NURSE ACCUSED OF POISON ATTEMPT

enough for extradition of the accused woman. Mrs. Foltz is said, however, to have told the sheriff at Red Bluff that she intended to return to Oregon in a week or two.

Both the Donaldsons and Mrs. Foltz are well known in the Woodburn district. The criminal information, signed by Mrs. Donaldson, charges that while Mrs. Foltz was attending Mrs. Donaldson as her nurse following a surgical operation she administered to her a dose of lysol in fruit juice instead of the medicine prescribed by her physician. She alleges that the lysol was given with intent to kill or injure her.

The alleged administration of the poison took place November 4, last, according to Mrs. Donaldson's affidavit, while she was in bed at her home in Woodburn after the operation.

She states that the attending physician had prescribed two teaspoonsful of medicine to be taken in fruit juice, and that the nurse went into another room from that in which the medicine was kept and put a large quantity of lysol in the glass instead of the medicine.

Mrs. Donaldson said that when she felt the liquid burning her mouth she expelled it sufficiently to save her life. After giving her the dose she says Mrs. Foltz fled from the premises and never again returned.

Later, Mrs. Donaldson swears that she found to her own proof and satisfaction "that Mina Foltz was infatuated and carrying on a clandestine relationship" with J. J. Donaldson, husband of the patient.

Donaldson himself signs an affidavit reading as follows:

"That I am the husband of Mrs. J. J. Donaldson, and was at our home when the poison was administered to my wife by Mrs. Mina Foltz, who was a nurse there. In addition thereto, from my physical condition and mental state, I truly believe, and therefore say, that the said Mina Foltz administered to me some kind of a narcotic or drug in the preparation of my food, both during the time that she made the attempt to poison my wife and for some time thereafter.

"That the woman has in some manner had undue influence over me, and that she has continually attempted to poison my mind with me against my wife, and that from her conversation I know and feel that she had a criminal inclination toward her so that she might be put out of my life, and that said Mina Foltz could attempt then, in my condition, and control me as she desired."

Because of the serious nature of the charge Justice of the Peace Hayden required the affidavits before issuing the warrant.

County Judges Differ On Proposal To Cut Motor Vehicle Licenses

County Commissioner J. E. Smith, recently named by Governor Meier as a member of a committee to investigate the matter of reduction of automobile license fees and report to the next legislature, is beginning to receive replies from county judges to a questionnaire he sent out to them asking for their opinions on the matter of how the reduction could best be effected with the least damage to efficiency.

Three replies have been received and the variance in these gives indication of what a wide difference of opinion there will be when all of the answers are all in.

County Judge C. P. Barnard of Lane county writes the most exhaustive letter of any of the three in as it is a matter he has given study and thought to for a number of years. He declares that the income from the state highway commission should be maintained at its present level until such a time as bonds for construction have been retired or very materially reduced.

He states that a reduction in the automobile license fees of one-third and an addition of 1 cent per gallon on gasoline would probably bring about the same income "and it would seem the question to decide would be first, the amount needed to pay the interest and retire the bonds in their regular order. Next, the amount necessary for the overhead expenses, maintenance of all highways and depreciation of the equipment owned by the state highway department."

These, states Judge Barnard, are the necessary running expenses and the income is now fairly established and it would seem, he says, that the state commission can guage its income and budget the amount as closely as the county courts, as they must depend upon the amount of tax money they receive and not what they are presumed to receive. If, he says, they were tied down to a fixed amount as nearly as possible for new construction they would be in the same position as the county courts and could make out their budget the first of the year, carry out the program and be relieved of a lot of pressure for roads which were not on their program for that year. He declares it to be impossible for them to build all the roads asked for but the work should go on in an orderly manner each year. While, he admits the state commission's problem is one much bigger than that of the county courts, "if they can make a reduction in the income in a satisfactory manner to the public, a reduction would be much appreciated, but if a reduction is going to cripple the highway department we do not think the automobiles are paying more tax than they are entitled to pay when you consider that the full benefits are returned to the public who pay this tax, but probably an adjustment lowering the license fee with an offset on the gasoline tax of an equal amount, would be a fairer tax. . . . If the license fee was reduced one-third and 1 cent added to the gasoline tax, giving us one-half of the income from the license fees instead of one-third, the counties would receive the same as they do at the present time which would probably be more simple than giving them the 1 cent to be added to the gas tax."

J. M. King, county judge of Jefferson county, writes favoring a 35 per cent reduction on pleasure cars with no reduction on trucks, buses or for hire cars. He declares he is opposed to any increase in the gasoline tax by either state or government and that 1 cent now should go to the counties and not apply on secondary highways. He takes a fling at state control of county road building by saying if "we were able to get back to normalcy and reduce expenses we will have to get away from state supervision and we cannot be controlled by the state commission and give the tax payers full value."

County Judge J. H. Jeffreys of Hood River county declares in favor of cutting license tax for pleasure cars a full 50 per cent. He says he is not prepared to say what should be done in his opinion as to licensing buses and trucks but is inclined at this time to believe that should be left as it is. He would distribute the tax among the counties prorated on the basis of the loss sustained by reason of reduction of the motor vehicle license tax, and increase the gas tax 1 cent a gallon.

SENSATIONAL JAILBREAK TO TOLEDO FUTILE

Toledo, March 21 (AP)—A bold delivery from the Lincoln county jail here early yesterday of three prisoners facing trial on federal liquor charges and the hijacking of a large quantity of liquor held as evidence enjoyed but a short lived success.

After a few hours of freedom the three prisoners were again in jail and the seven men whom police charged with having effected the delivery by means of an acetylene torch outfit were also behind bars, three held at Corvallis and four in Tillamook.

William Kerr, Charles Ryall and Stanley Babcock, all claiming to be from Vancouver, B. C., were the three prisoners facing federal charges after their capture in Portland more than a month ago following the wrecking and burning of their motor craft, the Sea Island, at Whale Cove February 7.

Seven men riding in a sedan and two trucks arrived at the jail about midnight Saturday. The acetylene torch outfit which police say they brought from Portland was rigged up and the visitors cut through two steel slab doors and the steel bars of the cell room to free the prisoners, then used the torch to cut through still another steel door into the store room where the liquor recovered from the wreck of the Sea Island was stored.

Hurriedly the men loaded the liquor onto the trucks, which, each now carrying two men and preceded by the sedan with six men in it, started for Portland over the Coast highway.

Late Saturday, however, officers at Tillamook had received a mysterious warning that something was likely to happen down the coast, and when this warning was later repeated, they left for Toledo. Before reaching here they met Sheriff McIlwain who told them the news. They wheeled about and hurried after two trucks they had passed on the way down.

With leveled pistols the officers stopped the trucks and arrested Nels Kruger, George Fisher, Elbert Johnson and Arthur Adams, all claiming to be from Seattle. They were taken to the Tillamook county jail. Police said two of the men, one riding on each truck, were armed. Search of the trucks revealed 275 cases of bonded liquor, a drum of alcohol and a drum of whiskey.

Meanwhile officers speeding from the east overtook the sedan and arrested its six occupants, all of whom were armed. Besides the three escaped prisoners three men giving their names as Paul Remaley, Bert Chapman and Sydney Carrick and their address as Portland, were arrested. Police, however, believe they are from Seattle.

The officers said they thought the entire 10 are members of a coastwise rum-running clique.

SOVIET TROOPS SHOOT WOMEN DEFENDERS

children in barrels and driving down along the river bank as though they intended to get water out through holes in the ice.

When the coast was clear they would whip up their horses and race across the ice to the Rumanian shore. One wagon was said to have reached Rumania but the others were reported to have been intercepted and the occupants shot.

New reports of an uprising in the Ukraine were circulating here today.

The reports were unverified, but they came from the Bessarabian border and said the 282d Soviet infantry regiment refused to fire on a group of revolting peasants, following which a number of the soldiers were executed for mutiny.

In order to prevent further escape of Ukrainian peasants across the Dniester river into Rumania, the reports said, a two-kilometer zone has been established along the Russian side of the river, under a state of siege, and order have been issued to shoot on sight any civilians found within the zone.

Reports frequently come from the Rumanian frontier of violence seen across the river in Ukraine. Generally the stories tell how refugees, fleeing across the frozen river are overtaken and shot by the Soviet frontier guard.

The destruction of churches or their conversion to other uses in Russia is a familiar story.

Last year the Cathedral of the Redeemer, Moscow's largest church, was demolished to make room for a great modern structure to be known as the palace of the Soviets. The Kazan cathedral at Leningrad is to be converted into the largest anti-religious museum in Soviet Russia.
