WHITE OUTLINES STATE POLICY ON MARKET PACTS

Portland, May 21 (AP)—Solon T. White, director of the state department of agriculture, today stated his policy on marketing agreements under the state agricultural adjustment act at a meeting at the Imperial hotel. It was called by White to arrive at an equitable plan of financing the department's support of the 11 existing marketing agreements.

"You fellows get this point straight," White told heads of the various marketing agreement control boards. "I don't know whether I'm for your agreement or not, I am studying as I go along I'm for the farmer and rancher at all times. If it's fair to the farmer and to the consumer, I'm for it. But I am opposed to racketeering."

"I would be a perfect fool to state for or against an agreement without studying. Our policy will be to study carefully each and work out methods in each case."

White said as far as his department could estimate now it will take between $6000 and $7000 annually to cover costs of aiding the agreements.

Arden A. Reed and Edwin C. Goodenough, Salem attorneys named by Attorney General Van Winkle to work out the plan, submitted a tentative proposal. It called for a change in most of the agreements which would allow insertion of a phrase to allow the department of agriculture to get costs, and for the department to have budgetary control over the marketing agreement control boards. It would lay down strict rules.

"The budgeting control is for your own protection," White explained. "We will have something to show the farmer who accuses you of mispending the money collected."

Several speakers urged the department of agriculture to get wholeheartedly behind each marketing agreement and take part in the prosecution of chiselers.

TO INSIST UPON PROTECTION OF BOX FACTORIES

It is up to local authorities to preserve order and protect life and property in such disputes as the present one involving the lumber industry, and use of either the state police or national guard will be resorted to in instances of violence only where local officers demonstrate that they cannot or will not cope with the situation," Governor Martin said in making public his reply to an appeal from the Lacombe growers.

To the growers, who had complained that they face an acute shortage of barrels and crates at the outset of a harvest of 270 acres of strawberries, the governor replied:

"I feel deeply the plight in which you have been placed through a quarrel in which you are not involved. You can rest assured you have my sympathy in your present situation and I will leave no stone unturned which will enable me to help the fruit growers and farmers of the state in this crisis.

"My advice at this time is for you to urge upon your local authorities protection of persons engaged in their ordinary, every-day pursuits. If the employees of local makers of berry boxes, crates and barrels wish to work, you must insist on the sheriff and other local authorities giving them ample and complete protection.

"If it were reported to me that any sheriff or constable were neglecting his duty in this respect, I would not hesitate a moment to institute proceedings to relieve him of office."

In their appeal for assistance the growers petitioned Governor Martin to "take charge of the situation as soon as you can, and assure you of our wholehearted support and cooperation in any action to relieve or settle the situation affecting growers and canners of fruit and canning products."

The governor said the appeal of the Lacombe cooperative growers is only one of many he has received from various parts of the state.

"It is not my intention to interfere in disputes between workmen and their employers where such controversies are conducted in a proper and orderly manner," Governor Martin told the Capital Journal.

"But law and order must be preserved and the legitimate interests of innocent parties protected. To the fullest extent possible that must be done by local authorities. Where they fail or refuse to do their sworn duty I will replace them with men who can and will provide law enforcement to which the public is entitled and for which it pays."

D. O. Lear and others have filed with the city planning and zoning commission a petition for a change of zone affecting the southeast corner of Cottage and D streets. The change sought is from class 1 residential to class 3 business.
