JAPAN FAVORS NORTH CHINA'S SEMI-FREEDOM

Tientsin (AP)—Japanese policy toward the independence of North China from Nanking has been made clear by Japanese military and consular officials in this section.

No politicians, militarists, bandit leaders or professional trouble makers will be allowed to stir up dissatisfaction or agitate for independence with the idea of making themselves the head of a new North China state, it has been stated emphatically.

On the other hand, if some powerful Chinese leaders or the governors of the five northern provinces should suddenly declare independence from Nanking there is little doubt in the minds of observers that the new government would be recognized quickly by Japan, provided its policy was friendly to the island kingdom.

Japanese leaders are planning economic expansion in North China. Should the Japanese economic interests find themselves hampered on every side by Chinese officialdom, then a new policy with regard to independence is considered likely.

In discussing the prospects for North China independence with Japanese Consul Ichii Kishi recently, this correspondent's words were amended. "Don't say 'independence' of North China," Kishi said. "You should say, 'self government' in North China."

The Japanese military garrison's weekly bulletin in Tientsin contained a lengthy article purporting to show why and how "North China is becoming different from other parts of the country."

Major General Kenji Doihara, special agent for the Tokyo war office, recently advised the North China politicians to act more on their own initiative and not be minions for Nanking.

Books Contributed

Silverton—Mrs. C. M. Wray donated 15 volumes of history to the city library and Mrs. William MacNeill, 18 volumes, during the past week. The two most popular books of the past month, locally, are by Oregon authors, "Honey in the Horn" by Davis and "Dr. Mallory" by Dr. Allen Hart.

To the Editor:

There is a growing unrest in the public mind in view of the reconvening of the Legislature. The State may be visited by grasshoppers and other menaces during the year, but no one thing disturbs the business atmosphere as this body, potential with creating innumerable laws. There is a consoling fact in that Governor Martin has been at Salem long enough to make a complete survey of the situation and to fix his trenches and line of battle to protect the people at this time.

This Legislature should convene for the express purpose for which it is called, to fix a site for the new capitol, and then promptly adjourn. There is no need of miscellaneous legislation at this time, and the great hope of thinking people is that the entire time will be consumed in small town stuff of electing the presiding officers of the two branches of the Legislature.

This would be harmless and at the same time furnish entertainment for the members.

Oregon is to be congratulated that a methodical, careful, conservative and courageous man is in the governor's chair.

CHARLES T. McPHERSON 3727 S. E. CARUTHERS ST. Portland, Oregon.

To the Editor:

I like Albert H. Gilie's proposed site for the capitol building. But why not let the grounds run straight east between State and Court streets, not making any street. Build the capitol on the old site taking in its extra space. Build as high as it was, add an ornamental attic story, and domes, for beauty and to the back or east, build wings to give day light, verandas, and a court, like the Portland hotel, later, build a governor's mansion, libraries, museums or what you will, and a large modern garage to park cars. No streets need be changed, no railroad tracks interfered with, state buildings leading on and on between State and Court, stopping only when there's enough building room acquired. However, I like Gilie's proposed site, for a thought. Different thoughts, of different people may help in the final choice. The Capitol Journal is helping, by printing our thoughts. Others should give their thoughts.

RUTH NICHOLS BADLY INJURED

Troy, N. Y., Oct. 21 (AP)—Miss Ruth Nichols, one of America's ace airwomen, and five of her employes were injured today in the crash of a big 290 passenger plane at Troy airport.

Miss Nichols was removed to a hospital, where her condition was declared to be "quite serious." Her pilot, Captain Harry Hublitch of New York, also was seriously injured.

The other four apparently escaped with minor injuries. They were: Ray Hanes, Xenia, O., mechanic; William Holt, (address unavailable); Miss Gladys Berkinheiser, (address unavailable); Miss Nena Berkinheiser, sister of Gladys, (address unavailable); Miss Nichols' injury was the second of a serious nature the society aviatrix has suffered in an eventful career.

She fell at St. Johns, N. B., in June, 1931, while attempting a transoceanic flight. She suffered fracture of several vertebrae.

She crashed on two other occasions, but escaped injury, once leaping from her burning ship at Louisville, Ky., while still wearing a steel corset to protect her back while convalescing from the previous injury.

At 31 years of age, Miss Nichols has held the non-stop transcontinental speed record for women, the women's altitude record and the long distance flight record.
