Controlling Beer Gardens

In the interim before the legislature meets to enact regulatory legislation governing the manner in which so-called beer gardens outside of cities and towns shall be conducted there is a very apparent need for some sort of control over these resorts, particularly those which are seeking to capitalize on the present lack of any effective laws imposing restrictions upon their operation.

Grasping beer garden operators, soliciting the business of boys and girls, tolerating most any sort of conduct from their patrons short of outright violence, inviting even violence by serving beer to intoxicated persons, and permitting patrons to bring and drink intoxicating liquors in their places of business, are giving to the legalized sale of beer today the same black eye that saloons gave to the entire liquor business in pre-prohibition days. No system of control can endure in the face of such abuses.

Lack of adequate laws since repeal of the Anderson enforcement act and the refusal of a "dry" legislature to enact any code of regulations for the sale of beer has left enforcement officers with their hands almost completely tied in trying to deal with renegade beer garden operators. It is not up to the officers to police these resorts to see that order is preserved. That is the business of the proprietors. But to effectively deal with those who will not run their places properly is difficult.

The closing of disorderly resorts as public nuisances involves many legal complications, and usually requires the testimony of witnesses reluctant to involve themselves in any such action. But there is one method of control which might be made to succeed.

Most of the trouble so far experienced in the operation of these rural beer parlors has been in those in which dancing is permitted and forms the principal part of the entertainment. Although patrons are not charged directly for the privilege of dancing there are many attorneys who contend that such places come within the scope of the law requiring that public dances must be licensed by the county court. Beer garden proprietors facing the prospect of revocation of their licenses and forfeiture of a $500 bond for failure to maintain orderly places would promptly devise means of maintaining order.

Japanese Objectives

Now that both the Geneva arms conference and the London economic conference have proven barren of results, it can be expected that Japan will resume her conquest of China with a view eventually of dominating Asia and demanding a naval increase in the 1935 naval conference.

Japan's immediate objective, it is believed by the best informed, to be the control and consolidation of Manchukuo, Inner Mongolia, Chihli, the province of Peiping, Tientsin and Shantung. This would insure Japan most of the raw material and food needed in case of war, and free her army for overseas expeditionary force.

Even if the recently announced naval building program for the United States is completed by the 1935 naval conference, America will enter the conference inferior to Japanese sea power, which will give Japan the opportunity she has always seized in the past to enlarge her Asiatic dominions.

OWEN'S GRAPPLERS YMCA CAMP BOYS

Herb Owen, Eugene and Portland promoter will introduce his string of grunts and groan boys tonight when the first outdoor wrestling show to be held in this part of the country will be staged in the new American Legion pavilion across the bridge in Polk county. Bulldog Jackson, who several weeks ago walked out on the Salem commission for some cause or other, and who is considered one of the best showmen in the wrestling game, will meet Mickey McGuire in one of the one-hour events. Dorry Detou and Legger Heiber will clash in another match while John Neuman and Tesura Higan will have been booked for the third.

Plenty of seats and parking spaces will be available for fans.

Working and eating constituted the main activities during the first two days of the annual boys' encampment at the Y.M.C.A. Ocean-side camp, according to a letter received from George Arbuckle, Jr., director of the youngsters in the group of 48. George's communication follows:

"Oceanside, Ore., July 26—The 1933 Y.M.C.A. annual encampment started off with a bang yesterday as 58 boys and leaders moved into the regular camp site north of Ocean-side. Everyone immediately started working for two prime reasons, to get the camp in shape and to work up an appetite to prove 'Pop' Cray's ability to 'dash it up.' Most of the day was taken in erecting tents and cleaning up the camp. Some of the boys managed to break away and enjoy the cool waters of the Pacific later in the afternoon. The first campfire was held on the beach before the high camp site and the various groups were introduced to new places of camp life. The last notes of 'taps' closed a very busy day and gave the boys a chance to feel out their new beds."

SAYS ENGINEERS NEED NOT BE SANE

Insanity is not a sufficient cause for revocation of a registered engineer's certificate, Attorney General I. H. Van Winkle held today in an opinion to Archy B. Carter, secretary of the state board of engineers, Portland.

"The board of engineering examiners may revoke the certificate of registration of a professional engineer for fraud or deceit in his practice or in the securing of his certificate or for the conviction of a crime," the opinion read.

"None of these elements enter into the charge of insanity, and as they are the yard stick of the board's authority in revoking a certificate, leaving nothing by implication, it is my opinion that insanity is not sufficient cause for revocation."

Cards Are Played
Monmouth—Five tables of bridge were played Tuesday with Mrs. B. R. Pollan hostess at her home on Monmouth avenue. Summer flowers in match shades were used about the guest rooms. During the tea hour Mrs. Velma Pierson poured, Mrs. E. C. Cole cut the cakes and Mrs. Walter Smith served the ice. Prizes for cards were won by Mrs. L. E. Forbes and Mrs. J. Gentle.

SENATORS FILE ROSTER OF 24 BALL PLAYERS

Taking no chances on possible injuries, Manager Frank Baishor has placed the names of 24 ball players on the Senators' official roster which was completed this week.

Although there was no limit to the number of players who could be signed, no more names can be added after July 31. The completed list which was submitted contains the names of a number of reserve players who are not carried regularly on the squad, but who could be pressed into service at any time.

The mound staff includes five pitchers, headed by Delbert "Squack" Wilson, who has carried the brunt of the work on his shoulders this season and was also the regular hurler last season. Others are Johnny Beck, who needs no introduction, Elmer "Doby" Wood and Fritz Klimki of Anity, Edward Tweed of Salem, and Elbert "Al" Johnson of Oregon City.

Bill Moe is the regular catcher, with Frank "Buddy" Baishor and Joe Brisher alternates. Leland Chester is the only first baseman, and Manning, who plays outfield regularly, is practically on a par with Chester at the initial sack.

Ernie Garbarino and Loren Kitch are the second basemen, and Carl Wood and Ray Parrish, the short stops. Lowell Gribble and Ellis Mason are the third basemen.

In the outfield are George Scates, Kenneth Manning, Rex Pemberton, Archie Rankin, Harold Colgan, Trux Foreman and Walt Erickson. "Doby" Wood is also an outfielder, and several of the outfielders are also competent infielders.

A shift in the batting order to produce more runs from the present hitting power of the Salem Senators will be made by Manager Baishor against the Federals Sunday. Carl Wood, who is batting 33d, will appear as cleanup man Sunday. George Scates will again be leadoff man, where his haughtiness and hitting ability prove baneful to opposing pitchers. In the last three games George has hit one home and walked twice while collecting seven hits.

The players who appeared in last Sunday's game have a season average of 310 in batting. Gribble and Manning share total hitting honors with 14 apiece. Three times this batting total have been tied in batting averages, which have never been better than .318.

Gribble is leading in runs batted in with 12 to his credit. Moe is second in driving runs across with seven, Carl Wood, who was recently added, has proven a good "money hitter."

Scates has been walked six times and Wilson has sacrificed half a dozen times. Scates and Moe have each scored eight runs. Wood has hit three doubles and Gribble, Wilson and Moe two triples each. Gribble hit the only home run of the season.

AARON SAPIRO KNOWN HERE AS COOP CREATOR

Indictments in Chicago of Aaron Sapiro on charges of conspiracy with Al Capone and others recall Salem people that Sapiro was often in Salem back in 1919 while he was engineering the organization of the Oregon Growers Co-operative association. He spoke here a number of times.

A blanket Chicago indictment charges Sapiro, Capone, Dr. Benjamin M. Squires and 21 other defendants on conspiracy charges including bribery, window smashing and restraint of trade. The indictment is regarded, says an Associated Press dispatch, as the state's first frontal attack on racketeering and the violence it has brought into legitimate industries in Chicago.

"Sapiro," the dispatch continues, "was a leader in the early co-operative marketing movement in the United States. A year ago he came to Chicago to act as a counsel for the Laundry Owners' association, which he quit last June 2 on demand of the state's attorney."

It is recalled here that Sapiro later sued Henry Ford for libel because of an attack in the Dearborn Independent relative to his work with the co-operatives. Testimony was taken through the United States and attorneys for both sides visited Salem and took depositions here. The case was settled out of court, and it is understood, Ford was on the losing end.

REFORMED—Capitol and Marion Sts. W. C. Larimer, pastor. Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. 10 a.m. Service. Worship at 11. "The Value of a Righteous Life." Anthem: "Love Ye Even unto Me." the contractors who built the bridge and the work was begun in June, 1932, and the bridge was open to traffic July 1, 1933. Two men lost their lives in its construction. John Gish in a saw boat accident, August 23, and A. H. Hogue in a tram car fall September 20, 1932.

In response to recommendations from pioneers of this locality the state highway commission on May 19, 1933 named the bridge the Jacob Conser bridge in honor of Jacob Conser, pioneer of 1847, who platted the townsite of Jefferson, which in an early day was known as Conser's Ferry. Conser built and operated the first ferry across the Santiam in 1851. The establishment of the Jefferson institute eventually led to the change of name. Conser gave 100 acres of land and money to help the building of the school.

Conser was a native of Pennsylvania coming to Oregon in 1847, where he lived in the vicinity of Seaside for three or four years. In 1851 he was living in Santiam City and was postmaster of Seaside, a settlement about 18 miles from both sides of the Santiam river. The flood of 1850-51 washed out a good share of the buildings on both sides so Conser moved his belongings up the river two miles at the present site of Jefferson. In 1849 he had taken a land claim between the Bates and Hot claims. He moved to this claim and built a log cabin just below the Bates house. Around these two homes was built the town of Jefferson.

In 1853 Conser had the first saw mill running here. The next year he built the hotel, the first frame building in Jefferson and in 1858 he built a flour mill which he ran until his saw mill and ferry. He and his partner, Burnett, added to the mill until in 1870 it had a capital of $25,000. Before the railroad was built in 1870, river boats came up to the mills to load. About 1868 or 70, Conser built a three story residence near the ferry landing, which at that time was the finest home in the country. At this time the vicinity was a stronghold of democrats and Conser was the outstanding man at the Marion county conventions. He was president of the convention in 1856 and 1857 and sent to the territorial convention. In 1859 he was sent to the first state convention in Eugene and was a member of the territorial legislature for Marion county in the special session of 1853 and regular session of 1855.

Conser did everything in his power to encourage the building of the railroad through Jefferson. His daughter, Mary, was the first person to cross the railroad bridge at Jefferson riding across on the cow catcher on the first train.

In 1880 a wooden bridge was built across the Santiam at Jefferson and in 1910 the old steel bridge was completed.

CIRCUIT CLOUT BY ARBELBIDE WINS FOR STARS

(By the Associated Press)
Pitcher Ed Bryan had returned Sacramento's name to the victory column today and extended the Senators' first place margin to one and one-half games over the second place Portland and Hollywood clubs.

Bryan outdistanced three Los Angeles hurlers for 10 innings last night and then singled in Sacramento's half of the extra inning to send Earl McNeely home and give the Solons their first win of the series, 8-7. It was Bryan's third single. Outfielder Henry Steinbaker led the Senator attack with a home run and three singles.

Gurnett Arbelbide's ninth inning circuit clout with one aboard gave Hollywood a 3-2 victory over Portland and boosted the Stars into a second place tie with the Beavers. Until the former U.S.C. athlete ended the game Archie Campbell of Hollywood and Art Jacobs of Portland engaged in an even pitching duel, with no runs being scored until the seventh inning.

That much-traveled Coast leaguer, "Junk" Walters, led Seattle to a 3-2 win over the Missions with a second inning homer that started a 3-run scoring spree. Phil Page gave the Reds nine hits, including Bob Hafey's four-bagger. Lloyd Johnson bled down after being touched for five blows in the first two innings and allowed only two more safeties in the remaining innings.

Propelled to victory by Johnny Bottarini's triple, double and single, San Francisco made it three straight over Oakland, 10-5. Ed Stutz and Ken Douglas combined to give the Seals 7-hit hurling.

ing power for 1 to 1½ mills. The government is to advance funds for the project, the state of Washington eventually repaying 70 per cent, and the state is to complete preliminary survey work. Work starts soon, Senator Dill and Governor Clarence D. Martin said today, including a highway and railroad to the project.

Approval of the Columbia basin project marked the latest step in Mr. Roosevelt's tremendous program for development of the power resources of the nation.

Allied closely with the Grand Coulee dam project is development of the lower Columbia river at Bonneville, Ore., with which the people of Oregon are more immediately concerned, and members of the Oregon congressional delegation have said they understood the president also would give approval to this project, thereby eliminating differences between Washington and Oregon states as to which project should be developed first.

The Columbia basin project at first was purely an irrigation-reclamation idea, with water to be distributed and commerce continued, desert lands, but as conferences between the states of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, the war department and the department of interior and commerce continued, on the subjects of allocation of water, gravity system versus power pumping system and the like, federal officials made it plain they thought development of power should be the primary consideration, and differences between the factions favoring the project were adjusted to that end.

BOXING REFEREES TAKE INSTRUCTION

San Francisco, July 28 (AP)—Boxing referees of the northern California sector will do well to brush up on their ring technique because within the next few days they are going back to school.

Whether the pugilistic education will be a post graduate course or of the primary type will depend upon the individual but all were going to be quizzed on the "do and don'ts" of the third man in the ring.

State athletic commissioners Leslie C. Kelley of San Francisco and John Hassler of Oakland today were agreed something should be done about this phase of the cauliflower industry.

The matter of butting with the head came in for much attention. It was generally agreed that more often than not the victim of a "head punch" had been ruled loser of a fight by a technical knockout whereas he should have been awarded the victory on foul.

The refereeing schools will be held here. Arbiters from Stockton, Sacramento and other points will be called in to display their qualifications. To make the affairs realistic, Chaplain Kelley said he would have a couple of fighters on hand for the referees to work on. Doctors will be on the job to point out fair and foul territory of the fighters' anatomy.

Gurnett Arbelbide's ninth inning circuit clout with one aboard gave Hollywood a 3-2 victory over Portland and boosted the Stars into a second place tie with the Beavers. Until the former U.S.C. athlete ended the game Archie Campbell of Hollywood and Art Jacobs of Portland engaged in an even pitching duel, with no runs being scored until the seventh inning.

That much-traveled Coast leaguer, "Junk" Walters, led Seattle to a 3-2 win over the Missions with a second inning homer that started a 3-run scoring spree. Phil Page gave the Reds nine hits, including Bob Hafey's four-bagger. Lloyd Johnson bled down after being touched for five blows in the first two innings and allowed only two more safeties in the remaining innings.

Propelled to victory by Johnny Bottarini's triple, double and single, San Francisco made it three straight over Oakland, 10-5. Ed Stutz and Ken Douglas combined to give the Seals 7-hit hurling.

ing power for 1 to 1½ mills. The government is to advance funds for the project, the state of Washington eventually repaying 70 per cent, and the state is to complete preliminary survey work. Work starts soon, Senator Dill and Governor Clarence D. Martin said today, including a highway and railroad to the project.

Approval of the Columbia basin project marked the latest step in Mr. Roosevelt's tremendous program for development of the power resources of the nation.

Allied closely with the Grand Coulee dam project is development of the lower Columbia river at Bonneville, Ore., with which the people of Oregon are more immediately concerned, and members of the Oregon congressional delegation have said they understood the president also would give approval to this project, thereby eliminating differences between Washington and Oregon states as to which project should be developed first.

The Columbia basin project at first was purely an irrigation-reclamation idea, with water to be distributed and commerce continued, desert lands, but as conferences between the states of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, the war department and the department of interior and commerce continued, on the subjects of allocation of water, gravity system versus power pumping system and the like, federal officials made it plain they thought development of power should be the primary consideration, and differences between the factions favoring the project were adjusted to that end.
