the opening of the session of the League of Nations disarmament commission at Geneva. The effort to hurry transmission of the document by airplane cost the life of Lieutenant William V. Caldwell, 37 years old, who was killed Wednesday when his escort plane crashed near Lookout, Wyo., during a blizzard. His body was found Friday.

KLAMATH OPINION TO COME DOWN LATER

Attorney General Van Winkle does not expect to hand down an opinion for a week or more on the state reclamation commission's inquiry whether it has legal authority to grant a permit to the California-Oregon Power company to appropriate water power on Klamath river. At the hearing on the question a week ago L. A. Liljeqvist, attorney representing the attorney general, declared the terms of a legislative act in 1905 by which the waters of the Upper Klamath Lake and tributaries were ceded to the federal government removed this authority from the state.

CITIES' LEAGUE MEETS FRIDAY

The sanitary condition of the Willamette river as it effects the cities located along its banks, will be discussed when representatives of the municipalities of the state meet here next Friday for the annual convention of the League of Oregon Cities. A program outlining the city's activities has been received by Mark Foulson, city recorder. Governor A. W. Norblad is scheduled to extend an official welcome to the members of the league when they convene at 9:30 o'clock in the house of representatives. Mayor T. A. Lively will respond.

ORGANIZE FOR CANALIZATION OF WILLAMETTE

Albany (AP)—A movement "to bring the ocean to the Willamette valley" received new impetus here Thursday night at a meeting of the Willamette Valley Waterway association, at which Frank Jenkins, editor of the Eugene Register, was elected president. Elbert Bede, editor of the Cottage Grove Sentinel, was elected vice president, and J. Francis, city manager of Oregon City, secretary. Canalization of the Willamette is not an attempt to combat railroads, Jenkins declared in outlining the plan. He stressed the need of more railroads and said "our surveys of potential freight that would arrive from opening of the river has convinced us that for every three cars river navigation would induce, at least two additional railroads would be produced for the railroads." Four major factors would be involved in canalization, speakers said. There would be the improved waterway factor, the flood control feature, the power development angle and irrigation possibilities. Directors of the association will be elected at a meeting next month.

ANNIVERSARY AT JASON LEE

Twenty years of service will be observed at the Jason Lee Memorial service at the Y. M. C. A. program Sunday. Rev. Thomas Acheson, who was pastor of Jason Lee church for 10 years and now is at the Episcopal Methodist church at Tacoma, will preach the anniversary sermon at the 11 o'clock service Sunday morning. The title of the sermon is "Tomorrow's Challenge, the Church's Response." The evening service at 7:30 o'clock will be devoted to the memory of Jason Lee, pioneer Oregon missionary for whom the church is named. Dr. William Wallace Youngson, president of the Oregon Methodist Historical society will speak on pioneers of yesterday and today. From 3 to 3 o'clock in the afternoon a reception for members and friends of the church to greet the former pastor of Jason Lee church and their wives who are honored guests of the occasion, will be held at the parsonage, 890 Jefferson street. Among those who have served the Jason Lee church as ministers, and who are expected to be present, are J. H. Irvine, retired and living in Portland; F. L. Perry, retired, a member of the church; Thomas Acheson, W. E. Ingalls, retired and living in Salem; and Harry E. Gardner, pastor of the Laurelwood M. E. church, Portland. The first pastor, W. C. Stewart, is deceased. J. M. Brown, now retired, lives in California.

NUT PLANT TO START WORK

The plant of the Salem Nut Growers Cooperative is in readiness for starting next week to handle the year's walnut crop as it is expected to begin to come in at that time. The plant has been grading filberts for some time and shipping them as fast as graded and in shape. The filbert crop is considerably larger than last year, has all been sold it is understood, and at prices a little better than the state, although the association has not yet released its prices. Quality of the filberts is very good. The walnut crop, which the association expects to handle, will show a tonnage about the same as last year, according to present estimates. The season of producing nuts this year is quite a bit larger than last year. Walnuts are still drying but it is believed the first of the week will see deliveries under way. The Salem plant has complete modern equipment for handling walnuts and turning out a pack equal to any in California or elsewhere. Fred Ewing continues as plant manager for the association here.

ATHLETIC BOARD MEETS IN PORTLAND

The state high school athletic board of control, with John L. Gary, executive secretary of West Linn in charge, will meet in Portland Saturday evening for discussion of matters pertaining to athletic sports throughout the state. Gary stated Thursday afternoon when he was in Salem, that one of the important matters to be brought before the board would be the appointment of ten committees to take charge of as many districts, in connection with the state basketball tournament to be held next March. Plans for a baseball championship series, similar to the basketball championships will probably come up for discussion, it was said. Athletic authorities are the University of Oregon and Oregon State college who are in favor of such a tournament. The play would alternate between the two institutions, year and year. Members of the board, other than Gary include Austin Landreth, president, Pendleton; and Paul T. Jackson, vice-president, Klamath Falls.

Fall Flower Show Opens With Exhibits From Many Sections

An interesting array of autumnal flowers is displayed at the Valley Motor company showrooms where the fall flower show sponsored by the Salem Garden club opened Friday afternoon. While not ranking with the spring show wealth of display or number of entries and varieties, officials of the flower contest were "glowed" with the response. More than 50 exhibitors showed flowers. Mrs. E. T. Barkus, 890 Saguinaw, received a number of high prizes in the dahlias division, winning first on her best of three different varieties, and on her cactus blooms, tying for first with C. F. Davis of 1910 North Summer on the best vase of three dahlias of one color and variety and winning third prize on her basket of mixed dahlias. In the first class, dahlias of three different varieties, Alga, Somer, 1940 South Liberty, won second and F. A. Doerfler third. Matthes which were not entered for a prize. The group of flowers and shrubs displayed but not entered in competition was unusually interesting, with some rare varieties displayed. A collection of shrubs from the gardens of Mrs. Sally Bush and Mrs. Edith Schryver Lord and Miss Edith Schryver Lord were rare arbutus or red chokeberry, a pale pink Chinese willow, many types of viburnum, a basket of Ilex Vericillata or black alder, a Hawthorne, crataegus cordata commonly called Washington thorn with an extremely large berry, many varieties of cotoneaster and many other shrubs. NEW AUTO TRUCK FREIGHT SERVICE

A new freight transportation service between Portland, Salem, Albany, Corvallis and Eugene, including pick-up and delivery at store doors in each city, will become effective October 27, according to tariffs filed with the public service commission Friday by the Northwest Freight Transport company, a new organization. F. E. Purbes, 271 Stark street, Portland, is manager. For pick-up and delivery the company operates under contract with transfer companies in each city, and the transportation between cities will be under contract with some existing transportation agency. It is understood the move is to combat motor truck competition, and that rates will be about on a level with existing truck line class rates.

The request was part of the prohibition enforcement war against the $1,000,000 a month liquor traffic between the once-popular islands and the United States.

HEALTH UNIT'S BUDGET CALLS FOR $42,750

A budget of $42,750 for the year 1931 was approved by members of the county health unit committee at a meeting Thursday night in the county health office on High street. The proposed budget includes the expenditure of a $6,500 subsidy from the Commonwealth Fund of New York City, offered by that body if the present staff at the health unit is kept up to the number used this year. The 1930 budget for health work was $42,885. This sum, however, includes a $12,000 subsidy from the Commonwealth Fund; so that minus the subsidies, the budget this year was $30,885 compared to a $38,250 budget planned for 1931. A reduction has been made in the salary item on the budget, due to the fact that a part-time employee of a full-time dentist will be employed by the health unit. Principal increases are made in the laboratory and transportation items, it is said. The itemized budget was not available for publication. Where the money is coming from is another proposition, according to Dr. Vernon A. Douglas, county health officer. Part of the budget is subscribed by the Marion county school district, and communities throughout the county that receive health service. School boards in rural districts, communities councils, chambers of commerce and American Legion units will all be approached for contributions to the budget which makes possible a health service that is second to none in Oregon.
