

FORECAST CUT CUBE BUTTER FOR WEEK END

Portland, May 21 (AP)—The cutting of cube butter prices on the produce exchange for the week-end sessions was forecast and generally expected. Extra, prime first and first were each down 1 cent pound for the session with standard off 1/2 cent. The standard was recently cut 1/2 cent, therefore its quotation for recent days showed the sharpest cut. With the make of butter still of huge volume and increasing generally at practically all Pacific Northwest points, the trade has been hard put recently to find a suitable outlet, inasmuch as California has been full of butter.

BARKER CHOSEN AS GRADUATION DAY SPEAKER

Burt Brown Barker, vice president of the University of Oregon, former resident of Salem and prominent throughout the state as a speaker, has been secured to deliver the commencement day address to members of the graduating class of Salem senior high school, Friday, June 3, at the Elsinore theater. Announcement of the selection of a speaker to address the largest graduating class in the history of Salem high school was made Saturday by Superintendent George Hug.

Mr. Brown, who years ago attended the old Central school in Salem, for a number of years has desired to make the commencement day address but it was not until this year that circumstances were such that it could be arranged. He wired his acceptance from Pendleton.

With the exception of a few minor details, virtually all plans for the graduating exercises are now complete. Rev. Grover T. Birtcher of the First Presbyterian church will deliver the baccalaureate sermon from his pulpit Sunday night, May 29.

It is hoped the exercises at the Elsinore theater can be run off within two hours although it is realized that with more than 340 diplomas to hand out, the process will necessarily be a long one. Principal Wolf believes this process can be speeded up through a more systematic method of getting the students on and off the stage.

MT. ANGEL WILL CONTINUE PACK; RUMORS DENIED

MT. Angel—Rumors that the Mt. Angel Producers Packing company would not run this year are untrue, as preparations to put up the usual pack of berries is being made by the cannery, according to J. Forrest Sauvain, manager. The boiler has been repaired and everything is now ready for the coming season, which will start with the canning of gooseberries Friday or Saturday of this week.

After the gooseberries, canning of strawberries will start. All the growers who delivered berries here last year will be taken care of by the cannery this year.

A great deal of discussion has been going on over the strawberry situation. The cannery in Salem is reported to have made growers holding 6c contracts an offer of 2c on their contracted tonnage for releasing the company from the contracts and the growers keeping the berries. Other canneries are reported standing by their contracts.

Cooperative canneries are taking their patrons' crop and will pay what the processed berries bring when sold. The strawberry season, as present does not look so rosy. Local growers, however, will probably realize enough from their berries to justify picking. The home canning of this fruit will be much in evidence this season.

CRITICS LOUD IN PRAISES OF WELCH YOUTH

London (AP)—The critics here are loud in their praise of Harold Rubens, Welsh boy-pianist and "infant prodigy," who landed in less than four years how to move his hammer-like little fingers up and down a piano keyboard quicker than a mechanical piano.

About the size of the average eight-year-old boy, Harold, in a neat blue velvet coat and knicker and white shirt, made his public debut here at a Sunday concert given at Dorchester House. His audience included relatives of the King; Prince Arthur of Connaught and Lord and Lady Carisbrooke, who congratulated him after the concert.

Beethoven, Chopin, Liszt, Paderewski, Percy Grainger, Gwyn Williams and Villa Lobes were the composers on Harold's program. Most of the pieces he played called for a hand twice the size of the boy's own. A cushion had to be placed on his chair to enable him to reach the keys of the huge concert grand on which he played. The result of this was to force him to stretch his small legs each time he had to use the pedals.

After the concert his teacher, Maria Levinskaya, creator of a system claimed to have revolutionized piano teaching, coaxed Harold out of his timidity into answering questions. Thus it was revealed that the young artist adores jazz, does not know Lloyd George, and prefers Chopin and Beethoven as far as composers are concerned, although in the jazz line, Gershwini is "not so bad as the others." His hobby is Rugby. He always saves two cents out of his weekly earnings to bet on Rugby matches.

Harold is eleven even though he looks eight. He was born in Cardiff. His mother is a Welsh woman, an elementary school teacher. His father is a Russian naturalized British before the war, a drapery salesman.

The vote for this nomination was Melson 1378; Heater 1720; King 1688; Porter 1334; Jocky 1291.

WASHINGTON OF FRENCH DESCENT

Paris (AP)—The announcement by Prof. Albert Buerdel that George Washington was of French descent through the old Huguenot Nicholas Martiau, has caused clamoring among the Protest families of that name in the region of Nantes, who wonder if they should not inherit some of the properties of the President, including Mount Vernon.

Upon the announcement by Professor Buerdel that Washington's only European Continental ancestry had been traced to the Huguenot Martiau, a search was made by interested descendants to trace that family. The name is uncommon in French and none of the family lives among the residents here. Unless the name has been changed by later generations, the only possible descendants of the Huguenot Martiau are a dozen families living in Brittany.

There is a baker at Nantes by that name, several seamen, several farmers, and a very wealthy shipowner. Most of them are Protestants. There is no trace in the records of the town of Nantes of Nicholas Martiau, but that is not surprising, for three fires have destroyed many records.

The Huguenots, previously, could claim blood kinship with four other Presidents, Roosevelt, Taft, Garfield, and Tyler. Nicholas Martiau, who was born in France in 1591, migrated to America in 1630, and died in Yorktown in 1657. Through his daughter Elizabeth, who married Colonel George Reader, he became the earliest American ancestor of George Washington.

They made the trip over the Wasplatte cut-off in nine and a quarter hours and returned by way of the John Day and Columbia River highways.
