SHEEP KILLERS CITY DOGS SAYS H. VANDEVORT

Town dogs and not country dogs are offenders when it comes to killing sheep, says Henry H. Vandevort, prominent sheep owner of Marion and Polk counties, in taking exception to an editorial appearing today in a local newspaper. The editoria referred to opposes the contribution of the license fees from town dogs to the indemnity fund for sheep owners whose animals are slaughtered by dogs, on grounds that the town-owned dogs are not often guilty.

"More sheep are killed by town dogs than any others," said Mr. Vandevort. "Last year one town dog killed and crippled 23 of my sheep and during the last year I have lost 19. When I had the Bush pasture rented for a period of about 10 years by loss in animals maimed or killed by town dogs was around 50 to 60 a year.

"I have a pasture now in Polk county where the depredations are nearly all by dogs from West Salem. Polk county, however, is very fair to the sheep owners in the matter of indemnity payme covering almost the full valu of the animals lost. That isn't true in Marion county.

"The editorial mentions dogs that are tied up in town. They are the worst of all. Let them loose, which they do quite often, and they immediately go hunting for sheep in the country. Also dogs that have been released from the city pound are bad. And a strange part of it is that you can't get a dog owner to admit that his dog is guilty, even when you confront him with the proof.

"If a sheep owner takes matters into his own hads and kills a dog or two he is cussed up and down and crosswise. But he's got to protect himself. I've seen as many as 27 sheep, after a raid by dogs, wriggling around with entrails hanging out, with broken legs, or with great chunks torn from their shoulders. That is something of the point of view of the sheep owner. I'm not a believer in the wanton destruction of dogs or any other animals, but the sheep man must be protected."

think further hearings on the senate side would be necessary, but this was a question for the committee to determine.

By a vote of 203 to 151, the measure was passed by the house late yesterday—the rumored friendliness of President-Elect Roosevelt being a big factor in mustering this strength.

But despite the reported desire of Mr. Roosevelt to see such legislation enacted, the ranking democrat on the senate agriculture committee —Smith of South Carolina—already has indicated his opposition.

Senator Borah of Idaho, without committing himself, also has expressed doubts about it.

Nevertheless, prompt committee consideration of the house bill which would pay a bounty to producers of seven commodities—wheat, cotton, tobacco, hogs, rice, dairy products and peanuts—was assured. It was after the last three commodities had been added to the original bill that 139 house democrats, 63 republicans and one farmer-laborite united against 101 republicans and 50 democrats to secure its passage.

One hopeful sign cited by senate advocates was last year's action by that body in passing a bill—though it later was recalled—containing a form of the domestic allotment plan.

A belief the allotment bill "can not hope to get out of the agriculture committee without a lot of hearings and new suggestions" was expressed by Senator Dickinson, republican of Iowa.

"It will probably be given a very thorough going over by the committee," he said, "and I think there are enough cross currents to stalemate the whole program for this session."

Dickinson added he would not be "at all surprised" if the committee should substitute for the house measure the three-way farm relief bill passed by the senate last session and later recalled.

That measure provided that the farm board might employ either the domestic allotment, equalization fee or export debenture plans of helping the farmer.

"There are many objections to the house bill in its present form," said Dickinson. "The matter is in such a shape that successful operation under the bill would be impossible and to be workable it needs many helpful amendments."

The first thing the senate did after convening was to receive formally the house farm bill.

The measure then was referred to the agriculture committee.

Continuation of— PHILIPPINE VETO

pinos and the world at large.

The president's veto message expressed the view that the United States must undertake further steps toward liberation of the islands, "but they should be based upon a plebiscite to be taken 15 or 20 years hence."

President Hoover criticized the Philippines bill, which provided for independence after 10 years of preparation under a commonwealth government, on moral, economic and international grounds, asserting that it was "subject to the most serious objections."

President Hoover suggested a five-point program for the Philippines:

1—An independence plebescite 15 or 20 years hence;

2 — Extended authority to the Philippine cabinet, but with full reserve of power for United States representatives;

3—Immediate restriction of immigration;

4—Agreement before the plebescite on trade preferences similar but wider than those between the United States and Cuba; and

5—United States announcement prior to the plebescite of intentions regarding withdrawal from military and naval bases and commitments to maintain independence.

"We have a responsibility to the world that having undertaken to develop and perfect freedom for these people we shall not by our course project more choas into a world already sorely beset by instability," he stated.

President Hoover held that the bill would weaken the United States civil authority during the period of intermediate government to a point of practical impotence, and cited situations which might rise where responsibility without adequate authority "can only lead to disaster."

Discussing external dangers to independence, President Hoover said that the Philippines as compared with their neighbors have large areas of undeveloped resources and that the pressure of immense neighbor populations for peaceful infiltration or forcible entry into this area are most potent.

"Many of these races are more devoted to commercial activities than the population of the islands and the infiltration is constant and fraught with friction," he said. "Nor has the spirit of imperialism and the exploitation of peoples by other races departed from the earth. After the establishment of independence the Filipino people alone will be helpless to prevent such infiltration or invasion.

Their problem is indefinitely different from that of Cuba or other nations in the western hemisphere. Moreover, the political dangers of the situation are greatly increased by the present instability in the Orient."

Manila, P. I., Jan. 13 (AP)—The Philippines must look to the democratic administration for favorable action on the demand for independence, island political leaders declared today when notified that President Hoover had vetoed the independence bill.

"The president's veto of the independence bill, unless over-ridden by congress, leaves the way open for the people of the islands to secure from the next democratic administration and congress legislation in accordance with democratic platforms and President Wilson's last message," said Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine senate.

Representative Felipe Buencamino said the veto "shows there is still a high degree of statesmanship in Washington."

"Labor leaders have virtually decided to continue their permanent labor office in Honolulu, possibly under some other name than commissioner," he said.

HIGHWAY JOBS LET JANUARY 23 COST $350,000

Highway projects totaling a cost of about $350,000 will be awarded at the meeting of the commission at Portland January 25, it is announced here. The mile and a half grading and concrete paving on the Pacific highway in Jackson county and the mile of grading on the central Oregon highway in Harney county were among the larger projects to be awarded.

The commission announced it would hold a hearing in Ashland February 8 on the proposed routing change at the entrance to Ashland.

The projects for which bids have been called follow:

Clackamas county—Clackamas river-Canemah section of the Pacific highway, construction of 1.1 miles of highway roadbed and construcion of 107 lin. ft. of 48-foot viaduct.

Deschutes, Crook and Klamath counties—Redmond-Chemult maintenance material project.

Douglas county—Work on Koepke slough and Hindale slough sections of the Umpqua highway.

Gilliam county—Construction on Arlington-Rock creek section of the John Day highway, and the Blalock-Heppner junction section of the Columbia river highway. Furnishing of 9,000 cubic yards of crushed rock in stockpiles.

Harney county—Drinkwater pass section of the central Oregon highway, one mile of grading.

Jackson county—Bear creek-Ashland section of Pacific highway, 1.5 miles of grading and concrete paving.

Tillamook county—Honey ranch-Dolph section of McMinnville-Tillamook highway, 1.25 miles of grading and surfacing.

Washington county — Forest Grove-Hillsboro section of Tualatin valley highway, two-tenths mile of grading and concrete paving, and five miles of gravel shoulder construction.

Clatsop county—Bridge over John Day river on the Columbia river highway about four miles east of Astoria, including construction of approach fills. Bridge at Austin point and culvert over Asbury creek on the Oregon coast highway 6¼ miles and 7 miles respectively south of Cannon beach.

Jackson county—Two pile trestle bridges with concrete decks over Bear creek on the Pacific highway about 1½ miles north of Ashland.

Continuation of— NEW BEER BILL

Senator Walsh, Montana democrat, explained the sub-committee adopted this percentage because it had been arrived at after a scientific study by a commission appointed by the British parliament as non-intoxicating.

The language of the change in the new proposal, to limit penalties to beverage above 3.05 percent, follows:

"Nothing in the national prohibition act as amended and supplemented shall apply to any of the following, or to any act or failure to act in respect of any of the following containing more than 3.05 percent of alcohol by weight: Beer, ale, porter, wine, similar fermented malt or vinous liquor, or fruit juices."

The sub-committee left untouched the clause of the house bill, taxing beer at $5 a barrel, and it will apply to all the liquors permitted under the bill.

Chairman Blaine, announcing the sub-committee's action, said the new draft would be submitted to the full judiciary committee Monday.

Blaine's sub-committee is the one which recently drafted the prohibition repeal resolution now pending before the senate. Blaine intends to make an effort that resolution up within the next few days.

Strong democratic support is back of the beer bill, which the party has made an integral part of its budget balancing program.

President Hoover's views have not been announced, but his friends are confident he would veto the bill.

The subcommittee also redrafted the permit provisions of the Volstead act, repealing them and rewriting them to permit the manufacture of beer and wine above 3.05 per cent, provided they are reduced before sale to that figure, or whatever alcoholic content is permitted by state law.

Senator Walsh, explaining the committee's action in changing the alcoholic limit to 3.05 per cent said:

"A commission appointed by the British parliament made an exhaustive and scientific inquiry of the amount of alcohol in beer necessary to intoxicate and arrived at the conclusion that 3.05 per cent was non-intoxicating.

The full judiciary committee, where the bill meets its next test, has shown itself preponderantly for the beer bill. Chairman Norris is in favor of it and its speedy approval has been predicted by committee members.

The house when acting on the bill rejected proposals for including wine. This might lead to a dispute between the two houses, but senatorial sponsors of the wine provision believed today it would be accepted.

Walsh said there were other technical changes in the law to make it technically possible for manufacturers to produce the legalized beverages by permitting them to brew or ferment them to their natural alcoholic content, and then to de-alcoholize the beverage down to the legal 3.05 limit.

The draft approved today is more nearly in line with the democratic platform prohibition plank than was the bill passed by the house.
