DOCTORS FIGHT FREE SERVICE

Philadelphia (LP)— The Philadelphia County Medical society has taken the sand that physicians are "tired" of giving millions annually for free medical care in this county.

The complaints against free medical service appeared in the society's weekly publication under the signature of Dr. Seth A. Brumm, chairman of the committee on medical economics.

Dr. Brumm, who recently threatened that doctors would form "a regular bricklayers' union," is on the city's payroll at $4500 a year as chief of the division of communicable diseases. He is a leader in the attack against recommendations made by the national committee on the cost of medical care, to provide a greater number of persons with hospital treatment at lower prices.

"The doctor is deeply aroused at the possibility of further engrafting upon him of socialistic schemes," Dr. Brumm writes, referring to the plan of two hospitals here to offer complete hospitalization for a small fixed annual fee. The society forced abandonment of the plan soon after its inception. Of the national survey body, he declared:

"I can dangle before you an effigy—Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur— who with his committee has squandered a million dollars seeking the reasons for the high cost of medical care, and then was constrained to change the title of his organization to "The High Cost of Medical Care" upon learning there were things far more costly to the sick than the service of the doctor."

immediate modification of the Volstead act, in order to legalize the manufacture and sale of beer and other beverages of such alcoholic content as is permissable under the constitution; and to provide through such manufacture and sale, by substantial taxes, a proper and much needed revenue for the government.

"I deem action at this time to be of the highest importance."

The democratic leadership and anti-prohibitionists expressed confidence the votes to pass the bill without ado were to be had.

"I hope it may be disposed of as promptly as may be found practicable," Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the democratic leader, said, adding that "we will have to get this economy program out of the way first, however."

Few members knew the message was coming. When A. E. Chaffee, reading clerk, read the first line, shortly after the noon meeting hour, the house burst into wild applause.

Persons in the sparsely filled galleries joined the members. A few rebel yells were shouted.

At the conclusion of the short message, some members stood and applauded.

Others shouted and smiled broadly.

The president reached his decision suddenly to ask for the beer measure at this time. It was an elemental part of his budget balancing program which he hopes to put into immediate effect.

Apparently the decision to propose the measure was reached when it realized the house is standing by without any business while the senate takes up consideration today of the Roosevelt economy measure.

Rainey said that there had already been "plenty of hearings," on beer legislation and that none would be necessary.

After Representative O'Connor, (D., N. Y.,) advocated a beer of 3.2 alcoholic content on the floor, Representative Kahn, (R., Calif.,) asked about wine.

"I understand 3.2 per cent wine is not very invigorating," O'Connor replied as members laughed, but he added he thought something could be done about wine.

Blanton (D., Texas), a prohibitionist, took the floor to say his "confidence in the president still is unchanged."

"He has not requested the house to legalize beer of an alcoholic content that is intoxicating," he added.

"I want to call your attention to a report on the Collier beer bill signed by some of the finest republicans who ever sat in the house.

They said that 3.2 per cent beer would be intoxicating and that they could not stiltify themselves by violating their constitutional oaths and voting for it."

Patman, (D., Texas), interrupted Blanton to say that his Texas colleague had urged the house Saturday to support the president on the economy bill. Patman voted against it.

"Are you still in favor of going along with the president?"

"Yes," Blanton said as the house applauded.

"The president doesn't ask for intoxicating beer. I'm behind the president on every proper measure he sends up here."

and took all possible steps to prevent withdrawals by hoarders.

Tomorrow in 250 or more additional cities where recognized clearing house associations exist, the normal business of banking will be continued and beginning Wednesday the process will be extended to other communities.

Answering the question he conceded to be on many lips, Mr. Roosevelt said the reason for the gradual reopening is that "your government does not intend that this history of the past few years shall be repeated —we do not want and will not have another epidemic of bank failures.

"The bank holiday," he explained, "while resulting in many cases in great inconvenience is affording us the opportunity to supply the currency necessary to meet the situation. No sound bank is a dollar worse off than it was when it closed its doors last Monday. Neither is any bank which may turn out not to be in a position for immediate reopening.

"The new law allows the 12 federal reserve banks to issue additional currency on good assets and thus the banks which reopen will be able to meet every legitimate call. The new currency is being sent out by the bureau of engraving and printing in large volume to every part of the country. It is sound currency because it is backed by actual, good assets.

"Remember that the essential accomplishment of the new legislation is that it makes it possible for banks more readily to convert their assets into cash than was the case before. More liberal provision has * * * been made for issuing currency on the security of these good assets. This currency is not fiat currency. It is issued only on adequate security—and every good bank has an abundance of such security."

With confidence restored, the president is going to see to it that the "unfashionable pastime" of hoarding is banned. Regulations were issued last night by the treasury permitting it to keep very close account of withdrawals of unnusual proportions.

"It is possible," he said, "that when the banks resume a very few people who have not recovered from their fear may again begin withdrawals. Let me make it clear that the banks will take care of all needs —and it is my belief that hoarding during the past week has become an exceedingly unfashionable pastime. * * * I can assure you that it is safer to keep your money in a reopened bank than under the mattress."

Taking time out for almost the first time since entering the White House a week ago, Mr. Roosevelt sent his message of confidence to the nation last night by press and the radio. He spoke from the oval room on the second floor of the executive mansion.

While permitting a progressive program of bank reopenings, the president is keeping a firm grip on the national gold supply to assure full backing of all transactions. Also, he is going to see to it that every bank which does reopen is an institution that is sound and solvent.

"I do not promise you," he told the people, "that every bank will be reopened or that individual losses will not be suffered, but there will be no losses that possibly could be avoided; and there would have been more and greater losses had we continued to drift.

"I can even promise you salvation for some at least of the sorely pressed banks. We shall be engaged not merely in reopening sound banks but in the creation of sound banks through reorganization."

Referring to the appeals from some for aid to the state banks outside the federal reserve system, the president said "there is no occasion for that worry."

"These banks can and will receive assistance from member banks and from the reconstruction finance corporation. These state banks are following the same course as the national banks except that they get their licenses to resume business from the state authorities, and these authorities have been asked by the secretary of the treasury to permit their good banks to open up on the same schedule as the national banks.

"I am confident that the state banking departments will be as careful as the national government in the policy relating to the opening of banks and will follow the same broad policy."

In his review of the causes leading up to the national bank holiday, the president took occasion again to score some bankers.

"We had a bad banking situation," he said. "Some of our bankers had shown themselves either incompetent or dishonest in their handling of the people's funds. They had used the money entrusted to them in speculation and unwise loans. This was, of course, not true of all our banks but it was true in enough of them to shock the people for a time into a sense of insecurity and to put them into a frame of mind where they did not differentiate, but seemed to assume that the acts of a comparative few had tainted them all.

"It was the government's job to straighten out this situation and do it as quickly as possible—and the job is being performed."

Cop Shoots At Dog And Captures Man

West Plains, Mo. (LP)—Police Chief Johnson shot at a dog but he captured a man. The chief had gone to the home of Tony Fallwell, 22, for questioning concerning a robbery. But Tony's dog did not like the chief and started snapping at his legs. To defend himself, Johnson began firing at the dog, reconciled to the belief that Tony had got away.

But a moment later Tony ran around the house.

"I give us," he yelled at the policeman. "Gosh, those bullets sure came close." Johnson doesn't know yet just where Tony was.

praise sweeping the senate. Thousands of messages were received by senators today, many warning that a vote for the Roosevelt program would be political suicide.

Senator Fess, (R., O.), appeared on the floor, his arms full of packaged telegrams.

Senator Ashurst, (D., Ariz.) said he had been threatened with political execution if he supported Mr. Mr. Roosevelt.

"I have made the discovery," Ashurst told the senate, "that it is not absolutely necessary to the perpetuity of the republic that I be re-elected to the senate but government and public liberty may depend on giving the president the economy power he requests."

Washington, March 13 (LP)—President Roosevelt's plan to reduce veterans' compensation by $400,000,000 was denounced in the senate today as "unjust, brutal and cruel."

Senator Robinson, republican of Indiana, challenged the administration program which Mr. Roosevelt insists is essential to balance the budget and maintain federal credit.

The bitter controversy flaming around the economy program—it includes a reduction of upwards of $100,000,000 in federal pay rolls as well as the cuts for veterans—is expected to end this week in victory for the administration. Senate leaders and even opponents of the veterans' cut believe Mr. Roosevelt will be given the dictatorial economy powers for which he has asked.

All congress need do is authorize the president to cut. He will decide when, where and within certain limits, how much. The house passed the bill Saturday under gag rules with many democrats in open rebellion.

Robinson condemned the emergency bank program approved last week along with the proposed economy plan.

"The president of the United States has become a virtual dictator with power of life and death over all financial institutions of the country," he complained in protest against administration refusal to extend blanket federal protection to state banks.

The senator contended the drive to reduce veterans' compensation originated in the "organized wealth" of the United States and was intended to shift large burdens to local communities which would have to support unemployed veterans and their families if they are deprived of federal aid.

Sheep Population Increases Daily

Rock Springs, Wyo. (LP) — The sheep population of Rock Springs area is increasing daily. Many flocks of "woolies" are now being driven in to the winter feeding grounds.

The flocks will graze here until about May 1. Recent snows have greatly benefitted the range.

TROTSKY SUES BOOK PUBLISHER

Madrid (LP) — Leon Trotsky, though Spanish attorneys, is suing a local publisher for having printed a life of Lenin, attributing the authorship to Trotsky.

In a letter from Trotsky, which one of his lawyers, Don Manuel Romeo Rivera, showed to the United Press, the exiled companion of the late Lenin says that the book calls Lenin a confidence man, stoolpigeon of the Czarist police, spy at the service of Germany, hold-up man, etc., etc,. all of which things he would be incapable of saying about Lenin.

Trotsky asserts that the only biography of Lenin he has written was one for the British encyclopedia in 1926, and that at present he is at work on a book on Lenin's life.

But what Trotsky is most worried about in connection with the publication of the apocryphal book in Spain is not the financial loss, but the ideas presented in the book, which he believes, constitute a veritable plot to discredit his ideas.

"My ideas may be good or bad," Trotsky wrote to his lawyers, "but they are mine, and I have defended them in my political life for a third of a century. The case in Spain is not that of copying my ideas, but of something infinitely worse, for ideas diametrically opposed to those I defend are presented as if they were mine. It is a political calumny; a calumny against my past and my present; a calumny all the worse for the calumniators have used my own name in their calumny against me."
