133,302 Attendance At Local Playgrounds During Summer Time

Attendance at the Leslie and Olinger playgrounds during the season which closed this month is fixed at 133,202 in a report issued today by Lestle Sparks, superintendent of recreation, detailing activities of the varied program which was inaugurated with the completion of swimming pools on the two fields. Olinger field, with its pool open several weeks in advance of the one at Leslie had the greater attendance. Olinger field attracted 73,319 persons during the season as compared with 59,883 at Leslie.

The cost of operating the two playgrounds, including maintenance and supervision is fixed at $11,-010.78 in the report. This figure may be changed to a light extent since all of the bills have not been audited. Of the total expense involved the city contributed $1015.82, the school board $2,560, Willamette university, $450 and the SERA organization $6,984.96. The university's contribution was in the nature of office space, tennis courts, athletic fields and equipment.

Swimming proved the most popular single attraction offered by the playgrounds, more than 50,000 articipating in this form of amusement.

The horseshoe courts, nine at Olinger and eight at Leslie, drew the greater share of adult patronage, although the picnic grounds were much in demand.

Reports of Mrs. Gace Wolgamott, director of playground activities, and of Vernon Gilmore, director of swimming, are incorporated in Sparks' resume of the summer activities. Recommendations by Gilmore include: Olinger field—Construction of retaining wall between west side of Olinger pool and bath house, installation of fore drains in bath house, curbing for showers, apply another cost of paint on interior of bath house, basket system for checking clothes, filtration system, seal up wall between boiler room and both house to prevent smoke and soot from discoloring woodkork. Leslie—Filtration system to cut cost of water, basket system for clothes, railing along top of bank on west side of pool.

The personnel of the playground system included R. S. Keene, chairman of city board; Dr. Barrick, member city board; Frank Neer and Walter Minier, school board members; L. J. Sparks, superintendent of recreation; Grace Wolgamott, diretcor of playground activities; Vernon Gilmore, director of swimming; Gurnee Flesher, supervisor of boys' activities, Leslie field, and Mrs Margaret Nelson, supervisor of girls' activities, Leslie.

Whether the playgrounds will be conducted next season as they were this year is not known.

MEHAMA CAMP FOR TRANSIENTS TO HOUSE 200

A. R. Baker, in charge of the new government transient camp above Mehama, was in Salem today and reported that plans are laid for a 200-man camp at the site selected on the river. Work of constructing buildings is now under way and one of five barrack buildings is now in progress with the flooring to be completed today. Each of these barracks will hold 40 men and will be 20x60 feet in size. The dining hall or mess hall, will have two dining rooms, each 20x60 and in addition will house the kitchen.

Work is also getting started on a bath houes which will be 20x50 feet. The recreation hall to be erected will be 24x80 feet. In addition there will be an office, tool house and other necessary buildings.

There are now 85 men at the camp. A gravel road has been constructed into the camp from the main road and the grounds cleared and put in shape and a crew of men has also been working on clearing that section of the North Santiam highway which will pass by the camp. The camp is four and a half miles above Mehama or two miles above Taylor's camp. The buildings are all being constructed on a plan for permanence and when their present use is over they will be turned over to the county for any use they may fit into. The camp is on the old Dr. Bloom place now owned by Tillmon Range. Five acres were purchased by the county from Range and given to the government for the camp, the land as well as buildings to revert to the county when the government no longer has use for it.

LUMBERMEN TO PROTEST PRICES

Portland, Sept. 21 (AP)—Although definite figures were not announced, representatives of lumbermen opposing price-fixing provisions of the NRA, declared here today that "a majority" of Pacific northwest mills have signed a petition to General Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, urging that price-fixing be eliminated.

The canvass for signatures probably will be completed tomorrow, it was said by E. T. Sturgeon of Portland who is leading the drive against price control.

The petitions to Johnson argue that price fixing is impossible of enforcement, but that lumbermen generally are in favor of retaining the minimum wage and hour provisions of the code.

The attention of General Johnson also is called to what was described as "results of an independent poll just completed by theCrow Pacific Coast Lumber Digest, showing over 80 percent of all the 1400 mills in this district either have already abandoned entirely or in part the price fixing feature of the code."

ASSOCIATED OIL OFFICIALS HERE ON INSPECTION

Salem was submerged in a flood tide of oil men yesterday headed by William F. Humphrey, president of the Tidewater-Associated Oil company which owns the Associated Oil company. Along with him were B. I. Graves, vice-president of the Associated Oil company; C. R. Brown, assistant to the president; P. E. Allen, domestic sales manager; R. H. Cook, district sales manager, and Kenneth Neff, the new local manager who recently came here from Eugene to succeed Ted Endicott, transferred to Seattle.

President Humphrey declared that the Associated Oil company is confident that conditions on the Pacific coast will continue to improve.

"We are backing the belief with a program calling for the expenditure of $350,000 in construction of new service stations and the expenditure of additional hundreds of thousands for the advertising of Associated products," he states. "Sales of automobiles and petroleum products are showing an increase as a direct result of improvement in farm prices and a more stable employment situation. Most important, however, is the general feeling of confidence one finds everywhere throughout the western states."

One of the things he also touched on was the campaign being put over by his company for cleaner rest rooms and to back up the campaign the company is conducting a complete renovization, painting up, and adding new equipment and sanitary features with insistence that stations be so maintained.

Mr. Gardner is a grower of pears and had a good crop which was disposed of this year to the Hillsboro cannery.

Cost Of Well Water Averages 4th Of Cost Of Gravity Systems

For factory use well water costs from 1 to 2 cents a hundred cubic feet in Portland against an average of about 6 cents from Bull Run gravity flow, according to R. J. Strasser and Crawford Reid of Portland who were in Salem yesterday. The former represents the R. J. Strasser Drilling company which has drilled some 700 wells in various parts of the country, and Reid represents a pump concern. This includes interest, depreciation, power and maintenance.

Relative to the cost of establishing water systems Strasser says it usually works out that the cost of wells and pumps is about one-fourth of the cost of a gravity system.

Strasser has drilled a number of wells in Portland. One of these is on the Libby, McNeil & Libby property at 22nd street and Powell Valley road. It is a 12-inch well 330 feet deep and flows 1725 gallons a minute. The Dairy Cooperative association, largest creamery on the Pacific coast, has a well on Madison street between 11th and 12th that is 12 inches in diameter, 275 feet deep and flows 1000 gallons a minute by test.

Portland has about 35 water users having wells similar to those described above who do not use Bull Run water. All the golf courses and most slaughter houses use well water, Strasser said. Los Angeles, notwithstanding the millions of dollars spent there to get mountain water, has a large number of wells.

Strasser considers the Salem Municipal airport an excellent location for a city well. A site on the airport has been suggested locally for the reason it would have no purchase cost attached and would cut down expense to some extent. The well could be built with pump below ground so it would not interfere with the landing of airplanes.

Strasser looked at the well at the State Industrial School for Girls. It is a successful well but his opinion was that the center of the valley southeast of Salem would give a better flow.

UNION BREWERY DUBBED UNFAIR

Portland, Sept. 21 (AP)—Labor trouble between truck driver members of two unions, both affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, appeared no nearer a solution here today despite a statement from the central labor council here purporting to clarify the situation.

For two weeks the Northwest Brewing company here has been picketed by members of the teamsters' union. There have been many cases of violence; drivers of the brewery trucks have been beaten, and trucks have been hi-jacked; stores selling the beer have had their windows smashed, and men have been attacked.

The drivers of the Northwest Brewery trucks belong to the Brewery Workers' union, an A. F. of L. affiliate with a truck driving unit. Members of the Teamsters' union of the A. F. of L., have insisted the brewery hire drivers from that union.

Yesterday the central labor council ruled that the Northwest Brewery was "unfair" because it did not hire truckers from the Teamters' union. Gust Anderson, secretary of the council, said the A. F. of L. has awarded jurisdiction over brewery trucks to the teamsters' organization.

PRISON RECORD OF VERNER A. PRICE

Verner A. Price, charged with grand larceny, slated to appear before Judge McMahan September 27 for sentence, but who is now at large on his own recognizance, has a sizeable police and prison record according to information received by Salem police headquarters today from the California bureau of identification at Sacramento.

On August 16, 1932, Price was arrested in Chelan county, Wash., as a fugitive wanted in Douglas county, Ore., for forgery. For this crime he was sentenced to two years in the Oregon penitentiary.

On May 10, this year, he was arrested in Salem for disorderly conduct and served 12½ days in the county jail in lieu of a $25 fine.

On August 28, this year, he was arrested for the theft of about half a ton of sugar from the Star Cannery of Salem. He pleaded guilty in circuit court and was released on his own recognizance pending sentence September 27.
