BUTTER PRICES YET UNCHANGED DECLINE IS DUE

Portland (AP)—There was again a lack of change in the price of butter on the produce exchange notwithstanding that everyone in the trade realizes the weakness and general depression in the local situation.

Stocks of butter and accumulating slowly at practically all local points. This is working a hardship on the country creamery which is not a spectacular in cold storage stuff. Speculative interests with storage stocks to move are much more interested in getting rid of the latter than in aiding the fresh butter situation. These appear in control of price fixing machinery on the produce exchange.

Generally steady trade is indicated on th esurface of the egg market. Whole cold storage stock is being pushed, demand for fresh goods is inclined to show seasonable gain.

New low prices established by buyers of live chickens Monday, were continued during the day. Receipts are decreasing inasmuch as the country believes that offers are too low.

With prices practically unchanged and with most of the shops closed for the holiday; market for country killed meats was generally quiet for the day. Lambs continue in best call.

There is a somewhat better supply of silverside salmon arriving here. Sales are being made around 14 cents. There is scarcely enough Chinook to quote.

Extreme scarcity of halibut continues generally along the north Pacific coast. Trade is not receiving sufficient halibut at the moment to establish prices which are expected to rule around 25 cents pound within the next day or so.

While most of the houses were open Tuesday, practically all of them closed around 10 a. m. There was scarcely sufficient trading to open at all. Price changes were practically absent for the day.

Market for potatoes is extremely weak at the moment. The huge total crop estimated by the government gave a further depressing influence to the trade. Primary sales are reported as very small.

There is an entire lack of demand for carlots of onions at primary points. This feeling is shared in all markets of the Pacific northwest. Consumption is limited with the biggest crop in sight.

A firing squad with the sounding of taps featured the final ceremonies at the courthouse with Major General George A. White the principal speaker.

Armistice day opened Monday night with a frolic at the armory in the attraction "Behind the Front." This was kept open all day Tuesday and Tuesday night.

The football games between Salem and Eugene high schools and Willamette university and Linfield were the features of the afternoon with all theaters opening throughout the day, stressing pictures that are reminiscent in some respect of the day.

The formal closing of the celebration will be the big dance at the Crystal Gardens in the evening, with both old and modern dances featured. "Behind the Front" is expected to attract hundreds to the armory as there is also a free dance offered in its connection.

BUSINESS GAIN CAME IN WAKE OF ADVERTISING

Los Angeles (AP)—A report on current trade conditions by Marc N. Goodnow, Journalism field representative of the University of California, just made public, reveals that advice of business statisticians to business houses to increase their advertising appropriations already had been reflected in retail lines in California.

"Perhaps the most important things that face the independent retailer today," Goodnow's report said, "are competition from chain stores and the necessity of getting a message consistently before a larger body of people. Not only are the chains growing in number of outlets, but a number of them are increasing their advertising appropriations.

"One of the largest mail order chains (Sears-Roebuck & Co.) will spend this year $4,250,000 for advertising in 544 newspapers, an increase of 25 per cent over 1929. This appropriation is about 1 per cent of gross sales. Other houses have maintained their customary appropriation of 1 per cent of gross sales for advertising purposes and are conducting aggressive newspaper advertising campaigns.

"Even in many instances where chain volumes have not equaled those of last year, the advertising appropriations have not been materially changed," Goodnow's report said. "In general, the independent merchant whose volume has decreased has neglected to maintain sufficient advertising space. Undoubtedly, this policy of the independent has been responsible for a part of the increase in chain volumes.

"The fact that the national chain stores recognize the value of local newspaper advertising should mean much to the independent merchant. With the same medium of advertising at his command, he has a different message to publicize—one that is local and personal in nature. With merchandise that meets the quality test, together with all the service features which he may offer, the independent merchant is by no means limited in his advertising or his merchandising by any form of competition."

LARGEST POULTRY FARM IS LAUNCHED

Portland, (AP) — Representing an ultimate investment of about $250,000, G. W. Weatherly, Portland capitalist, has started construction of what eventually will be the largest poultry farm in Oregon at Springdale, on the Columbia highway.

He plans to run about 100,000 chickens, both egg-laying and meat stock. He will raise about 15,000 or 20,000 pheasants to satisfy a national market and thousands of trout in pools that will be fed by a small stream that runs through a 100 acre wooded tract.

A crew of 20 men is working on construction of large poultry houses of the most modern type. The first unit will be 300 feet long and will be ready within a month.

REPORT HOP SALES AT THIRTEEN CENTS

Portland (AP)—Market for Oregon hops continues to show improved trade activity and price advancement with sales of several lots in the Aurora and Independence districts reported on a 13 cent basis, a definite half cent advance over the week-end. Options have been taken at the same price. New export orders are credited with stimulating the improved demand.

The 13 cent sale reported at Independence was a lot of 268 bales from Sloper brothers to Ray and the sale at Aurora was of 105 bales of the James Kyle lot bought by Seavey.

It is stated by men in on the know that there would be plenty of 13 cent business and even some 13½ cents if the growers would sell at those prices but they are reported to be holding. In fact, it was stated, that out of a possible 18,000 bales in the state 8500 bales are in the hands of nine growers none of whom are yet in the mood to sell at present prices.

Considerable business is said to have been transacted recently in California in the Sacramento district at 12½ cents and one offer of 15 cents was reported Monday in Sonomas.

Silverton—Mrs. Henry Bock and son, Gus, of Garibaldi, spent the week end here on a business and pleasure trip. They made their stopping place at the George Hubbs home.

Mrs. Bock stated that among Silverton residents now at Garibaldi are Mr. and Mrs. Willard Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Sharpe, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. S. McCoy and Mrs. Myrtle Carter.

Carl, the youngest of the Bock children, is a senior in high school There are about 60 high school pupils and five teachers.

BERRIES MAY BE SAVED BY SPRAY METHOD

Hundreds of blackberry growers in the Willamette valley who lost from 50 to 90 per cent of their crops this year through the action of a new redberry disease may save their crops next year if a spray program is carried out in the early spring, though much work remains to be done on this disease under Oregon conditions.

This information is contained in a new circular of information to be issued by the state college experiment station within a few days based on its studies and observations ever since the college was appealed to last summer by growers suddenly faced with enormous losses.

The redberry disease has been prevalent in California for some ten years and it is now known that the trouble was present in southern Oregon and to a limited extent in the Willamette valley before this year, though not fully identified as the redberry trouble.

This year the normal development of the crop of evergreen blackberries, grown for canning, particularly in Marion, Clackamas and Polk counties, was so suddenly and seriously checked soon after the beginning of harvest that investigations by the college were called for immediately and revealed the nature of the trouble.

Caused by a tiny mite (eriophyes gracilis nalepa), visible only through a microscope, the disease stops the ripening at the red stage. Berry fields many acres in extent had their vines weighted to the ground with tons of hard red berries, utterly worthless because they would not ripen.

Until more experimental work is completed by the Oregon investigators, the experiment station is recommending the California control practices with such local adaptations as may be necessary. These consist first of using a dormant or delayed dormant spray of lime sulphur just as the fruit-stem buds begin to swell or crack a little in the spring.

Lime sulphur is used at a strength of from 6 to 8 gallons of concentrated solution to 100 gallons of water. An application of this strength is believed effective even before the buds start to open, the main consideration in either case being to cover every bud, as several hundred mites frequently overwinter in a single bud.

In case examination later in the spring, but before berries set, reveals mites still present, an application of wettable sulphur 5 pounds to 100 gallons is recommended. If this spray program is carried through it is expected that further serious losses will be avoided.

When the experiment station was appealed to for aid this summer, an entomologist was taken from other work and placed in the infested district to try emergency methods of control. Applications of several summer sprays gave good indications of "curing" the disease even after it had attacked the berries, as some teat rows ripened up normally, to all appearances.

Fruit from these tests has been canned and is being observed this winter to determine if the spray applied to the fruit will have any detrimental effect on its flavor or keeping quality. While it is certain that spraying before the fruit sets is the more practical method of control, knowledge of later possibilities may prove valuable in emergencies.

All varieties of blackberries are attacked by the mite and reports of its occurrence on loganberries and raspberries have been received. In California, where the disease was investigated this summer by representatives of the experimental station and of the Woodburn Fruit Growers' union, it was found that no commercial crop of blackberries can be produced without the protective spray.

Growers in Oregon have pointed out that, in one respect, the disease may be a blessing in future, as it will probably mean the elimination of the wild evergreen blackberries from competition with the cultivated acreage. This year, however, the cultivated patches seemed to be hit harder than the more remote wild berries.

Meanwhile, the Oregon experiment station has initiated a comprehensive spray control test program and plans are being made to conduct these tests until such time as a positive and safe program for Oregon conditions is established, in case funds for this project are provided. If or when any new material is developed it will be passed on to the growers through the press and over the college radio, say the experiment station officials.

RURAL CLUB WILL MEET WEDNESDAY

Woodburn—The Woodburn Rural club will hold its first fall meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. E. Morrison on the Pacific highway. Mrs. Morrison will be assisted by her daughter, Miss Wilma Morrison, and Mrs. Nick Serres.

During the program hour the club will take up the study of Oregon history and Oregon laws, which they expect to continue through the winter months. Sewing for the Albertina Kerr Baby home will occupy the social hour.

FLOUR PRICE REDUCED

Portland (AP)—As a result of lowering grain prices, lower prices were in effect Tuesday at Portland flour mills. Family patents were marked down 20 cents a barrel, Quote: Family patents 49s, 46; whole wheat, 49s $5.10; graham 49s, $4.90; bakers' hard wheat 98s, $5.40; bakers' bluestem patents, 98s $5.15; and pastry flour 49s, $5.30.

PROJENY OF FAMOUS TREE TRANSPLANTED

Cambridge, Mass. (AP)—A "grandson" of the famous Washington Elm, under which General George Washington assumed command of the Continental army, soon will be thriving in historic soil here.

The Washington elm itself, long a local landmark, was cut down several years ago after its great age had made it a hazard to motorists and pedestrians.

In 1896, however, one Arthur J. Collins, while a Harvard student, took a slip of the historic elm and planted it on the campus of the University of Washington. A "grandson" sprig, taken from that slip, has now attained a height of 16 feet, and the Cambridge park board has accepted the offer of the far western university to transplant the young elm near the spot where the original elm once stood.

FEED DEALERS WILL MEET HERE

The feed dealers of the Salem district of the Oregon Feed Dealers association will meet Thursday, November 20th, 6:30 p. m., at the Marion Hotel, for a discussion of problems of the industry. While the primary consideration at this meeting will be given to the technical matters concerned with the operation of the industry itself, there are also to be considered matters affecting the farming community in whicr the feed men may exert an influence. One of the most important of these is the question of the existing tariff on oil cake and oil cake meal.

Prior to the imposition of this tariff ($6.00 per ton), the association took an active stand against such a tariff, pointing out that it protected no American industry and did affect farmers in the entire Pacific coast territory. The association is now actively planning a campaign to secure a reduction of 50 per cent in this tariff, under the flexible clause. A great deal of work is involved in this program in order to present the data satisfactorily to the Tariff Commission. Plans to that end will be considered amongst other things at this meeting.

RUSSIA ALLEGES WORLD CONSPIRACY

Hamsin, is aleged to have been the prime mover in the plot. His associates, three of them educators and the others engineers, are charged with having formed a central committee of the so-called industrial party in the interests of the intrigue.

The alleged Russian leaders, who will be tried on charges of high treason, for which the punishment is death, are alleged to have implicated more than 200 others in confessions on their parts in the plot.

The indictment goes on to say the accused persons maintained contacts with the French headquarters "through persons in the French service, 'K' and 'R', especially appointed for this purpose," and received and executed its orders. Later, it alleged, they spied on, and obtained, in accordance with headquarters' orders, "necessary information of secret character relating to the military forces and defense of the U. S. S. R."

"Upon instruction of the same headquarters," the indictment continues, "the accused organized a special military group aiming at demoralization of the Red army and preparation for separate acts of treason on the port of the various detachments during the intervention.

"Upon instructions from the same headquarters the accused organized a special group to assist the foreign military interventionists by undermining and disrupting the social structure, electric stations, railways and military works."

The charge of plotting with the former president and premier and the foreign minister of France is one of a long list of accusatoins contained in the indictment, which names Mm. Ramsin, Kalimmikov, Laritchew, Tcharnoavky, Fedotov, Kuprinov, Ochkin and Sitnin.

The eight men, members of the so-called "industrial party," counter-revolutionary organization, are accused of participation in anti-Soviet activities, industrial and political, and of preparing favorable conditions for foreign armed intervention.

APPLE BUTTER NEW CANNERY PACK HERE

Reid, Murdoch & Co.'s local plant is working on another experimental pack which from the production end has proven very successful after some slight changes made in the handling of the pack to determine just the manner of proceeding. The new pack is that of apple butter being made along with the regular apple pack. The company has a wonderful quality of apples which it is putting in the apple pack and the apple butter.

While apple butter has been one of the regular lines handled by the Reid, Murdoch company through its thousands of independent grocery outlets, it is the first time as far as is known, that it has been packed on a commercial scale here and it is only one of a number of new items which has entered the field through the new local plant of the company. The local plant is also continuing packing fruit salad and it is likely this item will continue to be packed well up to the first of January when the plant will be closed down for renovation.

COLLEGE PLANS CONFERENCE OF PRUNE GROWERS

Corvallis—Prune growers seem to be finding life just one thing after another, and now it is government pure food regulations to raise the quality of dried prunes. Some think this is an additional hardship on top of low prices, while others hail it as a "good calamity" which will help the industry by giving recognition to high quality and keeping poor stuff off the market.

Regardless of this argument, the horticultural department here has arranged, at the suggestion of leading prune growers and packers, to hold a three-day prune growers' short course at the college November 24 to 26, when every phase of the question will be discussed by specialists.

The detailed program just issued by W. S. Brown, chief in horticulture, shows that all the highlights of prune production, drying, and marketing will be included as well as those features intended primarily to help growers meet the pure food regulations.

The first day will be devoted to management problems, such as prune soils, fertilizers, irrigation, rejuvenation and pruning. Such specialists as C. V. Ruzek, O. T. McWhorter, C. E. Schuster, M. R. Lewis and W. S. Brown are on the program.

Spray methods and materials will be the second day's subject, covering prune insects with emphasis on thrips, brown rot control, and a demonstration of spraying equipment. Dr. Don C. Mote, Dr. W. P. Duruz, H. P. Barss and Joseph Wilcox are staff members in charge.

Marketing and grade standards will bring the course to its climax the third day when the world-wide outlook, improved prune grades, marketing principles, fresh prune market outlook, and drier management will be discussed by L. R. Breithaupt, E. H. Wiegand, George C. Gatlin, Paul V. Maris and Dr. M. N. Nelson, all of the college experiment station or extension staff.

LEGGE DENIES RESIGNATION

Washington (AP)—Chairman Alexander Legge of the federal farm board Tuesday denied reports that he had resigned and stated he had no immediate intention of giving up his post.

The chairman pointed out, however, that "I have already stayed longer than I at first agreed to."

He said he would resign some time before the expiration of his six year term in 1936.

At the same time C. C. Teague, fruit member of the board, announced he had advised President Hoover he would remain until July 15, 1931. Appointed for a one year term, Teague agreed last July to remain until December, and now has consented to serve another six months.

Teague explained he did not wish to leave the board at a time when it was developing its organization and policies through the critical formation period. He had extensive farm interests in California, where he is identified with the grape industry.

Officials at the farm board Tuesday nitimated Legge might resign within the next year. The chairman originally was appointed in 1929 to serve one year, but was reappointed this year for a six year term.

Club To Study Oregon History

Kingwood—Mrs. Ernest Anderson, with Mrs. Albert Bouffleur assistant hostess, entertained the memehrs and a few guests of the Orchard Heights club at the Anderson home one afternoon last week.

Mrs. C. H. Fisher, president, presided at the business meeting and program. Mrs. Ammon Grice resigned as secretary, because of ill health and Mrs. John Simmons was chosen to fill the vacancy. It was decided to make a study of early Oregon history for this year's special work. Mrs. John Simmons gave a paper on early Indians, and Mrs. Fred Gibson one on how the Columbia river was named.

During the program and business session the matrons stitched on a quilt that they are beginning. The next meeting was dated for November 18, a couple of days ahead of the regular date, because of the meeting of the Polk county federation of rural women's clubs which will be held in Ballston on the 20th. An all-day meeting in the Oak Grove grange hall, with a pot luck dinner at noon, and quilting in the afternoon will feature the next meeting with Mesdames Frank Farmer and C. H. Fisher joint hostesses.

Guests included Mrs. W. L. Robbin, Mrs. Phill Fitner of Salem, daughters of Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. J. R. Chapman, Mrs. Ben Beltz and Mrs. A. A. Withers. Members present were Mrs. Edward Reed, Mrs. C. H. Fisher, Mrs. Cash Roberts, Mrs. C. S. Matthews, Mrs. C. S. Cox, Mrs. J. W. DeLap, Mrs. William E. Knower, Mrs. William McDowell, Mrs. A. R. Southwick, Mrs. M. A. STOCK MARKET MAKES STRONG UPWARD CLIMB

New York (AP)—The stock market Tuesday overcame several obstacles and advanced under the leadership of U. S. Steel, which broke below 140 for a time, but came back to above 142.

Industrial leaders generally followed Steel. Several amusements notably Warner Bros. Pictures, Fox and General Theaters Equipment, were weak in the morning, but they firmed up from their lows.

American Telephone and Telegraph made a new low for the year at 181½, off 4¾, and then came back to 184. National Biscuit, another weak feature, also rallied. General Foods hit 48, off 2, and rallied a point.

Elsewhere gains of fractions to nearly 6 points were recorded.

J. I. Case ran up nearly 6 points to 116½ and other high priced issues rose 1 to 4 points. Best gains were made by Auburn Auto, Vanadium, Westinghouse Electric, American Can, General Motors, and Bethlehem Steel.

Aside from Telephone, the utilities showed an upward trend in the afternoon. American Water Works spurted nearly 4 points from the previous close to 62½, while North American gained 2½ to 64 and American and Foreign Power rose 1¼ to 38¼.

Copper shares held steady to firm. It was reported that producers in the domestic market were unwilling to sell at the 9½ cents a pound rate in force at the present time. They expect to fit into the demands of the Clayton anti-trust act, it is reported.
