

GAME BOARD WILL HELP TO CLEAN RIVERS

Portland, June 13 (AP)—The state game commission will take an active part in the fight to secure sewage disposal plants for Portland and Willamette valley towns with federal aid. It was decided at a meeting of the commission Monday afternoon.

A delegation of the Portland anti-pollution council, headed by W. T. Lambert impressed the commission with the fact that it has for years advocated measures against stream pollution, and the fact that action must be taken early if R.F.C. or other federal funds are to be obtained.

The commission agreed to charge 50 cents for annual renewals of free licenses and for issuance of decal tags to holders of such licenses.

Funds of the commission are running about $150,000 a year short of the high in 1929, it was reported and the budget for the coming year was set on a basis of $300,000.

Matt L. Ryckman, superintendent of hatcheries reported that 1,610,000 rainbow trout eggs had been taken at the Crane Prairie station. Egg taking is just starting at Diamond and Paulina lakes where it is expected that 10,000,000 eggs will be taken.

The commission will again exchange eastern brook trout eggs with California for loach laven trout eggs. The loach lavens will be planted in streams and lakes where other trout do not flourish.

The commission voted to recommend to the state police that Charles A. Lockwood, be appointed game warden at Diamond Lake.

The meeting was adjourned until 10 a.m. today.

CITY MANAGER MEASURE GIVEN TO 5 ALDERMEN

A special committee of five members of the Salem city council will work with City Attorney Chris J. Kowitz during the next week in whipping into shape the plan for a city manager form of government in Salem. The people will vote on the plan at the special election of July 21.

Mayor Douglas McKay, at the adjourned meeting of the city council last night, introduced his ordinance bill to place the issue on the ballot. Since not a word of opposition was heard to it from council members it is presumed that it will pass third reading next Monday night, and this action will put it on the ballot.

The members of the special committee are Aldermen O'Hara, Kuhn, Fuhrer, Olson and Townsend.

When the bill was read at last night's session Mayor McKay spoke briefly on the subject. He stressed the fact that he has no personal motive in the matter.

"I have no idea whatever who would be city manager if we established the system here," he said. "But I think all of you will admit that a change in our governmental system would make for greater economy and efficiency in the administration of city affairs. As we now work we are all business or professional men working for the city without salary. Our first consideration, of course, is to make a living for our families, and the result is that city business is sometimes neglected."

The mayor criticized the present method of preparing the city budget. The plan established by law whereby the budget, as tentatively prepared by the council, is turned over to a committee of citizens-at-large, is not efficient he said, because the citizens who so serve the city are without knowledge of the matters on which they deliberate. The result of this is that their work is usually turned over by the council when it takes final action on the budget.

The mayor thought the budget making activity should be placed directly under the direction of the manager, he told the council. Also he favored placing the various city boards, such as park, playground and library board, under the manager's jurisdiction. The water commission's office, he thought, should remain as it now is, at least until litigation in the courts is disposed of.

The mayor asked for a motion that he appoint a special committee to take the matter in hand during the coming week. The motion was made by Alderman Olson.

CHARTER BILLS BEFORE COUNCIL

Ordinance bills to place on the ballot proposed city charter amendments providing for the construction of a municipal dock and a sewage disposal plant were introduced at the city council meeting last night by Aldermen Hughes and Olson respectively. They were given first and second readings and will be voted on at the meeting next Monday night.

Also a bill was introduced calling a special election for the purpose of voting on the proposed amendments.

The plan is to ask the reconstruction finance corporation for federal loans covering the projects, and in these applications it is necessary that the sanction of the people for security covering the loans be included. Three alternatives are offered the city by the bills in fixing security. These are general obligation bonds, utility bonds, or the city's note and mortgage.

Thirteen ordinance bills were introduced providing for assessments for sidewalk assessments on Church street in Highland avenue addition.

The city instead of the chamber of commerce is to bear the expense of decorating the city for the G.A.R. state encampment this summer. This was agreed to by the council in approving a motion by Alderman O'Hara, who said the chamber of commerce is without funds for the purpose. It is estimated that the expense will be about $20.
