FARMS CALL CITY PEOPLE BACK TO SOIL

Columbia, Mo. (AP)—City America is going back home. Which is to say that the farm-reared city folks, tired of trying to cope with unemployment, are seeking to live on the soil. During 1932 the migration of city dwellers to farms exceeded the population flow in the other direction by an estimated 207,000. The department of rural sociology at the Missouri college of agriculture is concerned with this, as are most agricultural agencies. Major farm adjustments mean an increasing heavy problem for those who try to smooth out the farmer's way.

The shift in population vitally affects two great groups: The city dwellers, alarmed at the heavy load of emergency relief, who are glad to escape party relief. The rural interest, concerned with its own rural problem and wary of having the numbers of its destitute unemployed increased by migration from the cities.

Too many of the migrants lack sufficient money to purchase land. Rented land has a tendency to deteriorate under tenant management. Many of the new farmers even lack money sufficient to care for the needs of their families while waiting for the first crop.

Failure looms for those city dwellers who, unfamiliar with the manner of life on the farm and without capacity to adjust readily to the new environment, attempt to make the change.

Funeral services for Claire Carson, former Salem telephone employee, will be held at the Edward Holman & Son mortuary in Portland, Southeast 27th avenue and Hawthorne, at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon. ## HAUNTED PEAK WAS PARADISE

Washington, (AP)—If you should visit a river bank in the mountains of northern Siem this evening and suddenly think you hear rain falling and of the same time seem to notice the ground moving, don't blame it on what you've been drinking, for Dr. Hugh Smith, collaborator of the Smithsonian Institution has the explanation. Dr. Smith, who is also Fisheries advisor to the Siamese government, explains that he recently pitched camp on a river bank in that vicinity, which was covered with a living carpet of "daddy longlegs" with legs nearly three inches long. "The entire surface of the land seemed to be in motion," Smith says. "They moved active at dusk and when they moved over the dried leaves they made a noise like falling raindrops."

On another of his expositions Dr. Smith ascended a reputedly "haunted" mountain after natives had refused to accompany him because of their dread of the "PI" (Spirits). Instead of the alleged "PI" he found the highest peak "a literal collector's paradise" with pine and chestnut trees decorated with hanging orchids, and gibbons leaping among the branches. This strange forest, Smith says, contained chattering monkeys, barking deer, several species of squirrels including one rare giant form of bamboo rats, porcupines and black bears with nests in chestnut trees where they fed on the nuts.

ART CONSCIOUSNESS HERE WITH DEPRESSION

New Orleans, (AP)—People here become "art conscious" during the business depression because they had more time to think about art, according to Miss Angela Gregory, sculptress. Before the depression, they were too busy thinking about other things, she said. Miss Gregory believes the American people have a strong urge for beautiful architecture, while architects, she said, are realizing more and more the need of sculpture in building.

GROCERY CHAINS PROTEST WAGE CODE

Boston, July 21 (AP)—Charles F. Adams, treasurer of the largest New England-owned chain of grocery stores, speaking for the retail trade generally on President Roosevelt's proposed holiday code of hours and wages, today expressed the opinion that indiscriminate application might greatly increase the cost of goods to the consumer. He voiced the belief that such cost would be without compensating benefit to business in general.

Adams, who is treasurer of the First National Stores, operating 2800 stores in New England and a part of New York, said payrolls of retailing organizations generally had been maintained within 10 or 15 percent of normal.

Application of the code to retailing, he said, might add 25 to 30 percent or more to the personnel with consequent increases in the cost of products to the consumer.

WOODLEY REPORT BEING INVESTIGATED

Anchorage, Alaska, July 21 (AP)—Efforts to substantiate an unconfirmed report that Pilot Art Woodley and five passengers, lost for five days, walked into Egegik, Alaska, were made here today.

The message came from an amateur operator at Egegik, which is on the Alaskan peninsula south of here. It said that the six persons reached Egegik safely after their pleasure plane was wrecked near Aniakchak crater.

YOUTH ADDS KING'S NAME TO COLLECTION

Carthage, Mo. (AP)—Little Billy Lawhead last week added a kind to his collection of "friends." For Billy feels that all of the world's grove whose autographs he collects are friends. The king was added when Billy received a special delivery letter bearing the insignia of the royal palace of Belgrade, capital of the Kingdom of Jugoslavia. The letter contained an attractive card bearing the autograph of His Majesty King Alexander I. The signature was obtained for Billy through the ministrations of an influential citizen of that country.

WHEAT PRICE HELPS CANADA

Ottawa, Ont. (AP)—The increase in wheat prices, recorded in the world's grain markets, will save Canadians several millions of dollars in taxation, in addition to the more direct benefit to the farmers, grain companies and others holding wheat. It is officially estimated that there are 200,000,000 bushels of wheat export and carry over, 90,000,000 being in the western elevators, 15,000,000 in the farmers' hands, 25,000,000 of farmer owned wheat in elevators, and the balance is owned by exporters, the government and pools.

ITALIANS OPEN MONSTER DRIVE ON MOUNTAINS

Rome (AP)—Mussolini now has taken up the task of frigidly leveling off the mountains to take care of his increasing population. Today, this has become a problem. Wherever possible, thousands of villagers are being persuaded to abandon their homes inconveniently located on mountain tops and settle on level land. In many cases, and especially in southern Italy, this has been successful. The present drive concerning the mountain regions embraces reforestation plans, adequate pasturage space, gardening and finally, cattle breeding.

No less than one-third of the Italian communes, numbering 7,311 to date, are perched on mountain tops. One-fifth of the entire population, or approximately eight million people, live about the decrepit walls of these mountain villages, and 90 per cent maintain themselves wholly through what little profit can be made out of the woods and pastures.

The dominant cause for the present day difficulties of the mountain peoples lies in the distinct detachment between "lowland" and "highland" economics. Therefore, it is thought, to change this as soon as possible will improve conditions for the mountaineers.

HANS H. BROOTEN DIES AT CLOVERDALE

Cloverdale, July 21 (AP)—Hans H. Brooten, credited with having discovered "help ore" died at his sanatorium Wednesday. He was 72 years old and was well known by many residents of Oregon. He had lived in Tillamook county since 1900.

Brooten was born in Norway and came to the United States in 1874. In 1899 the family moved to Portland, and the next year to the present Brooten home overlooking Necanicum bay. He established his mineral baths shortly after discovering help ore beds in 1905.

He is survived by his widow, two sons, Dolliver and Harry of Cloverdale, and two daughters, Mrs. Claude Christiansen of Tillamook, and Mrs. W. J. Thompson of Cloverdale.
