

BUTTER PRICE STILL LOWER ALONG COAST

Portland, Ore., Feb. 7 (AP)—For the second successive day Oregon butter prices were lowered. Curb prices were slashed one-half cent a pound. Butterfat dropped one cent.

Trading in the local egg market is generally without material price change for the day.

Chicago has purchased a few carloads of Oregon onions for early movement in that direction. Local market continues to offer $1.25 net to growers at the source. Local jobbing prices are firmer to higher again.

First carload of 1935 potatoes was due from Florida during the day with other carloads lots reported as rolling to the Pacific northwest.

Old potato trade remains slow. Chipmunk and Steelhead salmon supplies liberally increased.

Smelt are less plentiful because the price is not satisfactory to fishermen.

Ripe bananas are scarce and are held firm at 5-5 1/2 lb.

Hothouse tomatoes are rapidly ending the season. Mexicans are firmer to higher.

Hothouse rhubarb is down again. Resales to retailers $1-1.50 for 15c. Cellar sweet potatoes firmer and higher for late arrivals.

Artichokes are a trifle lower.
