One of the smallest classes in years will be graduated from Willamette university next June, Dean F. M. Erickson stated Tuesday. This is due to a heavier casualty list among the seniors than is usually experienced. While less than 50 will be graduated in June, this number will be augmented somewhat in early fall when other complete summer school work. For one reason or another several seniors have not been able to keep up their class work. In most instances this is the case where they have had to work their way through. An unusual situation exists at Willamette this year where the greatest number dropping out during the school year have been upper classmen. Usually it is the freshmen who fall by the wayside.

Japan Alarmed At Brazilian Threat

Tokyo, March 21 (AP)—High government officials were described as "gravely alarmed" today at a Brazilian move toward inclusion of resolute measures against Japanese immigration in that nation's constitution.

The situation was compared to that of almost exactly ten years ago when the congress of the United States voted to bar the Japanese.

Brazil in recent years has offered the largest outlet to Nippon's surplus population. In 1913, 22,310 Japanese emigrated there.

The foreign office instructed Kyujiro Hayashi, ambassador to Rio De Janeiro to handle the Brazilian affair tactfully, but firmly.

SEVEN DIE IN EAST SIDE FIRE

New York, March 21 (AP)—Seven persons perished today in a tenement house fire on the upper east side, bringing to 25 the number of deaths from similar fires in the last six weeks.

The fire swept through the three upper floors of an "old law" tenement at 159 Second avenue and trapped a mother and her daughter, a father and his son and three others in the building.

As firemen were taking the first two bodies of the victims from the building, Fire Marshal Thomas P. Brophy noticed a thin, short man, hatless and without an overcoat, following them.

Brophy questioned the man who first said his name was "John Smith," but later acknowledged he was Raymond Montezano, 27, unemployed, and has a wife and two children. Taken to a police station for questioning, he said he was nine blocks away when the fire started.

Brophy said the man could not have seen the fire if he had been where he said he was, and the fire marshal ordered him sent to Bellevue hospital for observation in the psychopathic ward pending an investigation. Brophy said the man told him he had an "invention" for curing insanity.

The identified dead were Mrs. Rose Brolo, wife of Salvatore Brolo, a CWA worker, and their six-year-old daughter, Anna; a man believed to have been Samuel Florio. There was an unidentified boy, believed to be that of Florio's daughter, and two bodies, apparently those of children, burned beyond recognition but believed to be members of the Florio family. The seventh body was that of a boy.

O'HARA AGAINST CITY MANAGER PLAN FOR CITY

Denying that the city council members who are opposing the managerial government ordinance are arrayed against the people, Alderman David O'Hara, who has opposed the movement flatly from its start, expressed himself in a statement for publication today.

Among other arguments he says the salaries paid managers in cities of Salem's class are universally higher than has been represented by the proponents of the measure.

"The official group endeavoring so assiduously to engrave a high priced manager upon the city payroll evidently prefer trying their case in the newspapers to bringing the proposal out on the floor of the city council where it can be discussed by the full membership of that body as well as by the taxpayers generally," says O'Hara's statement.

"It is now made to appear that those members of the council who oppose the plan are arrayed against the people. What they are actually doing is resisting the attempt to railroad this program through before anyone is given a fair opportunity in public debate to present the other side of the question."

"City managers come high, and except in rare instances, accomplish little. In the only six 'managerial cities' of the United States comparable in size to Salem (25,000 to 30,000), the salaries paid the managers as of July 1, 1932, were as follows: Alhambra, Calif., $7,500; Bakersfield, Calif., $5,000; New London, Conn., $6,500; West Palm Beach, Florida, $4,200; Newport, Ky., $8,000; Albuquerque, N. M., $6,000— an average of $6,215 per year. Quite a difference from the $3,000 to $4,000 per year that has been mentioned several times by members of the local committee."

"The adoption of the city manager plan has not enabled cities to lower their tax rates or to make any appreciable reduction in annual expenditures, or to cut down their bonded indebtedness. It has accomplished some of these things in individual cities, but not in general." Munro on Government of the United States, (MacMillan Company, 1931) page 703.

"The degree of enthusiasm prevailing for 'managerial' government is illustrated by the vote at the special election, July 21, 1933, when the people were asked to approve managers for counties. The proposition lost by nearly 3 to 1 throughout the state and by more than 2 to 1 in Marion county. It was defeated in every one of Salem's 24 precincts. That was only eight months ago. Yet to determine whether the same voters that turned down a county manager will still be persuaded to take the half-dozen city managers for the city, the taxpayers are asked to foot the bill for another special election."

"Out of a total of over 16,000 incorporated cities in the United States, 416 have adopted the manager system. Less than 3 per cent. From 35 to 40 discarded it after a brief trial. We are excited about a theory that has been propagated over a quarter of a century and has failed so utterly to win popular recognition."

"Many other facts can be cited to expose the weakness of the manager system. At least its non-salaried governing body has been uniformly honest, and that is something. The experience of other cities indicates that there would be no reasonable prospect of improvement under a pompous, imperious, functionary chiefly interested in drawing an excessive salary."

"Taxes for city purposes have been reduced consistently during the last five years. Your tax receipts will prove this and will show that no other local tax levying body has done as well."

"As a subject for visionary argumentation, the city manager question will always rank high, probably well up with single tax, and the 18 to 1 silver doctrine."

"For all practical purposes, it seems to have been quite definitely settled by the refusal of more than 97 per cent of American cities to experiment with it."

Prof. Von Echen, formerly with Willamette university but now in California, has undergone a serious operation and his son, Jervis Von Echen, left last night to be with his father.

FEDERAL LOAN PLAN EXPLAINED TO ROTARIANS

Mortgages on homes in Salem are better investments than any foreign bond or development, yet millions of dollars of Salem money have been taken out of the community in the past 10 years, Charles H. Stewart, of the federal home loan bank in Portland, told the Rotary club Wednesday noon in connection with an explanation of the major provisions of the new federal financial system. Of the three major operations, the federal savings and loan plan and the home loan bank are permanent and will be a part of the federal system while the temporary federal corporation is temporary and designed to avert foreclosure on homes and to relieve distressed mortgagors.

Investment concerns, which in the past have financed mortgages, will in the future be restricted to their own local field Stewart declared. Local associations will have funds matched with federal money up to $100,000 and in addition can borrow 300 per cent from the home loan banks, he said.

The general impression in the past has been that saving and loan associations have been demand institutions but this never has been true and a 60 day notice of withdrawal has been required. Because the withdrawal plan was never explained in detail many people believe that the savings and loan associations have fallen down in the last few years, but that is not the general case, Stewart said.

The purpose of the federal saving and loan system is to provide a safe place for savings and a definite investment, being purely mutual and not promotional in nature. Through this set-up construction, at a standstill for nearly four years can be resumed. Even through the depression, the percentage of losses by building and loan groups was smaller than that sustained by any other form of investment, he said.

The state is only 21 days in arrears on payment of warrants, the state treasurer's office announced today in calling $254,582.86 general fund warrants issued through February 23.

Today's call leaves only $546,497.89 outstanding in general warrants. Officials characterized the condition as the best the treasury has enjoyed for many months.

Prompt payments by counties of state taxes, increased property tax payments, early income tax receipts and a decrease in delinquencies were listed among the reasons for improvement.

JULIAN LINKED WITH LIBERTY BOND THEFT

Los Angeles, March 21 (AP)—The name of C. C. Julian, oil stock promoter, was linked with an investigation of stolen liberty bonds today when Assistant U. S. Attorney Ernest Uley revealed that he was investigating reports that a number of bonds had found their way to China where Julian now resides.

Uley said that there was nothing to indicate that Julian knew that the bonds were stolen from Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas banks, even if they ever fell into his possession. As a check, however, Uley said he was asking Shanghai officials to inquire into the bond situation there.

Julian fled to Shanghai to avoid extradition to Oklahoma City on charges of mail fraud.

EXPOSURE FOUND DIFFICULT WORK

Paris, March 21 (AP)—Exposure of some politicians who accepted favors from Alexandre Stavisky, fraudulent banker, may never be possible, authorities feared today.

They were dismayed by testimony of Jean Schenaris, clerk at the offices of Stavisky's Pincere Compagnie, that check stubs were falsified, names of prominent persons being written in, in order to intimidate or to entice other prominent persons.

Schenaris, testifying before a parliamentary investigating committee, said that Gilbert Romagnolo, Stavisky's secretary and bodyguard, made the false entries and also frequently forged Stavisky's signature. He added that he believed most of the check stubs in possession of the committee were falsified ones, and that many authentic check stubs remained to be found.

INSURANCE TAX FOR JOBLESS HELD JUSTICE

Washington, March 21 (AP)—Secretary of Labor Francis Perkins approved before a house ways and means subcommittee today the Wagner-Lewis unemployment insurance bill which provides for a five per cent excise tax on the total annual payroll of industrial employers.

Mrs. Perkins said the measure would produce revenue estimated at $1,000,000,000 a year and that the tax "is both profitable and fair."

"The vast federal expenditures for unemployment relief make this billion dollars in new revenue doubly necessary," Mrs. Perkins said. "It is only fair that the employers should be called upon to help pay the huge expense of caring for people whom they dismiss often without a thought as to their future. In the past, it was the custom for the full risk of unemployment to be borne by the worker, and the full burden first by the worker and then by the public at large."

"In the future some of this burden must, in all fairness, fall upon the employers, in whom the workers ordinarily look for jobs and security."

Mrs. Perkins said objections to the tax were groundless, that it would not impede recovery as the first collection would not be made until July, 1935.

The bill introduced in the senate by Senator Robert E. Wagner, (D., N. Y.), and in the house by Representative David Lewis, (D., Md.), permits industrial employers to offset against the tax whatever amount they contribute under compulsory state unemployment insurance laws. The tax does not affect employers of agricultural labor or of domestic servants or nurses and teachers in schools. Industrial employers of fewer than 10 workers also would be exempt.

Motor vehicle accidents reported over night were: M. MacDonald, 430 North 20th street, and Russell Maw, route 9, at
