NO CONFERENCE OVER VACANCIES YET CALLED

With the convening of the legislature but three days distant, two vacancies exist in the senate and house delegations from Marion county and nothing more than a general understanding existing as to the method to be devised by the legislature for filling the vacancies, nothing has been heard publicly from Senator Sam Brown, dean of the local delegation and its recognized nominal head, regarding a conference of the local lawmakers to discuss the situation, the solution, or possible candidates.

Something over two weeks ago Senator Brown advised some of the members of the delegation that he would call a meeting within a few days. That was the last heard of it. In the meanwhile the discussion of possible candidates has waxed warm, the identity of some of them being quite apparently displeasing to Senator Brown as possible colleagues in the senate.

Senator J. E. Bennett, author of the recently enacted constitutional amendment vesting in the legislature authority to devise a method for filling legislative vacancies has completed his bill to meet the existing emergency in Marion county, and will ask enactment of the measure on the opening day of the session. It provides that vacancies existing at the convening of a legislative session or during a session of the assembly shall be filled by appointment of the governor with the sanction of the house in which the vacancy exists.

Bennett admits that this may not be satisfactory as a permanent method of filling vacancies and that enactment of another bill to provide for filling future vacancies may have to follow. His bill was whipped into its final form by Senator J. O. Bailey and Bailey said here Tuesday that he favored the plan only as an emergency measure and felt that future vacancies should be filled by election by the people to be represented. Several other members of the legislature have expressed a similar sentiment.

WARRANT ISSUED FOR DAN POWERS

Portland (AP)—A bench warrant was on file here Thursday for Dan E. Powers, attorney, who was summoned to appear in circuit court to settle an 11-year-old estate. The warrant was issued, Circuit Judge Tarvell said, as a last measure after he had called, written and sent verbal messages to Powers urging him to wind up the case in order that the circuit records might be cleared.

In 1919 Powers was made guardian of the estate of Joseph Orinick, adjudged insane, and sent to the state hospital. The estate consisted, Judge Tarvell said, of $400. There was against the estate, the judge said, some $100 in debts.

"The work entailed was the subtraction of the debts from the total sum," Judge Tarvell said. "During these eleven years the court has had no report on the matter."

The board has not been able to dispose of the farms to date. Outstanding indebtedness against the commission totals $25,000, including bonds issued to finance the purchase of farms.

HENDERSON CASE TO JURY

Corvallis (AP)—After two hours deliberation the jury was still out on Thursday in the William Henderson murder case. Henderson shot and killed E. E. Mills on a downtown street. He pleaded self-defense.

Judge Skipporth in his instructions devoted most of the time to the law of self defense and to different degrees of murder.

In the closing arguments Wednesday the defense emphasized evidence that Police Officer Thompson knew of a liquor feud and had warned Henderson, that he was in danger on the streets.

The prosecution attempted to show that Henderson's description of Mills' alleged movement as if to draw a gun was impossible in view of other undisputed evidence. In the closing arguments Wednesday the defense emphasized evidence that Police Officer Thompson knew of a liquor feud and had warned Henderson, that he was in danger on the streets.

Local people's cards show up pleasingly in the collection, with some of the most individualistic and representative of the entire group being created by local folk.

ARCTIC HERO DIES IN HOSPITAL

New York (AP)—Acton P. Jochimsen, rescuer of the Karlik survivors in the Arctic in 1914, died Thursday in the naval hospital at Brooklyn.

He was a native of Denmark. As captain of the King and Wings, a fur-bearing ship of the Olaf Swenson company of Seattle, he came to be known as the most skillful ice pilot in the Arctic. During the war he was a lieutenant commander in the United States merchant marine.

The rescue of the Eskimo survivors, which tested his ice-piloting skill to the limit, brought him world renown.

When Captain Jochimsen piloted the King and Wings to Wrangel island after two other vessels had failed to get through the ice, he saved 7 men, a woman and two children from starvation. Nine others had already perished.

The ill-fated Karlik was the chief vessel of the Canadian Arctic expedition, headed by Vilhjalmur Stefansson, which set out in June, 1913. In August of the same year she became imprisoned by ice near Point Barrow, Alaska, and drifted with the ice until September.

Stefansson and five others left the ship then to search for fresh food. While they were gone the ice began to drift again. A blizzard finally crushed her and the survivors reached Wrangel and Herald islands.

BOWLES PLEADS FRIDAY MORNING

Portland (AP)—Nelson C. Bowles and Irma G. Loucks will plead here Friday morning at 11 o'clock to joint and separate indictments charging them with the first degree murder of Mrs. Leona C. Bowles.

Time for entering pleas was advanced from 2 o'clock Friday due to the adjournment of Multnomah county circuit courts at noon for the funeral of Federal Judge Robert S. Bean.

Bowles and Miss Loucks probably will plead not guilty to indictments charging them with stabbing the young society matron in the kitchen of an apartment occupied by Miss Loucks on the morning of last November 12.

They probably will plead later to an indictment charging them with a moral offense.

IDAHO SEEKING RATE REDUCTION

Washington (AP)—Declaring the development of Idaho is being handicapped and retarded by unreasonable freight rates, the Idaho public utilities commission has filed a complaint with the interstate commerce commission against the Oregon short line, part of the Union Pacific system.

The Idaho commission points specifically to the fact that 29 cents a net ton, or $27 per car, in excess of the Portland, Ore., rate is charged on freight from Willamette and Linnton, although these points are within the Portland city limits and switching limits.

Excessive rates, the commission said, are assessed on freight distributed from 20 or 30 other points. If the rate can be reduced to where applicants and intervenors believe it should be, they declare, there will be a greatly increased petroleum freight business between Portland and Idaho.

In addition to the Portland district the Idaho commission is seeking for a lower rate from Seattle.

TELLS OF DRILLING RICKREALL OIL WELL

Bring in one oil well of a flow of 10 barrels and you will have thousands of people flocking into the district by airplane from every part of the country, Sam Foster, oil well operator, told the Lions club Tuesday night in discussing the formations that, in his opinion, based upon experience indicate the presence of oil in the Salem district. Money is lost in oil well speculations not because oil is not found, but because of the methods of financing he asserted. Selfish interests have prevented the proper operations in northwest fields Foster said.

Foster did not name the location, but said it was near Salem and that on the Riggs farm, which is near Rickreall, gas had been obtained in sufficient quantities to provide house lighting for the last 14 years. A test well has developed 50 pounds pressure, flowing petroleum gas showing color and giving indication of a large pool of oil. All formations passed by drilling are identical with those found in proven fields, he said. Foster was accompanied by Van Carter, in charge of the drilling of the well on the outskirts of Corvallis.

POWER APPLICATIONS WILL BE DEFERRED

Deferral of the state reclamation commission to take action in connection with the application of the Northwest Power company to appropriate the waters of Marion lake and the North Santiam river, until after the 1931 legislature, was announced Wednesday at a special session of the commission.

These applications, which were several weeks ago, and two public hearings have been held in Salem within the past 18 months. The company proposed to use the water for power purposes.

The applications were opposed by the cities of Salem and Albany, the state game commission and a number of sportsmen's organizations. The city of Salem also has pending applications for power rights on the stream.

WATER COMPANY REFUSED OFFER MADE BY CITY

Speculation as to why the Oregon-Washington Water Service company had not replied to the offer of purchase formally made by the city for the local water system within the time required for such an answer was cleared up Thursday with the visit here of E. C. Elliott, president of the Oregon-Washington company.

"We did reply to the city's offer," said Mr. Elliott. "I dictated the letter and am sure that it was mailed from our San Francisco office on December 17. While we could not accept the city's offer we of course, as a matter of common courtesy, replied."

Inquiry here Thursday revealed that the letter was received by Mayor Lively on December 17, that he advised the city recorder of its receipt but had neglected to transmit it to the recorder's office.

The text of the letter addressed to the mayor and common council was as follows:

"We have received your communication of October 30 in which you make a proffer of $875,000 for the water works property belonging to the Oregon-Washington Water Service company in Salem, Ore.

"As both the cost and the value of the property are far in excess of the amount that you offer us it is impossible for us to accept your proposal.

"Earl C. Elliott"

PROBE OF AFFAIRS RESUMED BY JURY

beyond the limits prescribed by law are the foundation of the rumored visits of the jurors to other jails.

More speculation, however, was centered around the presence of a special auditor employed by the grand jury in the offices of the secretary of state acting into state book and financial reports of departments. His investigations, it is said, have not been confined solely to the accounts of the state engineer's office, and it has been intimated in some quarters that he has assumed rather extensively the mileage expense of state officials for using their own automobiles on state business.

The office of the attorney general, where employees have been reported to have been paid 10 cents a mile for running their cars on trips they could have made on the railroad for one-fourth the cost are indicated as one possible matter receiving the attention of the auditor.

The grand jury, naturally, has announced nothing; Judge McMahon says he knows nothing of what directed their investigations are taking, and nothing official can be learned.

Around the court house and in the halls and other gossip centers at the capitol speculation is rife, and talk of investigations into the lax department at the state prison, the per capita cost of caring for inmates of state institutions, particularly the state hospital, of fees allegedly paid to attorneys in the Joseph-McMahon disbarment case by the supreme court, and of alleged lax conditions existing in the conduct of the state school for boys were being bandied about with professions of information as to their authenticity.

The only substantiating evidence as to the possible authenticity was the secrecy surrounding the grand jury's program and the declaration of Judge McMahon that he would hold the grand jury in session until it had completed its inquiries, and that might possibly consume the entire year.

QUAKE IN QUEBEC SCARES INHABITANTS

Quebec (AP)—The principal topic of conversation in many parts of the province Thursday was an earthquake which sent inhabitants rushing from their homes, toppled books from shelves and stopped clocks.
