lins dinner and that found in the slain girl and her father was identical.

Repeated questioning of the stepmother resulted in her constant denials of any part in the death of the girl. At times the corridors at police headquarters resounded with her screamed assertions of innocense as the latest grilling continued into the early hours Tuesday.

Earlier in the night, detectives questioned Douglas Millican, 8, son of Mrs. O'Loughlin by a former marriage, regarding activities in the O'Loughlin home, particularly last Tuesday night, the night before Leona disappeared.

The boy, the slain girl, Mr. and Mrs. O'Loughlin, Mrs. Marybelle Shannon, a sister of Mrs. O'Loughlin and Frank O'Loughlin, brother of the detective, all were present at the Fort Collins dinner party.

and outstretched neck running along.

The advantages claimed for the design are (1) that it is impossible to nose over when landing because the front wheel beneath the forward atabilizer is well in front of the center of gravity. (2) That is proof against tail spins and (3) that its brakes can be applied after landing with the same abruptness as on an automobile, thus making landings on smaller fields possible.

WOODS TO HEAD U. S. RELIEF BOARD

proximately 3,500,000 but Mr. Hoover does not believe this figure represents the actual burden upon the country.

The United States, it was contended, has a normal unemployed total of approximately 1,000,000, consisting mostly of those who are not without some income. The census also shows an average of one and three-quarters breadwinners per family so that the total families without any source of income is placed by the government below the actual unemployed total.

The government has extended virtually all of its appropriations for public works, amounting to approximately $55,000,000, and is planning to ask congress to permit greatly increased expenditures so as to give increased employment.

Woods, who also organized, after the war, a committee for placing veterans in jobs, is expected to come to the capital immediately to undertake development of the relief program. He is to work with the committee of six cabinet members and Governor Meyer of the federal reserve board.

WOMEN INJURED IN CRASH AT JEFFERSON

Jefferson — Mrs. Ed Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Jarman, of Salem, and Mrs. George Looney of Jefferson, were both bruised and slightly cut by glass when the automobile in which they were riding was overturned in a ditch about five miles north of Jefferson Monday evening after it had been struck by another machine driven by Leo Nebergall, of Albany. He took the injured women to Salem. Dannie Reynolds, young son of Mrs. Reynolds, was not injured. The machine was badly damaged.

Mulkey Urges Grave Of Senator Baker Be Moved Here, Marked

A plea that the grave of Edward Dickinson Baker, United States senator from Oregon who was killed at Ball's Bluff early in the Civil war, be moved from a neglected spot in San Francisco to the state capital grounds in Salem, was made by B. F. Mulkey of Portland in an address Monday night before the Oregon chapter of Sons of the American Revolution.

Baker was described by the speaker as "orator, statesman, poet and soldier."

"This country now, as never before," Mulkey said, "is in need of such men as Baker at Washington; men who do not cower and crawl. He stood four-square to every wind that blows. There are not many Bakers and Nesmiths at Washington now—a few perhaps."

Baker's career was traced from his days as a youthful associate of Abraham Lincoln and Jonathan Trumbull in Illinois, including the story of tragic frontier politics in California and his call to Oregon to stump the state for Lincoln. The speaker quoted James G. Blaine as having said that Baker "gained the greatest prestige in the shortest time of all men who ever sat in congress." He was declared to have been the ablest orator on the Pacific coast, and several historic occasions when his oratory was brought into play were mentioned.

Baker's grave in Lone Mountain cemetery, San Francisco, Mr. Mulkey described as overgrown with weeds and almost unmarked.

A resolution prepared by Mulkey 17 years ago and introduced by the late John Westerlund, providing that a commission be named to investigate into the possibility of removing the grave to Oregon, still lies dormant in the state archives, the speaker said.

After a dinner at the Argo restaurant a state meeting of the S. A. R. was held in the hall of representatives Monday night. Chief Justice Coshow of the supreme court called the meeting to order and introduced Judge H. M. Tomlinson of Portland, state president, who spoke briefly of the objects of the society. Prof. H. L. Griffin of Reed college spoke briefly and Harry H. Haynes of Portland talked on the battle of Yorktown, where Cornwallis surrendered to Washington. The Yale Review motion pictures of the Yorktown were later shown.

PETTY THIEVERY WAVE AT CREST

and on cash boxes when they can be reached.

"The boys seem to gang up, three or four in a gang, and generally in the earlier part of the evening start out to find what they can lay their hands on.

"While we are having an extra large amount of trouble with boys this fall, the trouble with girls seems to have dwindled down and we are having less than usual.

"I can't say exactly what causes this sudden boy gang wave this fall. But one thing, I should say, was that parents do not watch their boys closely enough to see what they are doing. They say they are going out to visit at some other home and do not go but spend their time on the streets. Also there are a number of instances where parents have thought their boys in school when it developed they were not attending at all.

"I also want to say that merchants who cash checks for boys without knowing exactly what they are doing, are apt to be encouraging them in getting hold of money in a way they shouldn't. Junk dealers also should either desist or be forced to desist from buying articles from young boys. If the boys find they can dispose of their loot to a junk dealer it encourages them to gang up and engage in petty larceny.

"A great many of the boys brought in are good boys at heart. They simply get out with a gang and join in with its depredations."

POWER BILL OFFERS WILDCATTER CHANCE

sional promoters, bond underwriters and brokers, for engineers, lawyers, contractors and the like.

To the owners, bondholders and other creditors of defunct irrigation districts and small private power and water systems just now desperately fighting to stave off bankruptcy, the prospects of transforming certain losses into alluring profits through the organizations of power districts cannot be other than attractive.

The combined possibilities of the power district proposal account in a measure, perhaps, for the galaxy of professional politicians, public ownership experts and engineers and attorneys, contract manipulators and legislative lobbyists who have rallied to the standard of the Independent candidate and are chanting the praises of the power bill.

As Oregon's experience with irrigation and other special improvement projects has demonstrated, the organization of "districts" provides jobs for political pursuaders, juicy fees for legal experts, richly remunerative employment for designing engineers, wide margins for bond underwriters, profitable contracts for contractors and, with the projects completed, comfortable executive berths for the "faithful."

The coincidence of Meier's sponsorship of the power district scheme does not end with converts to the idea of public ownership he has assembled in his campaign organization, but becomes the more revealing as the diversity of interests of his closest political and business allies are disclosed.

For the published statement that Herbert Fleishhacker, principal owner of the Portland Telegram, campaign mouthpiece of the Independent candidate, is vitally interested, as a holder of large blocks of bonds of Oregon irrigation districts, in enactment of the grange power district amendment the Capital Journal has been charged by the Telegram with wilful and malicious lying to mislead its readers.

Under the provisions of the power district act any irrigation district in the state might be incorporated into a power district by the simple expedient of arranging for the power district to take up the outstanding obligations of the irrigation district at par.

The history of just one Oregon irrigation district serves to illustrate pot only the possibilities for wiping out some of the irrigation district losses through operation of the power district scheme but casts some light why Mr. Fleishhacker, his newspaper and its candidate for governor may be so interested in having the power bill approved. The third article of this series, of which this is the second, will discuss the history of some of Oregon's bankrupt irrigation projects, the interest of Julius Meier's chief backer in them and the promises of recuperated losses which the power district bill holds out to holders of irrigation bonds.

CRIME BOARD TO FAVOR MODIFICATION

tions. The prohibition issue will be met frankly if not sensationally, it is said, and in a way which may not meet the approval of those who have been championing the dry act.

Modification proposals may be entertained, but repeal suggestions will not be mentioned, according to these sources. The commission has been working on the assumption its chief duty was to find out what is wrong if anything, with the law as well as enforcement.

The matter of prohibition has been thoroughly threshed out among the commissioners and has caused at least one member to offer his resignation—Federal Judge William S. Kenyon of Iowa, an outspoken dry. His retirement offer is now reported to be in the hands of Chairman Wickersham. Previously, two other commissioners are reported to have been dissatisfied—Dean Roscoe Pound of the Harvard law school and Kenneth MacIntosh, Washington state supreme court justice. However, the retirement of neither is indicated.

Kenyon is understood to have agreed to withhold action for the time being. The resignation has not yet reached Mr. Hoover's desk and the White House has declined to discuss it.

LIVESLEY VETO UP OCTOBER 30

an entirely new water system. The council wasn't in a mood to act on the report and it too was deferred to the date of the adjourned meeting.

Mayor Livesley's veto of the First Evangelical church building ordinance, on grounds that it violated the zoning ordinance and that the bill had been passed without a recommendation from the zoning commission, was sustained by the council. The zoning act provides that buildings in a district such as that where the church site is located, Marion and Summer streets, shall be 10 feet from the adjacent property line. As the bill was passed it permitted only a four-foot distance.

It was ordered that insurance covering the municipal airport be reduced from $10,000 to $5000, the policies to be distributed among local insurance agencies. The council approved the construction of a machinery shed at the airport to cost about $225.

Two warrants, one for $2000 and one for $3000, were ordered drawn in favor of Baar & Cunningham for their inventory and appraisement of the water system. Since these cannot be paid until the legality of the water bond issue is established by the pending suit of W. H. Henderson against the city the warrants will draw interest until paid.

BOARD IS SCOTCH

Donald—The board of school directors held a meeting at the home of the clerk, Mrs. Mae St. Helen. Several improvements in the school building were discussed. The board decided to place doors in the hall at the head of the stairs to help conserve the heat. This work will be done at once.
