

MINERS ATTACK MILITARY MEN

Athens, Ohio, March 21 (AP)—An automobile bearing Ohio national guard officers to mine No. 6 of the Sunday Creek Coal company where a strike of miners is in progress, was stoned by a crowd of men today. The windshields, windows and headlights of the machine were smashed but the officers escaped injury.

The guard officers, sent into the strike region as observers for Adjutant General Frank Henderson, were ordered to Mill Field to relieve 16 other officers who had been on duty during the night. As the car approached the mine, members of the crowd of men hurled rocks at it. The officers turned about and drove back to Nelsonville and reported the incident to General Henderson at Columbus and Sheriff Wayne Wingett, of Athens county.

The guard officers estimated there were about 1,500 men in the Millfield district today, and many of them were said to be armed. "Professional agitators" were blamed by Governor White for the disorders.

In a statement recalling recent instances of intimidation of working miners and threatened destruction of property, the governor ordered units of the Ohio national guard "to be prepared to move to the district immediately in the event further contempt of the law is shown, or the continuance of acts which threaten the loss of life and property."

"This violence, this disgraceful lawlessness can no longer be tolerated," the governor said. "It will be put down by force of arms if necessary and those found guilty will be summarily punished. Laws, rights, and privileges have been dragged in the dust and those responsible must suffer the penalty."

"Those striking have the right to strike and to picket and I shall protect them in the exercise of their rights. But they do not have the right to assault or shoot at persons desiring to work, or the right to destroy property. Those who wish to work and make a living for their families also have the right to do so and I shall afford them the protection which is their due."

Japanese War Against Soviet To Unite China And Russia Says Trotsky

By J. D. QUIRK
World Copyright, 1932, by United Press

Istanbul, Turkey, March 21 (UP)—A Japanese war against the Soviet Union probably would unite the overwhelming man power and resources of Russia and China in a historic struggle against the island empire, in the opinion of Leon Trotsky, the exiled Russian revolutionary and military genius.

In an interview with the United Press, bearing on the present conflict in the far east, Trotsky said that Japan is going to stick up to the knees in the "fat soil of Manchuria."

The energetic little revolutionist, who performed a modern military miracle by creating the Soviet's Red army when he stood beside Lenin at the head of the bolshevik state, is well qualified to analyze the Russian position in the Orient conflict, which has now spread along the Siberian frontier.

His conclusions on the present situation are:
1. Japan is aiming to colonize China—but she will fail.
2. Many Japanese statesmen and others besides the Japanese are convinced that a conflict with Russia is inevitable.
3. Russia does not want war and it could develop only if Japan, with consent of stronger allies, provoked it.
His conditions on the military event of war are:
1. Japan could strike at Russia only after consolidating her position in Manchuria.
2. While there might be some Japanese success in an advance westward, the difficulties of Japan

WOMEN AMONG COAL STRIKERS

Scranton, Pa., March 21 (AP)—Women pickets took a prominent part today in the unsanctioned anthracite strike and as a result many of them were among the 96 persons arrested in the vicinity of the Marvino colliery of the Hudson Coal company.

The strike, which was called by insurgent members of the United Mine Workers and does not have the authorization of the district union, entered upon its second week. It was called by a group of local leaders headed by Thomas Maloney, recently defeated candidate for district president of the union, on demands for equalization of employment and discontinuance of alleged wage cutting.

A large crowd gathered about the Marvino mine and 90 persons, alleged to have been picketing, were arrested. Last Saturday 102 persons were arrested, most of them being immediately released.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., March 21 (AP)—Authorities throughout the anthracite region where an insurgent faction of the union attempted last week to organize a strike prepared to guard miners going to work today as most collieries scheduled operations.
