Miss Henningsen Weds in China

Salem friends of the bride and her family are much interested to learn of the marriage on April 30, in Shanghai, China, of Miss Ardeane Henningsen, daughter of Mrs. A. P. Henningsen and the late Mr. Henningsen, and Wellesley Wright of Peacedale, R. I. The ceremony was performed in Trinity cathedral in Shanghai, and the English choir boys sang during the service. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Anker B. Henningsen, wore a beautiful gown of French white satin, with a silver sheen, imported from Paris, made with a square neck, long sleeves hand-embroidered with silver thread, and a long train. Her face veil and the long veil cut in graduated length till it covered the long train of the gown, were of tulle. She carried lilies-of-the-valley.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. U. Severin Harkson, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. R. A. Henningsen, who wore frocks of white mousseline de soie with pink velvet sashes and hats trimmed with pink flowers. The bride's little nephews, Robert Harkson and Anker Henningsen, Jr., made picturesque trainbearers in their white satin suits.

The best man came from Tienton for the event, and there were six ushers at the wedding, which was attended by several hundred relatives and friends of the couple. A reception for 300 guests was held at the Columbia Country club.

Miss Margaret Cosper To Be Honored Guest At Numerous Affairs

TEACHING some 10,000 youngsters the principles of fine citizenship as well as the three R's has been the job of Salem's public school system this June after 51 consecutive years of teaching. The other afternoon we breezed up to Garfield school, walked up the sidewalk, flanked by children recessing and having a fine time for themselves, entered the building and wended our way to Miss Cosper's office.

Filled with flowers, it was... and the first thing after we'd said our greetings, was a grand discussion on flowers. Friends who are thrilled at the thought of her life-long devotion to education, and the children, attending Garfield school, of which she has been principal since 1909, had brought them to her.

We talked of this and that... politics, the changing trend in education, the tendency nowadays to spare the rod and the infinite interested children hold for the teacher as well as the fond parents... and travel. Miss Cosper loves travel—several years ago she spent a summer abroad with Anne Shannon Monroe.

Miss Cosper has grown with the city's educational system. Fifty-one years ago this past fall Miss Cosper took her first teaching position after her completion of Willamette university. A timid young girl, she was a little terrified of her first school superintendent (she has had 13 others as her superiors since then) when first he came to call. He greeted her with a "How are you making it, little girl?"—and went on to say he'd take her class for the rest of the day. It was all a jest, of course, but it made the reticent young teacher feel at once that the superintendent was interested in her and as human as anyone else.

She's never stopped pursuing knowledge for a moment. Tremendously well read in the adult field, she also knows the newest and the finest in children's books. Just this past year her pet project has been the acquisition of a Garfield library... the books have been bought from the proceeds of paper drives conducted by the children. Good pictures fill the rooms of the Garfield school. They were chosen by Miss Cosper and hung in each room. Three charming pieces of marble statuary are placed in the large hall. These, too, were chosen by the educator.

During the summer months she has made an effort to study at various institutions of higher learning... at Chicago, Long Beach, Berkeley and Boston. Then the summer abroad was another high point in her life. With Miss Monroe, renowned Oregon author, she visited the capitals of Europe, absorbing the love of good pictures and the historical interest which comes with travel.

Besides her studying and keeping abreast with the times she has served on education boards including 12 years under Governors Oswald West, James Withycombe and Ben Olcott on the state text book commission; treasurer of the State Teachers' association for four years; secretary of the county teachers' association and on the state examining board. With Miss Cornelia Marvin, now Mrs. Walter M. Pierce, wife of Congressman Pierce, she worked in the state library during the summer months.

When the school bell rings for the last time in June, Miss Cosper will have a full schedule as usual. She'll miss the children, the ever-changing parade of them, and the Garfield faculty, of course—but then, as she says, there's so much she's not had time to do. "Why, there are all the books I've been meaning to read and the people I've wanted to see—but I don't think I'll take up contract!"

The people of Salem will pay homage to this distinguished educator in mid-May, Wednesday, May 22, a group of public-spirited folk are sponsoring a banquet in her honor at the Masonic temple. At another time a reception will be given in her honor at the Garfield school. Teachers will fetter her with a luncheon and any number of more informal tributes are being planned in her honor. Mrs. Paul Wallace entertained at tea Thursday afternoon complimenting Miss Cosper.

Many residents of Salem and from out-of-town whom Miss Cosper taught as children will be at the banquet and the reception. Persons of prominence in national, international, and state life will talk and reminiscences will be many. Paul B. Wallace is in charge of the directorate for the banquet.

Among the recent guests from Salem visiting the Hotel Senator at Sacramento were Mrs. W. Wells Baum and children.

Mrs. Victor R. Griggs spent Friday in Portland.

Aurora—Miss Etta Urban was the inspiration at a bridal shower recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Taylor, with Mrs. Taylor, Miss Marguerite Colvin and Mrs. Mabel Stiller as hostesses. A guessing game was played for which Mrs. Geiswein was given a corsage for highest score. A book was passed around and each was given an opportunity to give some advice to the bride-to-be. Several musical selections were played by Miss Lois Mack. The rooms were beautiful with spring flowers and the dining table was centered with an umbrella, decorated in white to represent a shower, to which were attached streamers leading to gifts, which were placed about the house. After this many gifts were opened and displayed ice cream, cake and coffee were served to the guests.

Those present were the honored guest, Miss Etta Urban, Mrs. Kinaki and Miss Margaret Kienski of Gervais; Miss Ida Soininen, Donald (Additional Society on Page 10)
