All that was lacking Tuesday for the perfect reproduction on the Willamette river of a scene from Uncle Tom's Cabin was a couple of bloodhounds and Eliza. With huge cakes of ice drifting down the stream it was almost possible at times for an agile person to cross the river without getting wet. The drift of ice was constantly changing however and at no time was there any indication of the mass becoming clogged. A sheet of solid ice extends into the river more than a hundred feet from a point up stream above the bridge on the Polk county side. On the Marion side the solid ice extends out perhaps 75 feet.

INSULTS CAR OWNER

Merced, Cal. (AP)—It was bad enough, Mrs. Allen A. Henderson reflected today, to have her automobile stolen. But when the thief drove her car to San Francisco and charged 10 gallons of gasoline to her at a service station there, it was adding insult to injury. She had the bill from the station, and a letter explaining that the young man in her car had asked that it be forwarded to her.

GROUPS WANT KAISER BACK

Berlin (AP)—In order to coordinate their propaganda and general activities working toward a restoration of the Hohenzollern monarchy, nine royalist groups lately have banded together in a "Working community of the monarchist movement."

Chairman of the new federation is Lt.-Gen. Waechter, a leading figure in monarchist circles. General Waechter recently voiced an urgent appeal to his co-workers to grasp every existing opportunity to further their aim.

"If the time has not yet come to call back the kaiser," he asked, "how long must we wait? Until another election? Or until the kaiser himself has passed away from us? Now is the time, and it must be made use of."

The various groups which hitherto have been working separately, but which are represented in the parent organization, are: The National Association of German Officers, the League for Furthering the Hohenzollern Movement, the National Association of German Cadets, the Pan-German Battle League, the Patriotic League of E-Conspat, the Standard of the Black White-Red, the Prussian League, the League of the Righteous, and Chief Association of Conservatives. These all are organizations which from the very day of the revolution, have devoted themselves to keeping the traditions of the old Empire alive.

PINTAIL GROUSE BEGIN MARCHING

Toronto, Ont. (AP)—The southerly march of the pintail grouse continues.

Down the James Bay basin, they are moving by the tens of thousands.

They have reached points both in Ontario and in Quebec 60 miles south of the height of land. They are being killed with clubs and shotguns by hunters. Motor traffic is taking a heavy toll. In flocks of 25 to 100 these birds with plumage similar to the ruffed grouse or partridge, but with flesh corresponding in its dark hue to the prairie chicken, are invading settlement towns, railway yards and modern roads.

Nobody can account for the strange migration. Overseers of the department of game and fisheries are studying the situation, but they cannot explain it.

One theory regarding their queer march is that they are venturing the Moose river country before some "terrible winter" overtakes them and wipes them out.

A second theory is that they are about to go the mysterious way of the partridge of 1923. In the fall of that year the partridge were wintered in thousands, but when the winter had passed and the spring of 1924 had rolled around there wasn't a bird to be seen. So scarce had they become that an eight year closed season, which only lifted for the first time this fall—had to be instituted lest they vanish all together.

self an opportunity to speak." When Kemmerer shouted his intention of speaking, Maas, coolly crossing the floor of the chamber said:

"All right son, but before you get the floor just give me the gun and police rushed in."

As he was taken down the corridor toward an elevator, Representative LaGuardia, republican, New York, walked on one side and police on the other.

It was many minutes before quiet was restored. Maas, telling newspapermen about the incident later, said:

"I didn't think about it particularly at the time. I was afraid he might get excited and shoot somebody so I just walked across the chamber and talked to him quietly. The man stood wavering for a moment or so and then decided to throw down the gun. When the gun came down, it was loaded and cocked. I turned it to the speaker's desk."

EUGENE CUTS CITY BUDGET

Eugene, Dec. 14 (AP)—A vertical cut of 10 per cent in the city's operating budget of $116,000 for the fiscal year 1933 was approved by the city council here last night.

The reduction, hitting every item of the city's expenses, will effect a saving of $11,600 during the coming year councilmen said.

The action of the council came as a surprise move since the budget had previously been approved following a public meeting at which time recommendations of the Lane county tax conservation league asking a cut of approximately $15,000 had been refused.

Continuation of—COUNTIES SEEK

Multnomah county was successful in obtaining approval of its motion that the convention direct its legislative committee to bring in a resolution demanding repeal of the 1931 law transferring costs of non-violent insane patients from the state to the county. Commissioner German declared the law is "a greater piece of damned foolishness ever enacted," and he said it costs Multnomah county $125,000 a year.

Repeal of the state high school tuition and transportation laws was likewise demanded.

Judge David H. Graham of Multnomah county literally landed with both feet on what he described as a trend toward "too much government." He upbraided the state police plan as non-essential, insisted there is no need for a state budget director, said it is "ridiculous" to have a secretary of the state board of higher education at $7,500 a year, and concluded by insisting that instead of a people being governed by the state, "the people are being governed by a governor who has too much power."

Judge Graham declared state employees should be under civil service regulations where men could qualify by rigid examination.

Frank Shull, commissioner of Multnomah county, said that as far as his county is concerned, the state police plan is "unfounded and 'no one would miss it.' The sheriff's office, he declared, is perfectly capable of coping with the situation.

Judge Robert W. Sawyer of Bend urged the members to consider carefully the plan to reduce automobile license fees, "for the counties will find themselves in trouble."

Those attending the convention believed that later in the day the officials would adopt a resolution favoring a state sales tax. It was said another resolution would call for a $5 auto license fee plus an increase of one cent a gallon on the gasoline tax.

PLAY URGED TO COMBAT CRIME

Sacramento, Cal. (AP)—The failure of parents to exercise proper control over their children is one of the major causes of crime in the opinion of members of California's state crime commission.

In a report just submitted to Governor James Rolph, Jr., the importance of parental supervision was stressed as a means of checking crime.

"When growing boys and girls follow their own inclinations and keep hours that would shock their grandparents, if not their parents, and have unrestrained freedom of association, there must inevitably result a lowering of standards so necessary in formative years," the report said.

"Any reversal to the type of home life that means well-spent leisure, careful tuition in and out of school, and an interest in literature, art, music and the sciences, all under parental guidance, will pay dividends to the credit side of good citizenship."

Pointing out the importance of proper recreational activities to keep youngsters occupied, the commission contended that "play keeps crime away" and recommended increased public playgrounds and attendant "character building" agencies.

The report also recognized the importance of economic conditions in their relation to crime with the statement that "hungry men and women are becoming more desperate as unemployment grows."

OLD WOODSHED BACK IN STYLE

Norfolk, Neb. (AP)—Woodpiles and woodsheds are becoming much in style in North Nebraska this winter. The cost of coal, fuel oil and natural gas has led many town and country residents to turn to the timbered creeks and rivers in the north part of the state for fuel.

Woodchopping bees, almost forgotten to the children of men and women who pioneered in this section of the state, are becoming common. Farmers are cutting wood "on shares" with landowners, as in the days of old.

Great risks of cordwood may be seen in the backyards of many town and city residents. Fireplaces that were formerly fired up but once or twice a year in many of the pretentious homes are now being used regularly for wood log fires to heat the homes.

Most of the towns in this section of the state have established community woodpiles, sending panhandlers who ask the towns for food and lodging to the woodpile to chop for their bread and butter. The wood is either sold and the funds turned to relief agencies, or the wood distributed out to families that need fuel.

Vancouver, B. C., Dec. 13 (AP)—Indian trackers trudged through heavy snows north of Kamloops today on the trail of the slayer of William Hayworth, 60, whose barbed wire fence and barbed wire entanglements failed to save him from the bullet he feared.

Hayworth, a strange recluse, was shot through the window of his home as he sat reading. Plainly visible in the snow, the tracks of the slayer showed where he had stood just outside of barbed wire entanglements, 20 yards from the house, and fired into Hayworth's body.

A trail of blood across the floor of his dwelling showed where the slayer had dragged his body to the kitchen where he vainly tried to keep a fire going. His frozen body was not discovered until several days after the shooting.
