ed during the evening, the occasion being her birthday anniversary. High honors for cards went to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Johnston, Mrs. Russell Bonestele and Mrs. James Teed, Mr. and Mrs. James Teed assisted Mrs. Charlton in serving refreshments at a late hour.

Daughters of the American Revolution throughout the state who have postponed their plans for the entertainment of their president-general, Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart of Cincinnati, Ohio, will be entertained in the announcement that the steamship Alaska, on which she is a passenger, is due to dock at Seattle Friday night and that she is scheduled to arrive in Portland Saturday morning at 6 o'clock. The steamship, on which Mrs. Hobart was returning from her official visit to Alaska, was delayed by fog, thus throwing awry all plans made by Oregon Daughters for the entertainment of their national chief.

The program as planned for Thursday will be carried out Saturday. Mrs. Richardson said Saturday, with all committees and motor squads following the schedule previously announced for them. This day's entertainment will include a large luncheon at the Multnomah hotel at 12:30 o'clock, open to all members of the society, to which a number of additional guests have been asked, and a garden party at the home of Mrs. E. C. Bronaugh, Sr., on the Willamette, which will begin at 3:30. The three Portland chapters — Multnomah, Portland, and Willamette—will be hostesses for this affair as planned.

Arrangements for the remainder of the day, including dinner, will await further news from Mrs. Hobart as to the length of her stay here. It is likely that members of the general committee or of the state board will entertain her informally at dinner. In case she stays more than the one day informal entertaining will make up the balance of the program for her when it is known definitely how long she will be in Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Compton have returned from a motor trip to the Olympic peninsula and into British Columbia. They visited Mrs. Compton's relatives at Seattle.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Campbell will have as their week-end guests their son, Jimmy and Val Coerver from Seattle, Miss Jean Loundagin and Buddy Stewart from Portland. Mr. Campbell is also enjoying a visit from his father, James H. Campbell, who has been spending the past two years at Newport.

Silverton—Mrs. Martin Doerfler of the Silverton Hills district was given a shower Thursday afternoon at the Silverton Hills community hall when a large number of friends gathered with gifts. Mrs. Doerfler will be remembered as Miss Jesse Hartley.

Mrs. Yvonne Smith has returned from a motor trip to southern California with Mrs. A. D. Kern and daughter, Annette, of Portland.

HER AUNT TOLD HER
"After my baby was born I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a better appetite and more strength. My aunt recommended it."
"This medicine helped me more than anything else. My appetite is improved. My nerves are steady. I have good color and feel stronger. I will write to women about the Vegetable Compound."
Mrs. Harvey Soper, 211 Green Street, Brooklyn, New York.

CHARM CHATS

By Eve VeVerka

Noted authority and beauty on health, charm and beauty

Next to the eyes, the hands are the most expressive parts of the human body. Hands reveal character in the same intangible manner as eyes. They express personality.

Do you not have friends whom you remember by their hands? A subtle little characteristic which haunts you when the friend is away, and which seems the most poignantly personal part of him when he is present.

Hands should be carefully studied and made more beautiful. Beautiful hands may be cultivated. Part of it is a comparatively simple matter of grooming. Of keeping the skin of the hands soft and pliable. Of presenting them always perfectly manicured.

But the most important beauty of the hand comes from within. The real part of beauty is that intangible something which emerges from the soul and rests softly as a breath upon the body. Hands must have soul. Hands must have character to be beautiful.

The most beautiful hands are not those of which poets sing. "Hands that are a dove-like flutter of wings" one carols. And another lauds the dawn pearl whiteness of his fair lady's hands. And still another speaks of a rhymer upon the mountain mist playing. All very beautiful, yet the lily white and petal smooth and daintily languorous hand is not beautiful to me.

I do not admire useless hands, nor useless people, however. Lovely they may be. They lack meaning. The most beautiful hands that I have ever seen were far from these rose leaf poses. They had once been dainty of form and smooth of texture. And even as I watch them lying in her lap, or holding a book, or busy — as they usually are — sewing, or carrying her beloved flowers, or stroking Bowdy the dog, or deep in the mysteries of a strawberry tart for dinner, there remains the indelible stamp of the aristocrat. The indelible character which the hands must always reveal is there.

The knuckles are a little large: all the hand is larger than in her lily-rose-wrapped youth. The skin is rather wrinkled, for she is far past the early bloom of youth. Both wrists have been broken, and the close observer is aware of a slight asymmetry.

But these things do not mar the loveliness of those hands. They but add to their beauty. They write the story that the years have told in their passing. They are tokens of the personality, the depth, the color, the richness of the soul whose bidding they do — without which depth there is no true beauty. My mother's hands will always be beautiful. Because her soul is beautiful.

And next to those hands the most beautiful I have ever seen are two little fists that are perennially grimy and grubby with all the nail-driving and tree climbing and digging and everything a fellow has to tend to when he's four. My young son's hands would never inspire the dainty phrases of a sonnet, but beautiful beyond any poet's words they are.

Now I am not advocating mud-pie making and tree-climbing as aids to hand beauty! But use these as illustrations of what I mean when I assert that hands to be beautiful must have character. I do not mean to picture my young ragamuffin's chubby fists as examples for you and for me in our search for beauty of hands. But I do mean that any sort of beauty deserving of the name, must have more than mere exterior perfection. The inner-self, moreover, in some mysterious fashion reveals itself through the body. A face, eyes or hands many times just miss being beautiful. There is an inner being of shallowness or ugliness, then this outer loveliness that could be — just isn't.

And hands reveal the inner self. If there is nothing within to reveal, no hidden beauty of spirit or character, then the hands advertise that shallowness. Poverty of the soul, drab grayness of mind, leanness of spirit, lack of meaning or color in the personality, those things settle upon any loveliness of form and destroy it utterly.

And so, if you would have beautiful hands, look for them first of all in your qualities of mind and heart.

Three new dresses for the price of one when you MAKE THEM YOURSELF

And so fine and supple are the new Fall woollens that even a novice can fashion smart clothes with them--

Surprising how one with little needle experience can fashion smart clothes for Autumn with the fine, soft woollens that come out of the great Botany looms.

And with the low prices prevailing one may easily have three dresses for the price of one. Visit this section for woollens tomorrow and inspect the new Fall fabrics at your leisure.

NEW WOOLENS

BOTANY WOOL PRINTS

Fashion says Sheer Woollens... and Botany express their sentiments by weaving these smart printed woollens that are ever so fine in texture and conform to fashion's dictates in pattern and color scheme. Pin checks in the new cinnamon brown and lighter than navy, small conservative designs on rich backgrounds that serve for dressy street or school ensemble—yd. 98c

54 INCH WOOL CREPE

Never have we shown qualities such as we present here in Botany wool crepes at anything less than double this price. At $1.69 yard one may fashion a frock or suit ensemble and save at least half to two-thirds. These are shown in the newest shades of deep wine, true navy, black and rich browns—yd. $1.69

54 INCH NUBELON TWEED

Nubelon tweed made by Botany is a medium sheer weight woolen of richly colored background flecked with silver or white contrast. Nubelon is an entirely new weave brought out this season. It is admirably suited for the smart street ensemble as well as frocks for school and sports wear—yd. $3.50

54 INCH POONA COATINGS

Poona, the new fall coating is extremely rich in weave. It has a crepe surface with a soft, nubby effect that instantly makes it the popular coat fabric of the new season. Poona is to be found only at Miller's. It is distinctly a Botany product coming to you direct from the looms. See the new Killie green and Zulu brown—yd. $2.39

54 INCH BOUNCANA COATINGS

Boucana is another Botany coating that is especially woven for the new fall coats on which one uses fur in a lavish manner. Boucana comes in deep wine or burgundy shades, new browns and blues as well as the ever popular black. An exclusive Miller showing—yd. $3.95
