STRIKE CONDITIONS TOLD BY ROSHEIMS

Silverton—Among the first communications from relatives living in the strike area of San Francisco to reach Silverton is that from Mrs. Lawrence Rosheim (Laura Norgaard), to her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Rosheim Wednesday.

She stated that the Rosheim boys had been compelled to close their food shops Monday. Also that she was continuing her work in an office of a railroad company, but that she had to walk 4 1/2 miles each way to work, that she did not go unattended as that would not be safe. All other members of the Rosheim family in San Francisco are laid off from work.

Mrs. Rosheim stated that the food supply situation was most critical, saying that the raising of private homes and leaving the cupboard bare was a common thing and that their immediate group had sufficient to tide them over several days unless they were raided as a number of their neighbors had been. She pictured the city as unusual indeed, in the absence of all vehicles of conveyance, which could mean nothing short of intense suffering within the next few days unless a halt was called.
