BEAVERS WIN 3RD STRAIGHT OVER MISSIONS

The San Francisco Seals defeated the league leading Sacramento team Thursday in a game marked by two notable happenings, the displacement of Seattle by the Seals as cellar warmer, and the single Joe Demaggio hit in his 56th consecutive game. Demaggio, San Francisco's boy wonder, hit on his third time at bat, maintaining his march toward the world's record of 69 consecutive games in which Joe Whitton of the western league hit in 1919.

Zane Grey Book Filmed

Randolph Scott and Kathlene Burke are seen here in "Sunset Pass", western thriller from the pen of Zane Grey, which will be shown at the Elsinore theater Friday and Saturday.

Continuation Of— Grain Exchange —From Page One newly arrived shipments. Traders gathered in knots to talk the situation over, but the shouting and gesticulating was absent. Most of them were glad of the holiday. The tense worried expressions of yesterday gave way to smiles and jokes and the enforced holiday was taken as "good medicine" for the speculative fever which had infected the pits practically all the time since the lifting of the National bank holiday.

Recovery Plans

President Roosevelt has launched a national recovery program such as has never before been undertaken in any country, by calling upon every employer to raise wages when they are below certain minimums and shorten hours when above certain maximums, thus creating employment. Calling for "united action," the president asks all employers to subscribe to a blanket code giving white-collar workers a 40 hour week and a $12-15 minimum wage, and industrial labor a 35 hour week with a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour.

NEWS Behind the News

—By— Paul Mallon Copyright, 1933, by Paul Mallon

Washington, July 21 — President Roosevelt has a neat way of sidestepping troubles. He began working it out in the first days of his administration. He has developed it now to the point of a new decentralized governmental system.

Continuation Of— Essential Points

—From Page One third for all hours over the maximum. Sets minimum pay levels for clerical and similar workers at $15 a week in cities over 500,000; $14.50 in those under 500,000; in communities under 250,000 a 20 percent raise provided the minimum need not exceed $12.

Provides 40 cents an hour for factory and mechanical worker minimums unless they made less than that on July 15, 1929. In that case the level on that would prevail so long as it was not below 30 cents. Piece-workers are guaranteed the minimum unless they made less than that on July 15, 1929. In that case the level on that would prevail so long as it was not below 30 cents.

Defying Roosevelt

"The devil was sick, the devil a monk would be. The devil was well, the devil a monk was he." Which illustrates the attitude of some industries and businesses towards the Roosevelt "new deal" for national recovery, their threat of court appeal, their delay and reluctance in adopting fair trade codes for minimum pay and maximum hours to increase employment and restore purchasing power and thus enable consumption to keep pace with production.

When Roosevelt took office and the country faced national collapse, these same industries and businesses, came humbly hat in hand begging federal assistance and accepting gratuities, gladly scrapping their "rugged individualism" to promise cooperation in any scheme for rehabilitation. Now that recovery has apparently set in, and the tide seems to have turned, sighing for the flesh pots, they would repudiate and defy the administration in repenting the cycle of mad inflation and deflation for their own profit.

The Columbia Project

President Roosevelt seems to have hit upon a happy solution of the problem of Columbia river improvement with the selection of a damsite at Bonneville and the use of federal harbor and river funds for the construction of a dam for development of navigation, power and flood control. The work would be done without cost to the states of Oregon and Washington, and the federal government would own the project and repay investment from operating costs.
