ROADS BLOCKED BY SNOWDRIFTS

Bend, Or., Jan. 21 (AP)—The Dalles-California highway north of Bend was blocked by snowdrifts in three places this afternoon and all traffic north of Madras to Craterrean was halted. Snowdrifts ranging up to twelve feet in depth covered the road near Craterrean and Culver and between Metolius and Madras.

By detouring through wheatfields around the drifts, a stage from Bend reached Madras today, but was unable to go north from that point. The snowdrifts in most instances were in deep cuts into which high winds packed snow last night.

The highway department has assembled all available snow removing equipment both north and south of the blockades and it was hoped the road would be open by night.

South of Bend the highway was open and in fair condition. Snow was melting here this afternoon, with the temperature at 40 degrees, a rise of 54 degrees in 30 hours.

JAPAN PURCHASES CHINESE EASTERN

Tokyo, Jan. 21 (AP)—(Tuesday)—Technical negotiations for the purchase of the Chinese Eastern railroad by Manchukuo were completed here today at a conference of representatives from Manchukuo and Soviet Russia.

Formal signing of the agreement will be made shortly. Transfer of the Russian interest to the new Manchukuo empire was considered by many observers as a great relief to frequent periods of tension between the Soviet republic, Manchukuo and Japan. Sporadic clashes along the border had punctuated a dispute which started last spring over the operation of the Chinese Eastern line.

Announcement that a technical agreement had been reached led to belief that the most important problem—guarantee of Manchukuo payments by Japan—had been accepted by Russia.

SHOOTS FATHER TO PROTECT MOTHER

Portland, Ore., Jan. 21 (AP)—Norman E. Schroeder, 43, police harbor patrol engineer, remained in a serious condition today from a bullet wound, and his step-daughter, Margaret Beckett, 17, was in custody for the shooting.

Police were told the girl fired point blank at Schroeder as he was trying to break down a door to a room in which his wife had taken refuge after he had beaten her. The bullet from Schroeder's service revolver entered his back. Detectives announced today Schroeder said he would not sign a complaint against the girl.

TOWNSENDITES TO STORM SESSION

With hundreds of supporters of the Townsend Old Age Pension plan scheduled to attend the hearing late today on the proposal to memorialize congress to pass the act, the routine acts of the two houses today were relegated to secondary importance in Oregon legislative events.

The hearing will be held in the house chamber before the house unemployment committee, with Mrs. Nanny Wood Honeymann of Portland presiding. No memorial is yet before the house but the public hearing was called at the suggestion of supporters of the Townsend plan or some form of old age insurance.

TAX STATEMENTS GOING INTO MAIL

For the first time in Marion county, at least in many years, tax statements for the 1935 payment of taxes, are being mailed by the sheriff's office to the property holders of the county. The mailing began today.

The tax collection division of the sheriff's office has added several stenographers and clerks to its force to get the statements into the mail. About 25,000 statements are to be sent out. The office force will work in two shifts, one from 8 o'clock a. m. to 5 p. m. and the other from 5 p. m. to 1 o'clock a. m.

The divorce case of Marjorie Ratcliffe against Robey Ratcliffe which has caused much interest here from charges and countercharges in complaint, answer and cross complaint, came to trial before Judge Lewelling today in circuit court here. The plaintiff, Mrs. Ratcliffe, was first witness and told her story, including in it her side of kissing episodes which had been brought up by her husband in his charges. She said kissing had been with relatives, a young student, who had practically been brought up with her mother, and a brother-in-law on the verge of death. Numerous matters of family disagreement were brought out in the testimony. Attorneys said the trial probably would close today.

Sunday Fire Occurs Maudie's Inn Resort

Fire burned a hole through the roof of Maudie's Inn, east of Salem, yesterday afternoon, and did some damage to walls. Had the city fire department not made a run outside the city limits in response to the alarm the building probably would have been destroyed. The fire started from a flue.

Three chimney fires occurred this afternoon, the fire department sending equipment to all of them. They were at 15th and Market, 255 Superior and 1380 North 17th. Yesterday afternoon chimney fires occurred at 1075 North Capitol and before noon today at 1350 South Commercial.

TRIO OF FLEEING CONS CAPTURED

Springfield, Mo., Jan. 21 (AP)—The body of James O'Neil, 36, former railroad brakeman, who, three fugitive Oklahoma convicts said, was killed as they escaped under police gunfire here yesterday, was found today on a side road northeast of Ash Grove.

Hubert Brooks of the Missouri state highway patrol and Tom Persell, Springfield policeman searching in zero weather since last night, reported the discovery.

The convicts captured yesterday, had told officers they placed the dead man behind a brush pile during a brief halt in their flight.

Reputy Sheriff W. V. Stonum said the trio admitted they kidnaped Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lewis of Ark., Saturday night and robbed them of their motorcar, the machine in which they were captured. The three, Vern Brothers, Coney Coffey, and Earl Williams, surrendered to officers near Nevada, Mo., after their motor car had swerved into a field in an attempt to turn around on the icy pavement.

DRUNKEN DRIVER GETS 30 DAYS $100

Samuel Edward Mills changed his plea of not guilty to that of guilty of drunken driving before Judge McMahan this morning and was sentenced to serve 30 days in jail and pay a fine of $100. Mills, a local tailor, drove his car into another car in front of the city police station.

His case was tried in justice court where he was convicted and sentenced there to 30 days in jail and pay a fine of $100 and he took appeal to the circuit court. He was given several hours to straighten up his affairs today before starting to serve his sentence.

The trial of Kenneth Darrell Birch before a jury in Judge McMahan's court was taken up again today, testimony starting to be put in, the jury having been selected Saturday. The case was expected to get to the jury some time this afternoon. Birch also is charged with an offense similar to that of Mills, it being alleged he was driving a truck which got into a collision with a car on the river road near Halls ferry.

an opportunity to give careful study to the revised measure they indicated that they were agreeable to the general principle, although they might suggest some slight changes as to details.

House bill 3, transferring budget making and supervisory powers to the governor and authorizing him to order consolidations and eliminations, with certain exceptions, is back in the hands of the house committee on administration and reorganization today being closely scrutinized as to its possible effects on the powers of the board of control. While thus being studied from the legislative angle, D. O. Hood of Portland, reputed to be the governor's selection for temporary budget director and who would thus be delegated to administer the new duties, arrived on the scene and spent the morning in conference with Governor Martin and in sizing up the legislative situation, particularly as it pertains to approval of the budget plan.

Early this morning Governor Martin announced that he would have no appointments to announce during the day, but the secret star-chamber session of the board of control held during the noon hour, at which Treasurer Holman indicated consideration would be given to the flax industry problem, the resignation of William Einzig, secretary of the board, and the election of his successor, gave rise to a buzz of job-by-apeculation.

Election of Successor To Needham Principal Business Before Council

Election of a member of the city council to succeed Frank E. Needham of the third ward will be the most important business coming before the city council tonight—if the election takes place.

There was some possibility today that the election might be deferred two weeks while the sentiment among the aldermen as to whom the successor should be crystallized further. As it looked today the choice was likely to fall to John D. Minto.

The opinion of the council seemed to trend that way. W. H. Dancy, former alderman, is in the race, so is Arthur E. Moore, although two councilmen said they had seen a statement signed by Moore in which he said he would withdraw. One Alderman said he saw this statement last Thursday night at a council caucus, and that the withdrawal was in favor of Minto. The alderman added that he understood Moore was back in the race and this was confirmed by Moore this afternoon.

"My name is in the pit," he said. "I am running against a pair of Jacks." Reference was to Jack Minto and Jack Dancy.

Efforts were made to call a caucus Sunday, but this did not materialize. One alderman said today he thought the completion of the campaigning today would be "by but-hole instead of by caucus." He added that he thought Minto had enough votes for election.

Several members wanted to see the issue settled in caucus to avoid personalities on the floor of the council and the necessity of taking more than one ballot.

It is presumed the council tonight will elect a city mechanic, a new office recently created. Over a dozen applications were in the hands of the city recorder today and several ballots may be necessary.

New developments in the water controversy probably will be aired tonight. Among important measures to come up for third reading, if reported out, will be the heating code introduced by Alderman Carl Armstrong.

Dr. Hoeh, mayor of Bend, and a member of the state legislature, will be a guest at tonight's meeting and may be called on to address the Salem aldermen.

TROOPS GATHER ALONG BORDER

Berlin, Jan. 21 (AP)—German newspapers accused Lithuania of "saber rattling" today as a Lithuanian official admitted a concentration of troops along the Memel border.

Dr. Jurgis Saulys, Lithuanian minister to Berlin, readily acknowledged the concentration but said, however, that Germany has increased its "armed forces along the German-Lithuanian frontier."

The German propaganda ministry denied any movement of the SA (storm troops) along the frontier.

"We called in reserves of the 1997 and 1998 divisions for a three month's practice according to schedule," said Dr. Saulys.

"The fact that we concentrate them along the Memel territory rather than elsewhere in Lithuania need not be the occasion for surprise when one learns the Germans have increased their armed forces along the German-Lithuanian frontier, and that in Tilsit (German border city) there has been an appreciable increase in machine guns."

"Lithuania does not intend to create trouble. Our measures are entirely according to schedule."

Earlier a statement from the Lithuanian capital denied German press reports of troop concentration.

Nazi newspapers take the stand that the city of Memel should be restored to Germany.

Memel, under a convention of the League of Nations in 1924, is a unit within the sovereignty of Lithuania, but with some degree of administrative and financial self-rule.

The port is Lithuania's only outlet to the sea. Before the World War it was administered by the Allies after 1918 while its status was being argued but in 1923 Lithuanians seized it by a surprise attack, forcing a French garrison to evacuate.

The cooperation of Harry Riches, Marion county agricultural agent, has been sought by the Salem chamber of commerce in connection with securing of contracts with farmers of the valley for the raising of 1000 acres of flax. The Champagne company of France is seeking the acreage, the product to be used in the manufacture of the cigarette paper. The Champagne company's interests are being looked after by Wm. Einzig, secretary of the state board of control. While some acreage has been signed up additional farmers are being sought who will contract. The price offered is $23 a ton for cut flax, equal to about $25 per ton for the pulped product.

RECLAMATION ENDORSED BY SURVEY BOARD

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—The Haw-Schmitt land survey committee recommended today to Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes that the federal government continue reclamation work in the west.

"Except for the influence of the present depressed farming conditions and operating projects are in the main excellently developed and represent strong prosperous communities," the board reported.

The board pointed out that present reclamation procedure "encounters its most troublesome problems in the financial relations between the water users and the government."

It said "problems arise from the fact that the reclamation bureau, though not a banking agency, is required to carry out the banking function of collecting the installment payments on the cost of the works."

The committee recommended the reclamation bureau be relieved of this financial responsibility.

The board said that "for permanent security of irrigated agriculture, future reclamation should include measures that will prevent overdevelopment of land beyond the available water supply, and control of storage should remain in hands of the federal government to assure equitable distribution."

The committee recommended a uniform policy for reclamation and utilization of power produced on such projects.

Reclamation power recommendations, the committee said, should include the principle that the farming enterprise and the power enterprise are independent activities and, to be sound, should each stand on its own feet."

A and PWA engineer for Oregon, advising that all municipalities in the state list all possible projects that might be built with federal money as a means of furnishing employment to thousands of the jobless people of the state. Salem has been among the first in making up its list. Mayor V. E. Kuhn declared today that if federal money for this purpose is to be distributed he is going to see that Salem gets its share.

The mayor has been pushing the project-listing job for several days, and the local situation was gone over in a general way at a meeting of the mayor and several engineers last week.

To the proposed fire alarm system may be added another item calling for the establishment of electric traffic signal devices at some of the Salem business intersections. No estimate of the cost of this had been arrived at today.

It is understood the water works item will have to go in as an application to the public works administration instead of the SERA, but it has been included in the SERA list on the advice of Mr. Hookley.

D. O. Hood, Portland investment man said to be slated for appointment by Governor Charles H. Martin as budget director, conferred with the governor today but declared he had not yet been given the job. Estes Snedecor, legal advisor to the governor, and John E. Cooter, speaker of the house of representatives, sat in on the meeting. Lobby gossip said Hood might become the governor's contact man with the legislature.
