

EGGS HELD TOO LOW; POULTRY DEMAND FIRM

Portland (AP)—Egg prices at Portland have dropped entirely too low. Usually this market is lower than others along the coast but the differential Tuesday was greater than normal, which has resulted in extremely heavy losses to the producers.

There was no further change in the price of eggs here for the day. With the low, least being the former two opposing cooperative organizations of the Pacific northwest, there is no longer competition among these interests, at least so far as prices are concerned.

Market for butter continues to reflect easiness and even weakness despite the extreme low values now being quoted. Make is reported as holding up seasonably well. Butter prices are almost uniform.

Demand for live chickens continues very liberal here. No further change in the price is confirmed but full recent advances are being freely offered. All sorts are wanted.

Late advance offered for immediate supplies of dressed turkeys is being continued by the general trade. Some shipping orders are confirmed. Local sales are not affected.

With the poorer sorts and lowered price stuff getting scarce, the market for apples reflects a better undertone. Recent shipment abroad have been curtailed which is expected to influence prices somewhat in Europe during the next few weeks.

First of the season's hothouse rhubarb from an Oregon plot in the wholesale trade is reported from the Canby section by George Pearson, specialist. Sales around $2.25 for ones and $2 for two in 20 pound boxes. Summer stock is down to $2.50 for extra fancy lots.

Somewhat better supplies of Columbia river smelt are reported here with demand good. Most sales around 19 cents pound. There is a good supply of crabs. Stiehlhead section is weaker at 20 cents pound.

There appears somewhat better demand for onions at the extreme low price now generally reported. Most of the call appears from the newly opened logging camps. There is no speculative trade.

Fancy Chula Vista celery is offering around $6.75 crate, reports the West Coast Fruit Co. Mexican tomatoes are lower with limited call.

Frosts in the San Francisco bay region are curtailing artichoke offerings of quality. California spinach is arriving in good shape. Sales around $3 crate of 40 pounds.

Movement of oranges continues heavy. Country killed veal and hogs are steady with lambs firm. Beef in good call.

ONION OUTLOOK GROWS BRIGHTER

Lalish Center—The onion outlook has been considerably brighter for Lalish growers recently. Local buyers have purchased a number of cars during the past week, several of which have been shipped to California by boat from Portland.

Only a few of the large number of carloads have been disposed of in this manner, however, as practically all the onions go through the Brooks warehouse.

The price has been about the same, averaging around $100 to $105 a car for U. S. No. 1, with the demand weak.
