ACCIDENT SENDS YOUTH TO HOSPITAL

Arthur Tucker, 18, was in a Salem hospital here Friday forenoon with a broken elbow as the result of an automobile accident north of town Thursday afternoon.

Davis, a traveling companion, was staying at the Y. M. C. A., waiting recovery of his friend. The youths, sons of American missionaries in China, who recently landed in Los Angeles, were on their way to Ohio where they expected to enter college. Their car skidded in loose gravel near Lake Labish and overturned. The machine was virtually demolished.

Tucker is the son of Dr. Francis Tucker, superintendent of a hospital at Tehow, Shantung, who was recently exonerated after shooting and fatally wounding a Chinese who was looting the hospital.

Davis is the son of Professor W. W. Davis of Yenching university, Peking. He stated Friday he did not know when they would proceed to Ohio, their stay here depending upon the seriousness of Tucker's injuries. Davis was somewhat bruised but was not otherwise injured.

A year ago, he said, about 180,000 men were employed as the result of federal construction.

WILKINS WILL GO UNDER ICE

Berlin (AP)—Sir Hubert Wilkins, pushing into the Arctic in the submarine Nautilus, radioed the newspaper Acht Uhr Blatt Friday that the submarine had penetrated the ice pack zone 20 miles, travelling eight knots an hour through floating ice. Navigation was very difficult, the message said.

"Floating icefields ahead already are becoming thicker," the message said, "and soon we expect to strike more compact masses.

"When we sight icefields that seem suitable for a diving trial we will halt and proceed to submerge. If the first about trials are satisfactory we will proceed northward with caution."

He passed Charles Foreland early Thursday morning and headed north to where whaling vessels told us two weeks ago we would find the ice limit.

"There were snowstorms all that day and high north winds which shifted to the east, sending the temperature down and turning the snow to hail which bombarded our deck. At 80 degrees 12 minutes north latitude we reached the edge of the pack ice, steering easily with our electric motor through the floes.

"The ice apparently was driven south by the wind, and since it seemed to stretch far to the west and east we decided to steer as far north as possible. Probably we have to leave to somewhere tonight to prepare for our first cruise under the ice."

AGED COUPLE WILL REMARRY

Chicago (AP)—An 88 year old man and an 80 year old woman who were divorced in 1897 after living together for 28 years, are going to be married again next Saturday.

"I don't know just where it will be, though, our great-great-grandchildren are attending to that," said Norville Williams, the bridegroom-to-be, after getting the license.

"It was the great-great-grandchildren and the grandchildren, and the children who brought us back together again after all these years," he explained, "but I always wanted to go back anyway, because Emma was my first love and I never forgot her."

The couple first were married in August, 1868. After their five children were grown they were divorced in 1897. In 1913, Mrs. Williams was married to Norville Martin. Williams was married again the same year. Martin died two years ago. Williams' second wife died this year. Then the great-great-grandchildren got busy.

ANOTHER RECORD MADE BY HAWKS

Fort Worth, Texas (AP)—Frank Hawks, former army captain and author of "Speed", listed another record Friday among his many conquests of the air after flying from New York to Fort Worth in 7 hours, 57 minutes.

Hawks left New York at 9:50 a. m. Thursday, pointed his low-winged monoplane westward, landed at Evansville, Ind., for fuel, climbed back up into the sky so high he ran into a snowstorm, and landed here at 4:40 o'clock in the afternoon with copies of New York morning papers under his arm. He had traveled 1400 miles at a speed of 187 miles per hour.

The man who turned to setting air records after a colorful career as actor, lieutenant, banker, soldier, rancher, barnstormer and oil field worker, came here to meet his mother, Mrs. Mae Hawks, who lives in California.

STORY OF HOLD-UP INVENTED BY BOY

Fearful of what his uncle would say when he learned that he had taken his automobile for a joy ride up the Willamette valley instead of merely going to Vancouver as he had been directed, caused Carroll Harvey, 18, to invent a story of being held up and robbed about three miles north of Salem Thursday afternoon, after his gas supply had run out.

As a result of the hoax, Harvey is in the Oregon reformatory institution from where he was paroled to his uncle a few years ago.

Harvey was directed by his uncle to make a trip to Vancouver, he admits. After reaching there he decided to make a more extended journey and started south out of Portland. Within three miles north of Salem the gas tank became empty. Fearing his uncle's wrath he told a filling station operator he had been held up and the latter immediately got in touch with local officers. Questioned, Harvey finally told the truth about the matter.

Doak's letter was in reply to one from Green on the situation at the dam containing a complaint from the Las Vegas central labor union that the prevailing rate of wages in that locality was not being paid by the contractors.

The message also complained of employment and working conditions.

Secretary Doak said the Hoover dam project does not come under the provisions prescribing that government contractors pay their workers at the prevailing local rate.

The Dalles, Ore. (AP)—David Rutz, driver of an Asbury Transportation company gasoline truck, and trailer, late Thursday was fined $5 and $4.50 costs by Justice of the Peace H. G. Meredith, for driving without either an operator's or chauffeur's license.

BRITAIN TAKES HASTY ACTION ON FINANCES

London (AP)—Great Britain marshalled her best minds Friday in an effort to solve her grave financial problem.

The cabinet, which has been in almost continuous session for several days, was summoned hastily to a special session Friday.

The meeting was called after hours of consultation at No. 10 Downing street, between leading members of the government and representative of the conservative and liberal parties.

It is understood the representatives of the two opposition parties would return to Downing street to receive the cabinet's reply to their objections to the government's re-drafted proposals for national economy.

The burden of the grave negotiations, involving the seemingly hopeless task of finding $600,000,000 additional revenue to run the country next year, was mainly being borne by Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald, and Philip Snowden, the crippled chancellor of the exchequer, with the financial wizardry of the latter strained to the utmost.

Several members of the ministry returned to Downing street while the conservatives and liberals were still there.

With the socialist government seemingly baffled by the problem, no party was eager to take the entire responsibility of meeting the crisis. There was unofficial talk of a possible coalition government, such as handled the country's affairs in the difficult days of the war. Such a government would include the leading men of the socialists, conservatives and liberals.

She is still a regular attendant at the army meetings and an active worker, although now in her 77th year. The article is supplemented by two pictures of its subject, one taken 30 years ago and one as she now appears.

TRIBUTE IS PAID MRS. BURGHARDT

More than 200 people paid tribute to the precious memory of Mrs. William H. Burghardt, Jr., at funeral services held Friday morning at 10 o'clock in the Burghardt family residence on Union street. A profusion of floral offerings also testified to the esteem held for woman who for years had been a leader in the musical and cultural life in this city.

The dignified burial service of the Episcopal church was read by Rev. George Swift, rector of St. Paul's church. In a few added remarks of comfort, Rev. Mr. Swift mentioned the emphasis which Mrs. Burghardt placed upon the beautiful things in life, her faith in humanity and the high courage with which she suffered for months the incurable malady which took her life Wednesday morning.

Preceding the funeral service, a record of classical music chosen by Mrs. Burghardt before her death was played. During the service, Miss Josephine Burghardt sang "Sheep and Lamb" by Sidney Howe, with Miss Genevieve Thayer at the piano.

A large cortege accompanied the remains to Oregon City, where they were interred in the Catholic cemetery. Pallbearers were Paul Wallace, Chester Cox, Dr. Wilson McNary, Fred Thielens, Frank Hughes and Earl Jensen.

WALLA WALLA IS INVITED TO

Walla Walla, Wash. (AP)—Wheat growers, bankers, business men and national representatives from four northwest states are being invited to come here Wednesday, August 26, to take concerted action on the Walla Walla wheat surplus control plan.

Representative John W. Sumners said Senator Charles L. McNary, Oregon, author of farm relief legislation, Senator Wesley L. Jones, Washington, and delegations from other states were being invited. Messages from numerous officials endorsing the plan are arriving here, several copies of messages sent to the farm board urging adoption being included.

The plan calls for the sale by the farm board of back surplus wheat to farmers at the market price, with the understanding the acreage that would produce that equivalent would not be seeded this fall.

Summers gave his support to the plan, also reiterating his request made to the farm board several weeks ago, that it sell "the largest possible amount of surplus wheat on the best terms that can be made with their government." He also said he favored the McKelvie idea that ample provision be made at this time to care for those in America who may be hungry next winter.

"There is an abundance of wheat in America to supply all the demands after the Walla Walla surplus wheat control plan is put in operation, he said.

"We are receiving a large number of communications from public officials and organizations dealing with relief and there is a large measure of favorable response to the movement originating in Mr. Gifford's appointment," he continued.

There is a "very evident resolution on the part of these men and women to meet the situation."
