STATE OFFICIALS AT MARSHFIELD CELEBRATION

Marshfield, Ore., Aug. 23 (AP)—The climax to Marshfield's annual Paul Bunyan celebration, a fête held in honor of the great mythical lumberman, was reached today when Oregon officials, Governor and Mrs. Charles H. Martin, Rufus Holman, state treasurer, and Earl Snel, secretary of state, cruised up Coos Bay today in the Carl Washington yacht, Marana II, to view Coos Bay industrial life from the water.

Although members of the party had previously called in Marshfield, this was their first tour of the bay. Pursue seiners, Coos Bay's newest addition to its flotilla of waterfront attractions by the new pilcharders, saluted the officials as they passed. Governor Martin waved a friendly greeting, remarking, "Without qualification, I can say that I believe Coos Bay is the brightest spot in our state today. It is destined to be the center of the entire southwestern portion of the state."

Leaving a specially constructed dock at the Coos Bay pulp corporation's new plant, the party was met by the U. S. patrol boat Puslaski and escorted up the harbor, under the new Coos Bay bridge, and around to Marshfield.

The governor and his party were officially welcomed at the city dock and the group then watched the balance of the water regatta.

At noon a luncheon attended by members of service clubs was held in honor of the visitors, and this afternoon Governor Martin was slated to deliver an address dedicating the Paul Bunyan park and new city playground.

NATIVES HURT DUCK BREEDING

Anchorage, Alaska, Aug. 23 (AP)—Stop the Eskimos and natives from taking the eggs of breeding ducks and other waterfowl over Alaska, say sportsmen here—that's one way of helping to preserve more ducks for United States hunters.

The immense breeding grounds of waterfowl in the Yukon and lower Kuskokwim areas are not protected from such visits, said Ray McDonald, a duck hunter, today.

Others, he was joined in protest that Alaska, which they contend, produces a large proportion of the continent's ducks, are being unduly hit by the biological survey's restrictions on duck hunting.

"Thousands of eggs are destroyed along the Yukon and Kuskokwim annually by Eskimos and other natives who use them for food," said McDonald.

"Every time they take an egg away from a nest they take the equivalent of a duck or goose or some other bird," the natives cannot be stopped from taking the eggs, says the government.

BECKMAN REPLIES TO CRITICISMS

Portland, Aug. 23 (AP)—As a reply to asserted criticism regarding his inability to place democrats in jobs, Chairman John J. Beckman of the Multnomah county democratic central committee, Thursday charged republicans had an unfair hold on the state work progress administration.

"Protests to Washington don't do any good," complained Beckman. "The republicans continue to get their friends in. We have a federal organization here instructed to be non-partisan, but it is easy to see what has happened."

"I don't say the organization should be 100 percent democrat, but the democratic boys should get a square deal. I am willing that it should be non-partisan, but not if non-partisan means taking care of all the republicans. The administrative personnel of the relief set-up two years ago was supposed to be non-partisan, but 95 percent of the jobs went to republicans and they are still in."
