DISABLED VETS ASK FOR RELIEF

Portland, May 13 (AP)—Three million dollars for the relief of disabled veterans of Oregon was requested by the state organization of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War who yesterday adopted a resolution urging Governor Meier to borrow that amount of money from the reconstruction finance corporation for their use.

The two-day convention will end today with election and installation of officers.

A resolution which was expected to come before the convention today would call for confiscation of all wealth in time of war with the stipulation that no one receives more money for services than the soldiers themselves.

Another resolution over which a controversy was expected proposed a land tax to replace the present property tax, the revenue to be gained by placing a levy on improvements. This question was to be debated today.

Senator Frederick Steiwer and Representative James W. Mott were commended by the disabled veterans for the stand they took in entering colleges invited to listen to Mr. Lemon's broadcast but their parents as well.

PARTY OPPOSES TAX ON SALES

Portland, May 13 (AP)—Voting down a majority resolutions committee report that no action be taken on the matter, the Multnomah county democratic committee last night approved a minority report opposing the state sales tax which is to be voted on at the special election July 21.

John J. Beckman, Austin F. Fiegel, J. Deane E. Long and Mrs. Hedwig brought in the majority report declaring that inasmuch as neither the democratic national platform nor the platform adopted by the county convention last June contained any mention of a sales tax, the county committee had no proper right to endorse or prescribe it.

William A. Cuits, resolutions committee chairman, and Merritt E. Faxon signed the minority report which contended the sales tax would increase taxes on a majority of citizens, "is in the interests of the few and at the expense of the many," that it is "undemocratic in every particular" and "files in the face of all previous declarations on the subject by this party."

The county committee voted overwhelmingly in the face of opposition, to undertake to write the platform of all democratic candidates before the primary election. The rule provides for creation of an executive board of the county central committee. The board will be comprised of committee officers and 15 members at large.

"The board," the by-laws provide, "shall call pre-primary conventions to adopt a platform on which said county committeemen may demand all candidates to subscribe."

WATER SUPPLY IN STATE SHOWS LITTLE CHANGE

While spring surveys show that the snowfall in Oregon during the past winter was much heavier than for some years, the water content in most districts is about the same, according to Charles E. Stricklin, state engineer.

Observers working under the engineering department report that snow in most places is of a porous rather than a compact nature. It is usually the case with snow remaining in the mountains late in the spring. This is due to the heavy freeze of December, which resulted in the snow falling on ice or heavily-frozen ground. The frozen ground beneath the snow has prevented melting and soaking into the ground of the water, as is usual. Instead much of the snow has melted by evaporation.

Stricklin said that normally nearly all snow would have been melted out of the mountains in March and April, but this year most of it is still there. Cool weather throughout the remainder of the spring will probably mean an abundant water supply through the summer in eastern Oregon streams. If there should be a sudden heavy warm rain, there might be floods in some parts of the state, he said.

On the Malheur river water shed, the survey showed a maximum of 56.3 inches of snow, with its equivalent 22.4 inches of water. Last year at the same time, there were 46.6 inches snow, and 20.3 inches water. On Powder river this year there are 40.4 inches snow and 14.1 water, compared with 38.8 and 13.4 in 1932. Grande Ronde river maximum snow was 99.7 inches with water 40.4. A year ago, the snow was less, 95.6, but the water more, 41.1. Walla Walla river this year has considerably less snow and water than in 1932. The report showed 52.3 inches of snow and 24.1 inches of water, compared with 93.9 snow and 41.4 water.

Umatilla river 38.4 inches snow, 15.7 water, an increase over last year's 33.2 and 14.7. Snow on John Day river head was 49.9 water 17.7; a year ago it was 40.3 and 16.5.

On the Deschutes river, is found the heaviest fall of snow near Bend, Oregon mountain. There it was 143 inches deep, with a content of 67.3 inches. A year ago there was but 128 inches of snow, but the water content was greater, 70.7.

Clear lake, head of White river, showed a snow depth of 58.3 inches compared to 56.7. Water increased from 21.4 to 28.1.

SILVERTON BEATS WOODBURN, 14 TO 2

Silverton—The high school baseball team swamped Woodburn Friday afternoon on the local diamond 14 to 2, with two tight ball for Silverton. Woodburn was at a disadvantage in having most of her regular players on the sidelines and only a majority of freshmen playing. Errors were costly to the visitors.

Silverton is now leading the Willamette intercollegiate league by one game as Chemawa has had her second defeat, and should she win through the series will hold first place.

MEN IN DANGER WHEN CABLE SNAPS

Cascade Locks, Ore., May 13 (AP)—One man was injured and five workers narrowly escaped catastrophe in the turbulent Cascade rapids here last night when a cable snapped on the 75-foot barge on which they were living and the ungainly craft swung into the head of the thundering rapids.

Two of the five men aboard were government engineers. The barge was used as a drilling base for investigation of dam sites on the Columbia.

After having been in their precarious position more than 8 hours the men finally were able to reel in the slack of the remaining cable and drive the barge into more quiet water. The government tug Rick-reall then aided in the rescue.

PORT OF PORTLAND TO UNDERGO CHECK

Portland, May 13 (AP)—In response to a letter from Governor Julius L. Meier saying he had received a report of a special investigating agency concerning the operation of the Port of Portland commission which seemingly "reflected consideration," the port officials voted late yesterday to have its financial affairs checked thoroughly by a nationally recognized certified accountant.

"Numerous complaints" have been lodged with him, the governor said, about alleged irregularities and "large losses of public money through the operation of the business of your organization."

The governor revealed he subsequently appointed a special agent to conduct an investigation.

FOREST CORPS QUIT BARRACKS FOR THE SOUTH

Vancouver, Wash., May 13 (AP)—Three additional contingents of the civilian conservation corps left Vancouver barracks near here yesterday, bound for camps in three national forests in Oregon.

Under command of Captain B. B. McMahon, one of the groups of 30 men each was dispatched to Applegate camp in the Crater lake national forest. Captain K. S. Whitmore lead the second group to Steamboat camp in Umpqua national forest and Captain R. F. Dark, detailed his detachment to the Oak Ridge camp in the Cascade national forest.

Members of the groups all have had some skill in carpentry and similar construction work. A week to ten days will be required for them to build cantonments at the three camps. The other recruits in the "conservation army" are undergoing their three weeks' training in callisthenics and elementary forestry at the army post here will follow the advance groups later.

Disregarding the usual army drill manual instructions of the "old school" are including in a temporary respite from the "squads right about face" type, teaching the O. G. C. personnel how to get up on exercises and wield a spade. Compliance of discipline, customary "shouts" in the arm to ward off typhoid and other diseases and one or two other "minor" features are the only remnants of training adhering to militaristic despite the general belief the youths are given military drill.

OREGON PRODUCTS DINNER PLANNED

Whether an Oregon products dinner, style show and program are to be given at the armory on May 24 depends on the willingness of Salem manufacturers to cooperate in the project. The Salem chamber of commerce and the Women's Greater Oregon association are willing to put on the event if the adequate cooperation is forthcoming.

Mrs. W. Carlton Smith, vice president of the Women's Greater Oregon association, says that Portland manufacturers have manifested a desire to cooperate, and are actually eager for it. Not so much enthusiasm has been shown by the Salem people. Out of 63 letters to manufacturers sent out by the chamber of commerce responses have come to only eight.

Any articles used on the table, about the house or the premises or garden, of local manufacturers, would be qualified for exhibit during the event. If the show is put on it will be at the armory.

Harold Dilley pleaded guilty before Judge McMahon this morning to larceny of an automobile belonging to L. R. Foster. Dilley was sentenced to six months in the state penitentiary and was not paroled. It was stated he had stolen two or three other cars.
