FARMERS UNION ELECT ENEMY OF FARM BOARD

St. Paul, Minn. (AP)—Opponents of the federal farm board policies scored an unexpected victory Friday by electing John A. Simpson, Oklahoma City, Okla., president of the National Farmers' union, which is in convention here.

Simpson and his supporters from the southwest, who were believed to have been in the minority against the governmental agency, succeeded in ousting C. E. Huff, Salina, Kas., as president.

Huff also president of the Farmers' National Grain corporation, is a supporter of the board policies, including the federal marketing act. He was backed for re-election by representatives of the spring wheat states of the northwest.

Great Falls, Mont., was chosen as the 1931 meeting place.

Huff was supported by Minnesota, North Dakota, Wisconsin, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Kansas, Montana, Missouri and Kentucky delegates. The other 16 states represented in the organization either have acted passively toward the farm board or have been openly opposed to it.

Resolutions adopted Friday indorsed United States leadership in world peace by reduction of naval armaments and removal of military training from schools; urged a higher license fee for dealers in butter and cheese substitutes; indorsed independence for the Philippine islands and formation of a farmers' union regional wool marketing association to serve Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana.

MACHADO'S CABINET SAID TO HAVE QUIT

Havana, Cuba (AP)—A report was circulated Friday without confirmation that all members of the cabinet of President Gerardo Machado had presented their resignations to facilitate restoration of tranquility in Cuba.

None of the resignations has been accepted, it was said, but several changes will be made in the cabinet soon. The authority to suspend constitutional rights throughout Cuba was granted the president early Friday by congress, in connection with recent disorders.

City School Superintendent Geo. Hug received his wheelbarrow Friday from the vocational training classes at Salem high school, but it wasn't the same wheelbarrow as the delapidated vehicle which the class took from his home several weeks ago. The boys in the class rebuilt the ironwork, made the body part larger, and painted the revamped Irishman's buggy. They purposely made the body part much bigger, they told the city superintendent, in order that when he wheeled wood he would know he had a big job on his hands.

Outdoor Christmas illumination will occupy members of the Salem Ad club in the near future with plans of the Portland Ad club presented by Mr. Groo, of Portland. Instead of 700 participants as last year the goal has been set for 3,000 this year. Community centers will be established on both the east and west sides while the largest Christmas tree to be erected in the world will be placed this year, exceeding the former record of 96 feet by some 20 feet, he said. Music will be broadcast from 50 to 100 churches every night between December 20 and 25. Cash prizes will not be offered this year and in place electrical appliances will be given.

A smallpox vaccination clinic for Salem high school students was held Friday morning at the county health unit building, with Dr. Vernon A. Douglas vaccinating 122 boys and girls.

BUSH LORE SAVES LIFE OF AUSTRALIAN BOY

Sydney, Australia (AP)—The bush lore of an elderly Aboriginal woman, whom his parents employed as cook, saved the life of 20-months-old Jimmy Bowcott, here.

The baby was playing near a clump of blackberry bushes when a deadly trapdoor spider bit him, injecting its poison into his foot and clinging there till it was killed. The black cook cut a piece off his foot, rubbed in some tribal herbs, and when the doctor arrived expecting to find the child either dead or beyond aid, he found the bush lore of the native woman had been successful.

SALEM SCHOOL SURVEY PLANNED

A survey of school population and teaching staffs will be made this winter by the Salem Teachers' association. The survey will be similar to that conducted last year by the Sacramento, Calif., teachers and will be devoted statistical work tabulating the drift of population, background of children and teachers, and other data.

The head committee for the survey is composed of Sylvia Kraps, chairman, Carlotta Crowley, R. W. Tavenner, Dorothy Taylor and May Rauch. The head committee already has held two meetings and has an outline of work to submit to volunteer subcommittees.

R. W. Tavenner, secondary supervisor, will work with the committee conducting the survey of the teaching staff. This committee's personel is Beryl Holt, chairman, Sylvia Paulson, Lela King, Mabel Temple, Dorothy Daugherty, Grace Giebel, Etta White, Ruth Draper, Beatrice Skeen and Floyd Siegmund. Miss Carlotta Crowley, elementary supervisor, will work in conjunction with the committee surveying the school population, this committee including Maybelle Burch, chairman, Evelyn McKinley, Genevieve Anderson, E. A. Miller, Eva Beatty, Bertha Allen, Mary Eyre, Agnes Norcross, Lyle Murray and Claudia Plank.

The two working committees are to meet on Wednesday, December 3, at 4 p. m., in the senior high school, for their first sessions.

AD CLUB HEARS OF NATIONAL CHAMBER

Phases of national problems and the way the United States chamber of commerce is meeting them were presented to the Salem Ad club Friday noon by Leonard Read, of Seattle, northwest district representative of the national chamber, which now has more than 1800 memberships. The purpose of the organization is to obtain a national sentiment and outlook upon business problems. Read said, differing from other chambers of commerce in that its board of directors is not the governing body but that policies are outlined as a result of referendum among members themselves.

Coordination of activities and service are the major activities of the organization, Read continued. Through the United States chamber it was demonstrated to the government that a retail business census could be taken and as a result of a preliminary survey in 11 cities, such was included in the general census this year. The survey in the 11 cities revealed that one-third of the retail outlets were doing less than $5,000 a year business and that 15 per cent of the stores were doing 85 per cent of the business. Groceries headed the list with automobiles second and department stores third.

Reed urged business men to attend the northwest district meetings in Portland December 8 and 9.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARIE MARSH

Mrs. Marie Elizabeth Smith Marsh, 83, prominent Oregon pioneer and a former resident of Salem and graduate of Willamette university in the class of 1869, died Thursday at the home of her son, Harold D. Marsh, in Portland. Mrs. Marsh was born in LaPorte, Ind., March 31, 1847, and three weeks later began, with her parents, the long trip to Oregon. They arrived in the "muddy little village called Portland" on January 31, 1848. At the age of nine she was left an orphan but soon after, with Lucy Anna Lee, daughter of Rev. Jason Lee, was adopted by Rev. and Mrs. Gustavus Hines, pioneer missionaries. At that time the family lived in what was said to be the first house built in Salem.

After a period spent in the old Salem academy, Marie Elizabeth Hines entered Willamette university. While teaching school following her graduation she met Robert J. Marsh, printer and publisher of The Dalles, whom she later married. To the couple was born a son, Harold D. Marsh, Portland architect, who survives.

During her later years Mrs. Marsh was the recipient of many honors from pioneer societies. In May of this year she was crowned "Queen of the May" by the Sons and Daughters of Oregon Pioneers. At that time, Monsignor Arthur Lane, pastor of All Saints Catholic church and grandson of General Joseph Lane, first territorial governor of Oregon, characterized Mrs. Marsh as "the ideal pioneer mother in whom we honor all our mothers."

Funeral services will be held at Finley's chapel, Portland, at 1 p. m., Monday.

Quinaby—From Quinaby alone 250 cars of celery have been shipped up to date and there will be 50 cars more before the end of the season which extends into the new year, with the peak of the shipping over at Thanksgiving.

SOVIET LEADERS CLEANING HOUSE

Moscow, (AP)—The Soviet government, having announced the recent discovery of an international "interventionist" war plot against Russia, was generally known Friday to be in the midst of a thorough "political house cleaning."

Almost daily announcements have been made of the removal of officials in various departments and re-organization of other branches, as well as the expulsion of various communists from the ruling party.

Diplomatic circles were entirely ignorant of London and Paris reports of military troubles in the Soviet and the press continued to center its attention on exposure of dissenters within the communist party and of capitalist foes abroad. It was believed possible that the internal and external plots announced by the government had given rise to the reports circulated abroad.

GRAIN ALCOHOL SEIZED IN CAR

R. L. Gill, giving Bellingham, Wash., as his home, was endeavoring to raise $500 bail Friday following his arrest Thursday night by city officers on a charge of possession and transportation of liquor. He is being confined in the city jail.

Gill was arrested about 10:30 Thursday night as he was entering the city from the south following notice from Roseburg to be on the lookout for a man believed to have stolen a trunk and a grip from a man at that place. While the automobile bearing the license numbers of the wanted car hove into sight the driver was flagged down. Search of the car revealed the fact that the trunk and grip were not on board but 15 gallons of grain alcohol were being transported. The alcohol was contained in 15 metal cans, with a United States mail sack being used as covering for the lot.

Gill denied having stolen the trunk and grip. A traveling companion, owner of the baggage, asked Gill to wait for him in front of a house at Roseburg. After waiting an hour Gill became tired and after depositing the luggage beside the house drove away. Gill accused this man of having tipped the officers off to what he was carrying.

BLIZZARD RAGES OVER COLORADO

drifts as high as 20 feet were reported.

A man telephoned the sheriff's office in Lamar that two persons had frozen to death nine miles east of that city. He gave no details and Sheriff L. E. Alderman and the coroner left immediately to investigate.

Another storm tragedy was the death of the infant son of Charles Moffitt of Moffitt, N. D., as the child was being taken home from a hospital. Moffitt's automobile stalled near Steele, N. D., and exposure caused a return of the baby's illness. While the mother struggled through the snow after a doctor, the baby died.

Still another death in the present blizzard was that of Guy Miner, 50, druggist and postmaster of Des Moines, N. M., who froze to death trying to reach Mount Dora afoot.

Suffering of stock and loss of cattle was reported throughout the valley.

Winds of gale force shattered windows of homes and business houses in La Junta, and the snow drifted up to the roofs of small homes.

Business practically was suspended there, as it was in Trinidad where 32 inches of snow had fallen in 48 hours.

Locomotives which had stalled time and again bucking through drifts between La Junta and Trinidad finally battered their way thru and train service was resumed. The trains were hours late, however.

The Colorado highway department ordered out its huge plows to clear main roads for motorists, scores of whose machines were imprisoned in drifts.

The blizzard blew on a semi-circular course. It swung around from its eastward to a northward direction, and descended on the Red River valley of the northwest. It coated streets and highways with treacherous ice. Northwest Nebraska, Minnesota and North Dakota were in its grip.

A sharp north wind blew up drifts in those states and snapped communication wires, isolating northwestern Dakota villages.

Trinidad, Colo. (AP)—A new snowstorm burst over Trinidad Friday. In less than two hours, more than an inch of snow fell on top of the 32-inch blanket recorded by the weather bureau Thursday.

Highways leading from the city were blocked, and traffic in the city was tied up. Seven-foot drifts stood in the downtown section.

Tracks of the Santa Fe and Colorado and Southern railroads, blocked by great drifts Thursday, were opened to traffic, but trains battled their way through the new storm from one to four hours late.

A path was broken to the San Rafael hospital in the outskirts of the city, enabling several physicians to visit their patients for the first time in 48 hours.

Snow removal work in the city was devoted to the roofs of buildings, many of which were in danger of collapsing under their unprecedented burden of snow.

A damaged Midcontinent Air Express plane, forced down in the blizzard Thursday, stood in a field 10 miles from the city.

GASOLINE WAR IN SALEM NOW NEARING END

Twenty one and a half cent gasoline was to be purchased at practically every pump in Salem Friday afternoon as the price war waged on, although two of the major oil companies distributing the product here had refused to deliver more gas to retailers displaying that price mark for the fuel delivered under consignment contracts.

Not all of the dealers were displaying the 21½ cent signs, but there were no reports of customers paying a higher price anywhere.

Deliveries to service stations and curb pumps not covered by these "trick" contracts of the Standard and Shell oil companies, and some of the service stations supplied by other companies were still securing deliveries of gas.

There was nothing to indicate definitely when the war, started by retailers in protest against the action of the companies in establishing a four cent differential between Portland and Salem wholesale prices, in favor of Portland, would come to an end. There were indications, however, that the companies, getting together, would force the dealers to return to the company dictated price of 24 cents a gallon within a few hours.

Unconfirmed reports said that the companies were preparing to equalize the difference in price between Portland and Salem, but whether this would take the form of a reduction in the wholesale price here to 17½ cents or an increase in the Portland price to 18½ cents could not be determined.

The war was precipitated by the action of the companies in reducing the wholesale price in Portland 2½ cents and refusing to grant a similar concession to dealers here, forcing local dealers to compete with retail prices ranging from 16 to 20 cents in Portland with a dictated price of 24 cents here.

OHIO DRY LEADER ASKS MODIFICATION

pointed out, could not become effective, however, without a modification of the Volstead act.

"Light wines and beer under strict governmental control would be preferable to what we have now," Crabbe said. "There is neither respect for nor true enforcement of the present law. If the law as enacted had been properly respected and enforced I would not have advocated a change but I am willing to concede that this is not true and consequently am in favor of modification.

"We need a statute that will more nearly meet the wishes and command the respect of the great majority of the people. The present prohibition law has not commanded the respect of the great majority of the people. The present prohibition law has not prevented the use of intoxicating liquor but on the contrary has brought about a condition where there are a greater percentage of our people drinking now than ever before. The drinkers are a different element too than in former years.

"I believe a majority of the people of Ohio would still favor a reasonable law regulating use of intoxicants but they are not in accord with the present rigid measure."

WANTS DRAIN TILE PLACED IN DITCH

Placing of a drain tile of sufficient size to take care of the surface water in that portion of the city bounded by Cross, High, Rural and Berry streets is petitioned for in a communication directed to the city council by Emma Murphy Brown, owner of blocks 15 and 16 in the southeast part of the city.

In her letter to the city authorities, Mrs. Brown points out that the city dug a ditch through her property some time ago extending from the south line of Cross to the north line of Howard street. She requests that large tile be placed in this ditch and then filled over with earth. Since the work would of necessity have to be done mostly by hand, she believes it would to some extent take care of the unemployment situation.

Mrs. Brown plans improvement of her property provided the city acts on her request.
