NOTE INCREASE IN BUTTER MAKE VALUES STEADY

Portland (UP)—Great increase in the output of butter in the Portland trade territory during recent months is reflected in the latest survey of the situation.

Despite the increasing make and offerings, no change has been reflected in prices locally. This applies equally to the open market and to the produce exchange.

Butterfat values continue more or less uniform here but much unsettled in the country.

General trade conditions in the egg market continue without price change of consequence. Decrease in supplies is noted in practically all sections of the west but demand is not improved.

Although there was no open market change in the direct buying price of live chickens for the day, demand is keener from practically all positions. Killers continue to offer 12 cents for lights, 14 cents for mediums and 17-18 cents for heavy but on resales are paying 1 cent additional.

There is a rather good demand for quality spring lambs in the country meat trade with 15 cents generally available for tops. All the real good stuff is moving out promptly. Hogs are steady with best blockers mostly 10½ cents pound.

There is a rather good movement of fancy home grown lettuce at this time and prices are considered steady. All of the better class trade is taking the locals.

Around four carloads of California peas were still reported on Portland tracks over night. This is the chief influence against the sale of the better quality home grown at a suitable price. California peas are being sacrificed.

White potatoes of the new crop are again weaker and lower.

Old potatoes are dull but fairly steady.

Watermelons are due to arrive from California next week.

Asparagus prices are steady with a fair demand. Receipts limited.

Medium sized hothouse cucumbers selling not beyond a dollar are finding a better call than supply.

There is an extreme shortage of Columbia river salmon. The Tillamook season opening was unusually poor.

Columbia river shad are finding more favor. Selling 3½ cents for dressed bucks.

Supplies of halibut are adequate with a price spread of 12-16 cents.

LOWER COST FOR COUNTY ASPHALT

County Commissioner Smith and Roadmaster Johnson were in Portland Wednesday lining up on asphalt purchases and deliveries for the coming paving season and the roadmaster states that he believes he has lined up a lower cost for the asphalt for this year than for several years. Under the plan being worked out asphalt will be shipped to Portland by boat and reloaded from there directly onto trucks and trucked to St. Paul paving plant for the first paving to be done. He believes that quite a little saving will be made generally on asphalt for the county works the coming season.

The entire paving program for the year has not been outlined but it probably will be as big as last year when from 12 to 14 miles of county roads were paved.

WHEAT PRICES LOSE GROUND IN HEAVY SESSION

Chicago (UP) — Cracking at the start, wheat prices continued to fall on the board of trade Thursday under heavy selling and closed near the bottom for sharp losses. Weakness at Liverpool and heavy rains in a section of Kansas badly in need of moisture were depressing factors. September led the decline and went to a discount under July. Dry weather prevailed in the northwest and frost reports were numerous, but these facts had little influence. The selling found the technical position weak and support lacking. The deferred deliveries of corn went into new ground for the season, pacing the other deliveries downward under selling influenced by the weakness in wheat. Toward the last oats also slid downward with the major grains.

At the close wheat was 1¼ to 1½ cents lower with May unchanged, corn was ⅛ to 1¼ cents lower and oats ¼ cent lower to ⅛ cent higher.

Chicago (AP)—Good rains in parts of the Canadian prairie provinces, tending to abate drought, led to early downturns in wheat prices Thursday. Indications pointed also to only slight damage from freezing temperatures in Kansas. Opening at ⅛-1⅛ cents off, wheat later held near to the initial limits. Corn started unchanged to ⅜ up and subsequently sagged.

CALIFORNIA'S HEAT WAVE IS BROKEN

tures skidded to all-time record lows for May.

The storm area stretched from Montana to New Mexico, bringing rain in some sections and snow in others. The moisture was beneficial to most crops, although accompanying low temperatures endangered fruit and early vegetables.

In Denver the 29.9 degree temperature tied the all-time record established May 20, 1915. Temperatures were higher Thursday, but the weather bureau promised a continuation of rain and snow.

Phoeniz, Ariz. (UP)—Freezing temperatures and frost were reported Thursday in northern Arizona.

Day temperatures in the desert regions dropped well below the normal May maximum of around 100.

In north-central Arizona, the temperature was below freezing with a light frost. The same condition prevailed in the Navajo and Hopi Indian country of northeastern Arizona. Cloudy skies prevailed.

Kansas City, Mo. (UP)—Seasonable weather returned Thursday to the southwest after heavy rain, subfreezing temperatures and flurries of snow touched various sections.

Swollen streams reached flood proportions in Missouri and Oklahoma but were receding.

The temperature was going up in western Nebraska, where winds from South Dakota snowstorms had sent the mercury down to 18 degrees.

A double halo around the sun was observed at Lawrence, Kan., Wednesday. The phenomenon was said to be caused by ice particles in the air, a condition almost unprecedented for this time of year.

START DRIVE FOR QUOTA OF WAVERLY HOME

A committee consisting of the heads of service clubs and other Salem organizations has started in earnest a drive to raise the $668 left unpledged of Marion county's quota for the new building proposed for the Waverly baby home in Portland. W. A. Sellwood who is in Salem working to aid in the matter states that since 1928, 30 Marion county babies have been cared for in the home at a cost, which had it been borne here by the taxpayers of this country, would have totaled $5772 and this does not include $20 per capita which has come from the state.

The committee which is putting over the drive for the $1000 allotted to Marion county, of which $668 is left to raise, includes the following: Elks, H. E. Eakin; Kiwanis, James Nicholson; Rotary, W. H. Dancy; Lions, Newell Williams; Salem Woman's club, Mrs. David Wright; Zonta, Mrs. Ora McIntyre; Business and Professional Women, Mrs. Mona Yoder; American Association of University women, Mrs. Ellen Fisher; American Legion, Irl McSherry. Contributions may go to Mrs. David Wright at 782 Stewart street.

The city council contributed $200 to the cause. The committee sent out 4000 letters asking for aid, and after deducting expenses of the letters $132 was left for the fund, thus leaving $668 considered Marion county's share on the new building. The old building is considered very inadequate and a firetrap. From 80 to 90 babies are cared for in it and it was intended to house only from 40 to 60. Each child costs $33 a month to care for including food, clothing, medical attention, hospitalization and all costs. Mr. Sellwood stated that it was considered not too much for Marion county to contribute for the new building considering the number of Marion county babies cared for and the saving such care has made to the county. Members of the committee urge a prompt and liberal response to their plea.

PORTLAND GETS GIANT ELEPHANT

Portland, Ore., (UP)—"See Tusko, the most extraordinary, the most stupendous elephant alive — stands 12 feet two inches high in his bare feet and weighs 12,480 pounds!"

Children of Portland may have an opportunity to see the much-ballyhooed Tusko every day as Al A. Painter, amusement promoter, has announced the purchase from the Al G. Barnes circus and that he will present him to the Portland zoo.

Tusko will do his last circus stand here Tuesday and be escorted by elephants to Lotus island, outside the city limits, for exhibition. The circus bought Tusko 9 years ago but said it was getting to much of an elephantine job to transport the animal.

HOPMEN LEAVING ON EASTERN TRIPS

A migration of hop men to the east is under way. James R. Linn is expecting to leave Thursday evening, T. A. Livesley is expecting to leave Friday evening and Harry Hart of Portland also plans to be on his way in the near future. All of them will look over the market situation both as to moving more of this year's hops and some of next. Mr. Livesley's trip is primarily to attend the graduation of his son Tommy Livesley from the military academy at Culver, Indiana, but he will also get in touch with hop connections in Chicago, New York and other eastern cities.

The local market remains about the same with no sales reported but growers standing firm. Downy mildew is making some progress in the yards but to what extent it will develop remains problematical.

COAST WOOL TRADE LARGELY INACTIVE

Portland (AP)—With the exception of around 300,000 pounds sold in the Heppner district, trade in the wool market remains more or less inactive at Pacific northwest points. In the Heppner sector sales to various operators during the last day or so were made around 14-14½ cents a pound. This is practically in line with recent transactions at other points, quality and shrinkage considered.

Reports indicate that most of the remaining supplies in the Baker district are moving into cooperative hands.

WANTS COUNTY TO SHARE GAS TAX

With four mills and a fraction over being levied directly against property for road purposes in this county, County Commissioner Smith stated relative to a possible lowering of the automobile license fee that he believed rather than property bearing the burden of costs for roads that it should be entirely carried by motor vehicles.

"If there was a gasoline tax of one or two cents a gallon going to the counties it would relieve property entirely of any of the the costs for road building and maintenance, stated the county commissioner, and cut off the four and a fraction mills now levied for the general road fund against property.

STOCK MARKET STAGES STRONG RALLY UPWARD

New York (UP)—The stock market bounded forward Thursday—gains from 1 to 10 points being recorded —in a late rally which brought about such heavy trading that tickers ran behind.

Rails led the market from the ruck in which it has been the past several days. The carriers advanced on decision of eastern railroads to attempt to have the interstate commerce commission revise eastern rail rates upward. This combined with the fortnightly brokerage settlements in London, in which no difficulties were reported, brought the forward move.

According to preliminary calculations the Dow, Jones & Co., industrial average advanced 1.80 points to 139.54; rail average advanced 2.38 points to 79.07.

Sales totaled 2,400,000, compared with 2,300,000 shares Wednesday.

The advance came suddenly and unexpectedly. During the first three hours Thursday the same lethargic tone that has characterized trading for the past week prevailed. There was a sagging tendency. No particular pressure was exerted.

Then shortly after 2 p. m.—when the rail leaders' move was forecast—the market suddenly came to life. Rails spurted. Other stocks, which of late have been undergoing terrific pressure, swung into line. United States Steel, which had drifted below par, came back.

Professional shorts found offerings limited and they were forced to make swift bids to cover their commitments.

Atchison rose to 159, a gain of 10 points from its early low. New York Central, Pennsylvania, Chesapeake & Ohio, and other rail leaders gained. Steel common rose from its low of 97⅛ to near 101. Case rebounded sharply after touching a new low for the year and relief from selling was apart in leading shares such as American Telephone, American Can, Westinghouse Electric and General Electric.

Allied Chemical turned against the short interest, quickly recovering an early 5-point decline. The amusement shares reflected the drying up of liquidation, Fox Film advancing more than 3 points from its early low.

The late rally was well maintained although many traders seized the improvement as an opportunity to put accounts in order. Closing prices in general were not far below the highs of the session.

START GOOSEBERRY CANNING MONDAY

Samples of gooseberries which are coming in to the cannery indicate that this crop will also be in shape so gooseberry canning will probably start next Monday along with the strawberry canning.

Growers have been making efforts the past day or two to have canneries take their early pickings but canneries have been shying away from these owing to the green sides and tips and it is believed the general pack for barreling will not start up until Monday at the earliest.

There will be plenty of cannery labor this year, that is certain. Women and men have been signing up for months and cannery telephones are ringing almost steadily now asking information as to when work will start.

BERRY GROWERS CANCEL OFFERS TO SELL CROP

Portland (UP)—With the strawberry crop proven to be one of the smallest that the United States has produced for many years, more than normal interest is Thursday showing in the barreled fruit situation, says Hyman H. Cohen in the Journal.

Owing to the promise of an extremely short crop in the Oregon territory, where a very considerable volume of the normal barreled product originates, all offers to sell are reported withdrawn by distributors of strawberries. This follows the recent expose by the Journal of the scheme of barrel interests to force growers to accept lower prices for strawberries in the face of a better barreled market as well as a short crop.

The barreled strawberry market is gaining strength generally but as local offers have been withdrawn, no quotations are now available here.

Barreling has just started here and is expected to become general within a week.

Fresh strawberry market was firmly priced with a scarcity of offerings for the day. Quality, however, shows a very liberal improvement and is close to normal in the
