COLUMBIA AIR ROUTE TERMED FLYING TUNNEL

Washington (AP)—Aviators in the Northwest fly nightly through a natural tunnel and live to tell about it.

This "tunnel," which recently has been lighted under the direction of the Aeronautics Branch of the department of Commerce, is bounded on two sides by the walls of the Columbia River gorge, and overhead by the fog. Perilous as it sounds, it is safe compared with the air region over the gorge, due to fog, difficulties of terrain, and heavy forestation.

As a result the idea of routing commercial planes right through the lower reaches of the gorge itself was hit upon. Here the wind keeps the route virtually free from fog, and all that is necessary is to follow a straight course to get through the 50-miles of tunnel from Portland, Ore., to Pasco, Wash. To this end flashing lights have been installed all along the route, green on one side and red on the other so the flier will make no mistake in his direction. In addition two powerful beacons have been installed on each side, and one at each extremity of the gorge. Aviators now may fly at a level of less than 20 feet in case of low fog, keep between the lights, and emerge unscathed.

WORLD'S LARGEST AMPHIBIAN ON TEST FLIGHT

A striking picture of the giant Sikorsky S-40, the world's largest land-sea plane, as it made its first successful test flight over Long Island sound at Stratford, Conn. The craft, capable of seating 45 passengers and carrying a load double their weight, will be put into South American commercial service.

VANDALS WRECK LINDY'S HOME IN MINNESOTA

Little Falls, Minn. (AP)—The contemplated journey of the Lindberghs to the Orient focuses attention upon the past exploits of the "flying colonel."

Perhaps the least known place is Lindbergh's boyhood home, a short distance south of here.

The tourist who seeks his birthplace will be disappointed if he expects to find the road well marked. He is told to drive "west of the Mississippi river bridge, then turn left at the Swedish church, this side of Pine Grove park." Upon following these directions the tourist finds an ordinary sand road.

After following the road for a mile and a half, he enters a "state game refuge," really the first effort of Minnesota to honor Lindbergh.

Driving through this park, one finds, tucked to a lone evergreen tree, an old piece of cardboard on which is printed the sign, "Picnic Grounds," and in smaller letters, "Lindy's Home."

At the left is a dilapidated frame house, boarded up, with broken windows, and much writing, clearly visible even from the road.

Entering the grounds an old gentleman, wearing the star of a Minnesota deputy sheriff, appeared.

"You're lookin' for Lindy's?" he demanded. "This is it. It was a swell place once. Now look at it. Tourists have made a mess of it."

Inquiry developed the information that the Lindbergh home-stand has been the object of "unwelcome" tourists since Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh flew his "Spirit of St. Louis" across the Atlantic ocean in 1927.

"I don't mind these folks that come up here and are polite," he continued, "but these young folks that climb into the house, break windows, and the like, and steal even the locks off doors, get my goat."

He said that Minnesota, which has taken over the grounds for the purpose of reconstructing the house in its original state, and make a state park of it, is doing what it can with the limited funds at its disposal.

Inside were pitiable evidence of tourists' lust. What had once been a beautiful mahogany cabinet stood in a corner, propped up by stray lumber because some tourist had stolen its solid base and even the glass which once had covered its doors.

An oak cabinet which had contained law books owned by "Lindy's" father, one-time congressman of the district, was empty. They were valued at several hundred dollars.

Throughout the house the destruction was the same. In the basement was what was left of the old Saxon open touring car which Lindbergh had once driven from this house to Little Falls before he knew much of aerial navigation. Some of the wheels, and bits of the chassis, too heavy to carry away, remained. Little was left of a private water system which had been installed many years before by "Lindy's" father.

On the second floor, where "Lindy" had had his boyhood workshop, were mutilated doors, sagging because more souvenir-hunters had stripped even the hinges.

High up in the gable of the roof was written in huge letters the name of some young man from an eastern state. Another bit of lettering proclaimed to the world that "so-and-so" had just been married. Beside it, another honeymoon couple, not to be outdone by the first, broadcast their bliss in even larger letters.

There is not a single inch of wainscoting on the house which has not been written upon.

Gervais—Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Cutforth arrived home Wednesday after spending ten days at Brettenbush springs. They reported very hot weather while there.

PEIPING GREETES LIVING BUDDHA

Beiping (AP)—Thousands of Tibetan Buddhists here are giving a hearty welcome to the "Living Buddha," the most powerful leaders in the Buddhist world. He is paying his first visit to the old capital. Chief-towns of the six leagues of Inner Mongolia, accompanied him.

The living Buddha dresses in a gown of yellow satin, a purple jacket and wears a Chinese hat inset with precious stones.

He said he came here to pay his respects to General Chang Hsueh-liang, chief representative of the central government in North China. General Chang has been a consistent friend of Buddhism, although not himself a professing Buddhist, and has entertained the Panchen Lama, a living Buddha of Tibet in Mukden.

The Inner Mongolian visitors hope to persuade General Chang to improve conditions in that district. Bandits have become active everywhere on account of civil wars, and trade has almost completely disappeared. Thousands of Inner Mongolians are destitute.

Albany Woman Builds Telescope

Albany, N. Y. (AP)—Mrs. Thomas A. Jenkins owns a six-inch reflecting telescope which she made.

The mirror, which Mrs. Jenkins placed on exhibition at an amateur astronomers' meeting at Springfield, Vt., brought forth much admiration. Several telescope authorities declared it was the best amateur six-inch mirror made in some time.

Mrs. Jenkins devoted six months to grinding the glass with an emery wheel and a barrel in her apartment district. The mirror had to be ground first to the rough, then to the focal point and finally to a perfect focal point.

The mirror, it is said, is capable of distinguishing the rings of Saturn. In order to be able to do this, a telescope requires the finest of grinding and polishing.

Air Lines Busy

London (AP)—Belgian Air Lines carried 9,455 passengers and 520,964 pounds of merchandise during 1930. Mail carriers included 49,094 pounds of letters and 35,311 pounds of postal parcels. The total distance covered, according to an official company statement, by the lines was 711,196 miles, with a regularity of 98.1 per cent.

TOWN REBUILDS

Dalhart, Tex. (AP)—From the wreckage left in the wake of a cyclone several weeks ago Sedan, N. M., 37 miles west of Dalhart, is gradually rebuilding. A new merchandise store building was opened and construction is well under way on a modern $18,000 school plant. Several residences were also demolished.

Gervais—Mrs. Sumner Stevens and two nieces were accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Roy Williams of Corvallis, all making a motor trip to Concrete, Wash., where they will visit another sister, Mrs. Bob Marzthy, for a few days.

EXPLAIN SIMILARITY OF ROASTING PROCESS AND HOUR-GLASS

Hills Bros.' Patented Process Produces a Fine, Even Roast Because Coffee Berries Pass Through the Roasters "a Little at a Time"

A stream of sand sifting from a globe on top through a narrow neck into a corresponding globe on the bottom... that's an hour-glass. And just its accuracy depends upon an even, continuous flow... a little at a time... so the matchless, uniform flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee is produced by Controlled Roasting—Hills Bros.' patented process that roasts evenly, continuously... a little at a time.

Temperature and flow of coffee through the roasters are automatically controlled with this process. As a result, every berry is roasted to the degree that assures perfect flavor in every pound. Bulk-roasting methods seldom achieve such a thing.

It is Controlled Roasting that gives Hills Bros. Coffee a flavor no other coffee has. Insist on Hills Bros. Coffee. It is packed in vacuum cans. Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is removed and kept out of these cans. Even ordinary, "air-tight" cans won't keep coffee fresh. But Hills Bros. Coffee is ever-fresh. Order some today. Ask for it by name, and look for the Arab trademark on the can.

A DINING-ROOM TRAGEDY!

TABLES spread with delicious food... most of it soft, highly refined—lacking in the "bulk" and iron your body must have to keep well and strong.

This is the dining-room tragedy that occurs daily in millions of homes. No wonder most people suffer from constipation. No wonder headaches, backaches, and dull days are frequent!

Just add one delicious food to your table—and you will help correct all this suffering. Add Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in some form every day.

ALL-BRAN adds the necessary "bulk" or "roughage"—and iron—that is so often lacking in our diet today. This bulk is needed to prevent constipation—to sweep the system clean of poisonous wastes—to exercise the intestines and keep them healthy.

ALL-BRAN is delicious as a cereal with milk or cream. Sprinkle over other cereals or use in cooking.

Two tablespoons daily are guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. In severe cases with each meal. At your grocer's—in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
