

CWA WORKERS LOSE LIVES IN SLIDE OF ROCK

Grand Junction, Colo., Dec. 13 (AP)—Nine men, members of a crew working the second day on a federal civil works project, died yesterday in a rock slide.

There were reports two more were swept 300 feet down the face of a cliff in the Colorado national monument, northwest of here, and a search was resumed today.

T. W. Secret, U. S. park service engineer, attributed the tragedy to blasting on the opposite side of the canyon. The blast apparently loosened the 50-foot sandstone cliff towering over the road on which the men were working.

Earlier blasting to loosen rocks farther above also weakened the cliff.

Fifty jobless men were given employment Monday but only 20 members of the crew were in the vicinity of the avalanche.

Three of the victims, working near the edge of the rim road, were swept off the cliff, fell more than 50 feet down the mountainside and were dashed lifeless on the huge boulders below.

The others were crushed on the roadway, buried under the slide.

The dead: Clyde Van Loan, 28; John Rupp, 50; Frank Winters, 55; Ed Carmichael, 60; Leo Adams, 19; Robert Fuller, 28; Buster Moreland, 19; W. L. Wilson, 37, and Harley Beeson, 22.

All except Beeson, who lived in Fruita, Colo., were residents of the Glade Park district, a farming community adjoining the monument territory. Winters, Adams and Fuller were the three plunged down the cliff.

C.C.O. workers on the project started rescue work immediately. Twenty of them were lowered over the cliff and carried the three bodies over steep trails to the canyon entrance.

Bodies of all the victims were brought to Grand Junction. An official investigation and inquest was scheduled for today by Coroner T. F. Voorhees.

The new scenic rimrock road in the Colorado national monument is one of the major relief projects in western Colorado. More than 500 men are employed.

SPEED ON BRIDGES URGED BY MEIER

Still another plea urging speed in allocation of federal money for construction of five Oregon coast highway bridges was made yesterday by Governor Julius L. Meier.

In a telegram to Senator C. L. McNary, Governor Meier stated that the legislature and the highway commission have done everything asked by the federal authorities toward securing the funds.

"These bridges could be under actual construction within 30 days once the money was definitely available," the telegram read. "I would appreciate any suggestions as to what we can do to get early action."

BOY SCOUT PLAYS MAY WEST ROLE

Hawatha, Kan., Dec. 13 (AP)—Billy Martin may be a Boy Scout, but he shouldn't imitate a Mae West character to a lady teacher.

Martin was expelled from high school for dressing in female attire, proclaiming himself to be the teacher, and saying: "Why don't you come up and see me some time?"

He was reinstated a few hours later after he apologized and cited his record as a Scout of eagle rank.

CANCER CONTROL UNIT IS FORMED BY OREGONIANS

There has recently been organized The Oregon Branch of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, with representative doctors in every part of Oregon and a few lay people as officers and directors. Arthur M. Geary, attorney, of Portland, is president of this society. Dr. J. Earl Eise, of Portland, is chairman of the board of managers which controls the educational policy of the society.

Dr. Clarence C. Little, former president of the University of Michigan and a scientist of note, is the managing director of the National Society for the Control of Cancer which has its headquarters in New York City. The national work is financed by some great foundations and wealthy people in the east. State societies are financed by five dollar annual memberships which are taken out by those in sympathy with the purpose of the society, and through benefit entertainments which are given by different individuals and organizations who realize the great necessity to control this dread disease.

Already the educational work in Oregon has been well started through programs on cancer control through the auspices of state, county and city medical societies and at state and county fairs under the direction of the state Cancer Society officers. Several thousands of the visitors to the Cancer Control booth at the Oregon state fair carried home literature, received information from the physician in charge, and asked that a great deal of literature be sent to friends and relatives all over the state.

As one means of financing the work in Oregon the various bridge teachers are giving parties in their studios and are sponsoring other affairs in large club houses and hotels; and many women with large and beautiful homes are planning to offer their houses for these benefit entertainments which are going to take the form of a tournament.

The first party of this series of state-wide interest outside of Portland is being sponsored by Mrs. W. H. Quinn and Miss Belle Harild in Salem on Tuesday, January 2. The Elks club of Salem will open its building for this purpose. A great deal of interest is being shown in this affair which will be a most attractive social event as well as one in which the entire proceeds will be given to the benefit of this important organization.

LUMBER CODE OBSOLETE WITH PROH REPEAL

Portland, Dec. 13 (AP)—The repeal of prohibition and the increased demand for wine storage vats has rendered the lumber code as it applies to the California redwood production allocation obsolete, the national committee of the lumber code authority was told here today.

The California Redwood association applied for an additional 10,000,000 feet of production allocation for the first quarter of 1934, because of the tremendous demands for that wood by the wine industry.

The board opened a ten-day hearing here Tuesday. At its conclusion the production allocations will be fixed for January, February and March. Hundreds of lumber executives from all parts of the country were in attendance.

The Pacific Northwest Loggers' association, a group of independent loggers who sell their logs to independent mills, protested against what they termed unfair advantages granted big lumber companies which do their own logging and sell their logs to their own mills. The big companies, representatives of the association said, have received allocations out of proportion because of taxes paid, number of gross employees and other factors, which tend to "squeeze out" the small independents.

The committee was in executive session today until 2 p.m., when the hearing will be opened again to the loggers and lumbermen.

COAST PACKERS TO FIGHT LOWER RATES

Los Angeles, Dec. 13 (AP)—Efforts of midwestern packing firms to obtain reduced freight rates on shipments to the Pacific coast were resisted today by the coast packing industry at a hearing before interstate commerce commission examiners.

Any reduction would mean ruin to the coast industry, J. A. McNaughton, general manager of the local union stockyards, said. He claimed that reduced rates would "flood" the coast market with middle western meat, thereby imperiling investments that run into millions of dollars.

McNaughton's views were supported by R. S. Sawyer, spokesman for the Associated Jobbers and Manufacturers on the independent freight rate committee.

STUDENTS BOO HANS LUTHER

New York, Dec. 13 (AP)—German Ambassador Hans Luther was heckled and booed while making an address in Horace Mann hall, Columbia university, last night. On the campus outside detachments of police battled 200 students and sympathizers against the Nazi government.

Dr. Luther was heckled during the first part of his address on world disarmament. Cries of "Why did they burn the homes of exiled professors?" with general shouts of "Down with Hitler." Police removed three women hecklers, ushers silenced more, and Dr. Luther proceeded. Only once again was there interruption. When he said Hitler had submitted to the vote of the people following the recent election, showing a democratic idea in Germany, there was loud laughter.

He said that Germany was willing to disarm to the "last rifle" if the rest of the world was willing to do so. The demonstration outside was turbulent. Police used clubs and fists freely and the demonstrators, mostly students, fought back. No arrests were made.
