Heroizing Crime

The reason John Dillinger, super-gangster and multi-murderer is enabled to continue his career of crime and his phantom-like flitting around the country between bank hold-ups is because he is regarded as a hero by silly sentimentalists whose sense of justice is so strangely perverted and anti-social that they afford him refuge and asylum and maintain a conspiracy of silence to prevent his apprehen-

Dillinger's escape from the Indiana jall was through the sympathy and convivance of officials employed to guard him. His recovery from wounds received in a battle with police at St. Paul was due to the aid and assistance of a surgeon and nurse. He attended a family reunion at Mooreville, In-diana, visited his sister in Indianapolis and was recognized diana, visited his sister in indianapolis and was recognized by neighbors who safeguarded him.

It is not surprising to learn that home town friends of Dillinger are circulating a petition asking the governor to pardon him, which has been largely signed. It urges par-don on the condition that the outlaw surrenders to the near-est local authority and agrees to be good and discontinue association with criminals—about the most absurd proposal

Probably similar mandlin sympathy for notorious gangsters exists among the clannish hill-billies of Oklahoma and Kansas as well as the Ozarks, which is the main reason why the man hunts fail. Cooperation of the country-side is refused the authorities, and the fugitives kept informed of the movements of peace-officers and so are always ahead of them or hidden from them.

Grange Resolutions

In the series of resolutions adopted by the Marion county grange is one demanding legislation to compel public office holders to resign on becoming candidates for other offices than they hold, because the practise of retaining the occupied office deprives the people of opportunity to elect a successor, who must be appointed. The candidacy of Rufus Holman, state treasurer is probably the inspiration of the resolution, for if he should be nominated and elected governor be could among the large and treasurer and the state of the state resolution, for if he should be nominated and elected governor, he could appoint his own successor as trensurer and thus dominate the board of control.

Another measure which the grange favors, is a curb on the power of the legislature to pass bills that have just been voted down by the people, limiting legislative action to passage of such bills only if resubmitted to the people. The grange itself has been responsible for the re-passage of many measures after their rejection by popular vote, recent instances being the income tax bills, Rogue river fish bill, the Oleonargarine bill, etc.

One resolution of the grange will receive universal approval, that requesting that in Marion county tax statements be mailed all taxpayers as a matter of information. Many counties do this and it is only fair to the taxpayers that they be notified in advance of the amount they owe, as other debtors are notified, instead of having to stand in line for hours to find out.

Crowding the Platform

A glance at the slogans and platforms of a majority of the candidates for state office shows that approval of the Bonneville dam is almost universal, and this dispite the fact that Bonneville is a federal project and its power under fed-eral control, which will be along similar lines to that of the Tennessee valley (Muscle Shoals) and other government pro-

Neither the state officials nor the legislature will have anything to do with the sale or distribution of this power. save as local districts may organize for its purchase and re-sale along lines set forth by the government. To claim re-sponsibility for Bonneville is merely political ballyhoo, but each of the self-starters has to invent an excuse for his candidacy—even if it is one of bunk.

The only candidate for governor on either ticket who has had anything to do with Bonneville is General Martin, who led the battle for its construction, and along with Senator McNary, is chiefly responsible for the materialization of the project. He, better than anyone knows what effective co-operation the state can extend. Yet most of the others are claiming the credit and promising "free power without cost," which is one of those pleasing political myths that appeal to the unthinking.

Then went in also that other disciple, Jno. 20:8

A hundred years and Roman Bushnell was acknowledged to be the greatest preacher of America and our text was the one he used for his greatest serinon, the discourse upon Unconscious Influence Peter and John had heard the new that the Lords tomb was round to be empty. They ran to the sepulctor but John was younger and arrived first. He looked into the want turned and eager only to solve the mystery maked into the sepulcher. Then John went in also, Peter had no chought of influencing Johns age-poin, but his action induced John in follow him.

In our relations with our fellows we do not care to reveal our minious selves, so we were a mask We guard our speech and our actions, less these betray our real selves. This is not because we are cillains, and dealer to pose as saints, but there is a reserve we all feel must be maintained. We do not care to wear our hearts upon our sleeves.

But sometimes our real selves rewal themselves without intention on our part, it may be by a look, a gesture, a tone of voice. And this self-revelation means more to the observing than possibly months of conventional inferrourse. A few seven per cent up.

Booting—Something will cone, however, from another secret survey being conducted by the administraheing conducted by the administration into obscissoence in the capinal goods market.

Who is making the investigation is not definitely known, but it may be Walker's outfit.

The idea is to learn all possible replacements which could be made for capital goods and then to have the government do something about atimulating replacements by encouracting easy financing of them.

It is the thing most needed now.
The capital goods market is lagging weefully while consumers goods have been recovering.
