Germany Firm For Arms Equality
Berlin, Sept. 21 (AP)—President Hoover's statement recommending that Germany remain in the world disarmament conference while seeking arms equality was received respectfully on the Wilhelmstrasse today and in official circles it was said it illustrated the need of real disarmament in the same Germany always has advocated.

The hope was expressed that the statement would influence the powers at Geneva to that end, but at the same time it was firmly intimated that Germany could not re-enter the conference unconditionally and must stand by her equality demands.

DAVIS ON TRIAL FOR PROMOTING L.O.O.M. LOTTERY

New York, Sept. 21 (AP)—The loyal order of Moose always wanted funds for its charitable work and, witnesses said today, its supreme dictator, United States Senator James J. Davis, advocated "good clean, wholesome entertainment" to raise them.

This was brought out in federal court where Davis is on trial charged with violation of federal statutes prohibiting lotteries. The government sought to show that Davis' "wholesome entertainment" was a lottery.

Malcolm R. Giles, Moose supreme secretary and controller of its 1,700 lodges, recalled the Moose 1929 convention. The minutes were read to show Davis made a speech in which he said that "Brother Theodore Miller will show the lodges how to raise money through good clean, wholesome entertainment."

Miller, head of the Moose propagation department, was one of the six others indicted with Davis. They are to be tried later.

"Did Senator Davis ever talk to you about his objections to gambling as a means of fund-raising?" Charles H. Tuttle, chief of defense counsel asked Giles.

"Always," he replied, adding that Davis was particularly opposed to the "punch-board" method.

Giles was asked to describe the new methods mentioned in Davis' convention speech.

Miller, he said, centralized the agencies for raising funds.

"In 1929 Mr. Miller occupies a position within the order?" he was asked.

"Yes, he was secretary of the general assembly."

The propagation department was the name under which Miller operated for the 1930 charity ball but not before, Giles said.

"Was Senator Davis' attitude regarding gambling for fund raising 'it was,'" Tuttle asked.

"It was," Tuttle asked.

HOOPER PLANS IOWA SPEECH

Washington, Sept. 21 (AP)—President Hoover's campaign speech at Des Moines, Iowa, on October 4 will be one of not more than three major political addresses by the president between now and the November election, Secretary of Treasury Mills said today after an hour's conference with the chief executive.

Mills has been advising advocates of the national stump tour against some of Mr. Hoover's advisers. His assertions regarding the president's plans were taken as definitely closing that possibility.

The president is going to have a hard time living up to the standard set in his speech of acceptance," Mills said. "I think any speaker can say about all he has to say in three or four speeches, and after that he begins to repeat himself."

Mills said he and the president had gone over the campaign "pretty thoroughly." He said the Iowa speech would not be devoted entirely to farm problems, but would deal generally with that and other economic problems facing the nation.

YOUTH TOO GOOD FOR CURFEW BILL

Gerwyn, Ill., Sept. 21 (AP)—Voicing alarm at drinking and petty vice among boys and girls under 15, Alderman Charles Treger introduced an ordinance establishing a 10 p. m. curfew for children. It came up in council meeting last night.

Alderman Carl Anderson defended Berwyn's boys and girls as being "too good" to need a curfew. The north Berwyn Taxpayers association also protested. The association's most effective trust was this sentence:

"If you can't do anything better for our benefit than this, don't try to raise our children for us."

The ordinance was referred to the judiciary committee, with prospects it would be shelved.

Mrs. F. Fremont, who brought the child east three years ago, refused the father overnight custody of the boy. Then Vice Chancellor Malcolm G. Buchanan turned the boy over to his father.

HOOPER NOT TO TOUR NATION

Washington, Sept. 21 (AP)—President Hoover has won his fight against anxious republican advisers who wanted him to make a country-wide speaking tour. He will make the first of three major speeches for re-election on October 4 at Des Moines, Ia.

The president has definitely and finally decided against stumping the nation in a belated personal appeal to the voters, political observers close to the chief executive are convinced.

The brief announcement of his Des Moines address said "The president will return immediately to Washington after his speech. He will make no other addresses en route. Time and place of other addresses have not yet been arranged."

The statement, issued by Chairman Everett Sanders of the republican national committee, indicated he had taken the advice of Secretary of the Treasury Mills to hold to his original plan of three speeches. The president feels his job is here in Washington during the economic stress.

Rumors persisted that the president might yet decide at the last moment to hurry across the continent to his home in Palo Alto, Cal., to vote on Nov. 8. The reports, however, were denied at the White House.

The selection of Des Moines was regarded as a strategic move—one designed to placate the east and far west by selecting a neutral point at which to begin his fight.

Furthermore, Des Moines is not only regarded as neutral ground, in a sense, but is not far from West Branch, Ia., where the president of the Treasury Mills to hold to his original plan of three speeches. The president feels his job is here in Washington during the economic stress.

"Through its harsh and needless delay, the board is punishing the poor. Pennsylvania asks for bread and the reconstruction finance corporation gives nothing but words."

A California project proposed since Pennsylvania made its appeal had received a loan of forty million dollars. For California red tape can be cut. Why not for Pennsylvania?

TREASURE SEEKERS HUNT LOST SHIP

Lewis, Del., Sept. 21 (AP)—Lured by golden legends, pieces of eight, two modern ships cruised today through the waters of the Delaware river off this little fishing village.

Trained navigators plotted angles and measured distances from old trees. Lookouts atop the masts of each boat surveyed the waters closely.

The boats, belonging to a Baltimore company, sought the resting place of his Britannic majesty which went down May 31, 1918, carrying $10,000,000 in Spanish gold.

Efforts to locate the sunken ship started in 1895 and have been continued at intervals.

Recently, however, an old map was discovered, giving the treasure hunters new hopes.

NEW ELECTRIC RATES ENJOINED IN U. S. COURT

Charles M. Thomas, public utilities commissioner, today received notice of the appeal filed in Portland by the Northwestern Electric company from his order reducing rates of electric service. The appeal was filed with the federal court and claims with the order confiscatory, Thomas said.

Temporary restraining order requested by the company to prevent the reduction of 10 percent going into effect October 1, accompanied the appeal. Thomas announced the arguments on the restraining order would be heard Monday, September 26. Thomas' order was issued several weeks ago following an investigation of the company's services and charges.

Later yesterday Thomas addressed a letter to the Portland city council criticizing the "service-at-cost" proposed franchise for the street railway system of that city. Thomas declared the proposed franchise violated every recommendation contained in his previous order reducing the fares on the lines of the Portland Traction company from 10 to 7 cents.

The public utilities commissioner said that because he believed the council and the traction company would follow the recommendations of the order the commission has objected to bus franchises in Portland on the ground they would interfere with the working out of a constructive program outlined. The traction company had appealed from the order and the federal court upheld the 10 cent fare.

Referring to the proposed "service at cost" franchise, Thomas characterized it as "merely a subterfuge squarely in conflict with the order in all its essentials. It is indefensible from every conceivable angle so far as the public is concerned. Its enactment will only result in making a deplorable situation worse."

Indianapolis, Sept. 21 (AP)—Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, in a statement issued today, declared the result of the Wisconsin primary "is evidence of the fact that people favor stability and stabilized conditions here as elsewhere."

"In Germany," Watson said, "after years of suffering and privation far worse than we have ever known, the people rose to the occasion and elected Hindenburg by an overwhelming majority, evincing their desire to stand by fixed principles of government rather than run astray after false gods and erroneous conceptions of administration."

In England, which country has been through a far greater depression than we have experienced, the sturdy English character was most strikingly manifest in the election of MacDonald and his own conservation."

"This has shown itself in practically every election held in this country where an opportunity for such expression has been given. It is this strikingly manifest in the Wisconsin election where the LaFollette regime, dominant in Wisconsin politics for forty years, was overthrown by conservatism all along the line."

GENERAL HINDS SEES TREND TO HOOVER

Cheney, Wyo., Sept. 21 (AP)—A definite trend toward the reelection of President Hoover and a belief that the president is bending every effort toward the economic recovery of the nation, was encountered in the Pacific Northwest and in the west by General Frank T. Hines, veterans' bureau head, the official said here today.

General Hines is here to oversee construction of Cheney's new veterans' bureau hospital and a "I have found," Hines remarked today, "that president Hoover has many friends out here who believe he has a grasp upon the situation and that at the advent of the new year if reelected, he will be in a better position than at the start of his term to return the nation to prosperity."
