New Year's Eve Parties Varied

New Year's eve parties rang out the old and rang in the new in varied fashion last night. Solemnly marked the final hour of the numerous watch parties held in the various churches in the capital city Thursday night, but at the four large dances and at the innumerable small parties in various homes the new year was greeted with gay revelry and noise.

The major portion of Salem society was entertained at one or the other of the three large dances in the city, which included the Tillamook club dinner dance at the Hotel Marion, the Subscription dance at the Masonic temple and the Wisteria club dance at Castilian hall. Guests from all three clubs, together with country club members motored out late in the evening to the Illabe country club house where dancing continued until 2 o'clock. In the morning, the dances were inspirational for many impromptu and informal breakfast parties in the early morning hours.

Mrs. Clifford Brown was hostess at her annual New Year's eve "open house" to a coterie of intimate friends who came informally from dances and other private parties to be her guests at a midnight buffet supper. The same group has met each New Year's eve at Mrs. Brown's home, and Miss Vivian Bretherton of Portland motored down for the evening to be with her sister, Mrs. Brown.

Among other dinners and suppers arranged about the dances was the large no-host dinner at the Salem country clubhouse preceding the Subscription club dance; the dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Siegmund for Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman McDonald and Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Mackenzie before the Wisteria club dance. Supper parties at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Wilbur and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hansen were among several following the Wisteria club dance.

A number of the younger set were guests of Tommy and Roderick Livesley at an informal dance at the Livesley home during the early hours of the evening. Later the entire group attended the midnight matinee and followed the theater party with a late supper at the home of Edwin Cross.

Mrs. Bush

Entertains Pupils

Mrs. Jessie Bush entertained her piano pupils with New Year's parties Wednesday afternoon and evening. The afternoon party was held at her home for the younger children, who were entertained with table games. Later refreshments were served and toys distributed. The older pupils were entertained by Mrs. Bush in the Green Gate room at the Spa Wednesday evening. Riddles and short stories provided amusement for the group and later refreshments were served.

Guests of Mrs. Bush for the two parties were Mary Elizabeth Sisson, Donald Clagson, Richard Springer, Jerome Tasto, Marjorie and Frances Roseman, Shirley McKay, Dorothy Johnson, Douglas and Mary Lou McKay, Doris Doughton, Jimmy Phillips, Barbara Rickerts, Marjorie Hoereth, Berenice Boyce, Pauline and Abigail Miller, Hume Downs, Wendell Johnson, Clare Marshall, Arlene Wilkoff, Audrey Shay, Mary Esther Pemberton, Dorothy Engelbart, Patty McCarthy, Jean Lois Victor, Pauline Trager, Elizabeth Otjen, Jewel Miller, Tom Rilea, Arlie Dorance, Russell Beardsley, Mary Frances Henderson, Jean Hewitt, Flavia Downs, Vera Jean Huber, Shirley and Edith Thomas, Fuster and Shirley Cronmiller, Doris McCallister, Rachel Pemberton, John Van-Osdel, Frances Ellis, Catherine Dallas and Jack and Bill Bush.

Jack and Bill Bush assisted Mrs. Bush in entertaining and in serving refreshments.

Members of the K. C. K. T. club were entertained Thursday afternoon at her home by Mrs. A. A. Graber. Mrs. Fred Barker assisted her at the tea hour. Those present were Mrs. Bert Waller, Mrs. Ray Clark, Mrs. Nellie Knox, Mrs. Hattie Given, Mrs. Otto Schellberg, Miss Jeanette Graber, Mrs. T. C. McIntire, Mrs. Lena Thompson, Mrs. Fred Barker, Mrs. Alice Pugh, Miss Kathryn Barker and Mrs. Graber. Mrs. Given will be the next hostess to the club group.
