

UPHEAVAL IN NIPPON OVER CHINESE CRISIS

North China autonomous was only temporary.

Chinese bankers, in the Peiping-Tientsin area, went ahead with the silver nationalization program, to which the Japanese objected as interfering with trade. They inaugurated a branch of the currency reserve board to protect silver reserves.

The Japanese army's high command in Tokyo instructed its subordinates on the Asiatic continent that officers conniving in Chinese separatist movements were exceeding their authority.

Japanese military leaders in China were reported to have told Chinese national leaders to undertake their own reforms in North China, introducing into that area a regime and a public attitude more acceptable to the Japanese.

Certain Chinese officials, however, pointed out that the Japanese army on the continent has often exercised independence of action and expressed the fear that the same independence might be demonstrated again. The cessation of the autonomy activities followed a visit by Ambassador Akira Ariyoshi of Japan to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, the Chinese leader, in Nanking Wednesday. It was reported that Ambassador Ariyoshi assured General Chiang that the Tokyo government was not contemplating military action in North China and was not suggesting that North China secede from the national government.

In return, General Chiang was said to have assured the ambassador that the national government intended to institute a new administration in North China.

Still, there were indications that some measure of autonomy would be achieved at some future time in North China under arrangements agreed upon between Nanking and Tokyo.

The British foreign office said it had exchanged views with the United States regarding the situation in North China and that it was "more hopeful." Authoritative quarters in London appeared satisfied by the report from Tokyo that Japan was not bringing military pressure to bear in North China.

Chinese laborers in Singapore demonstrated before the Japanese hospital there, breaking windows, but police cleared them away.

Another demonstration, in Tientsin, by advocates of North China autonomy, was broken up by police.

COOKING SCHOOL CLOSING TODAY

The Capital Journal's cooking school will close its third day this afternoon at the Capitol theater with Miss Ann Hunt of the Portland Gas company serving as the home service advisor.

For the past two days Miss Lulu Walton and Mrs. Effie Weiser, both of the Portland Electric company, have demonstrated interesting new features in cookery before packed houses at the Capitol.

Yesterday afternoon Miss Walton demonstrated such practical dishes as individual meat loaves with Spanish sauce, green peas in cream, ginger pop, fruit cup, nut meringue cake, and blushing apples.

Mrs. Weiser, prior to the cooking demonstration, talked on proper lighting in the American home and its relation to good health and happiness.

Harry Levy of the Midget Market gave an interesting illustrated talk on the various cuts of meat and how to get the most meat for one's money.

All recipes demonstrated at the Journal's cooking school may be obtained from Rovena Eyre, Journal Woman's editor, by dialing 3573.

The past few weeks a flood of job seekers has been descending on the county court, most of them anxious to get on WPA or similar work but without avail.

County Commissioner Roy Melson stated today the situation as to the demand for jobs seems to be about on a par with three years ago. Apparently one of the main difficulties in the present situation, he states, lies in the fact that only men from the relief rolls are eligible on the WPA work now opening up over the county. Scores and probably hundreds of men have been able to pull through the depression period in one way or another without having to apply for relief but on the other hand have scraped along without steady jobs and with very few odd jobs. Under the situation, he states, these men are not eligible for WPA jobs but with seasonal employment closed they have been hunting for work and can't find it.

Man after man comes in who states he has scoured the community for a job but has been unable to land any work whatsoever and has been advised at relief headquarters because he has not been on the relief rolls, eligible for WPA work. The county itself has no work now save that where it is sponsoring WPA projects and all employment on these are certified from the other end, not by the county court, save in the few exceptions of foreman or a similar class of employment allowed to the sponsor under the WPA in handling the job.

PUTS WATER UP TO ENGINEERS

In the selection of a source of supply for the Salem water system, William H. Trindle, district attorney, believes the city should avail itself of a plan he had in mind before he left the office of city attorney some years ago.

Trindle believes the city should call in 5 engineers who are in the employ of municipalities, and who would not be influenced by the possibility of getting jobs in Salem. He would have the findings, reports and all other data gathered by Baar & Cunningham placed in the hands of this commission of five, as well as acquainting them with all other available data concerning proposed sources of supply, and have them reach a conclusion and recommend to the city council.

"I had this in mind when I was city attorney," Trindle said, "and at that time enough of the aldermen were of the same mind that it could have been put over if it had gone to a vote."

This method, Mr. Trindle thinks, would remove all prejudice from consideration of sources, and doubtless save the city much expense that otherwise may be connected with the effort to decide on a supply source.

Basis for consideration by the board of five, he believes, should be an ultimate population of 50,000 for Salem. Should it be obvious that a certain source would be proper at that time, with the city not ready to finance such a source, he believes a temporary plan should be recommended.

Force Processors

Vrooman, counsel for the League for Economic Equality, an association of farmers in Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska and South Dakota, Vrooman, who has headquarters in Des Moines, said that all farmers were interested in the case because of its attempt to "preserve equality between agriculture and other industries."

"No less in the realm of constitutional law than in that of politics or that of economics must realism prevail," Vrooman's brief pleaded.

It urged the court to place "only moderate reliance on judicial precedents" and to match the constitution against the problems of the times, "with a view to ascertaining whether it is not susceptible of a reasonable interpretation rendering it equal to those problems."

The government's brief in the rice cases urged the court to sustain the right of the government to assess and collect processing taxes as they come due.

Nothing that the law specifically provides that tax collections may not be altered by the courts, the brief said "this court has recognized that the prompt collection of the revenue is one of the most important functions of the government, because taxes are the sole means by which sovereignties can maintain their existence."

Painful Piles

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves
It takes only one bottle of Dr. J. S. Leonard's prescription—HEM-ROID—to relieve itching, bleeding or protruding piles. This internal medicine acts quickly even in old stubborn cases. HEM-ROID succeeds because it helps heal and restore the affected parts and relieves blood congestion in the lower bowel—the cause of piles. Only an internal medicine can do this. That's why salves and cutting often fail. Capital Drug and Pharmacy, Drug stores and all druggists say one bottle of HEM-ROID. Malters must relieve you of your PILE misery or money back—adv.

ALBANY GAME NOT FORFEITED

Although Linfield college is reported as claiming a forfeiture from Albany college as a result of the failure of football teams of the two institutions to play a game scheduled for November 2, Dean Frank M. Erickson, president of the Northwest conference, today declared no official action had been taken.

"As I see the situation if Albany forfeits to Linfield, well and good," Dean Erickson stated. "On the other hand if the game was postponed due to an act of providence over which neither team had any control, then the game should be wiped out entirely unless they agree to another date." He added that he thought the matter should be brought before the conference.

The Orange Peel, Albany college publication, in its last issue claims Linfield "ducked the Albany football team to maintain its clean slate, and then claimed a forfeit by Albany." Challenging Linfield to a Thanksgiving day game, the paper charged that "Linfield is afraid Albany will shatter her hopes of a conference co-championship. The Albany college student body claims that Linfield is afraid of Albany."

President Bibb and Coach Mack of Albany ordered the game between the teams postponed from November 3 because the field was covered with ice and snow. No date agreeable to both teams was subsequently found.

$10,000 DAMAGE AWARDED SOLIE

Damages for $10,000 are awarded in a verdict returned by the jury last night in Judge McMahans court in the action of Lawrence A. Solie against J. W. Merrifield. The plaintiff asked for $12,500.

The action grew out of an accident on South Water street in Silverton on December 11. Solie was riding a motorcycle and the defendant was in a car. Solie claimed that the defendant was reversing his car. The defendant claimed the accident was due to negligence on the part of Solie. Solie sustained a number of grave injuries and charged that "Linfield is afraid Albany will shatter her hopes of a conference co-championship. The Albany college student body claims that Linfield is afraid of Albany."

There are no children of the union and no personal property is involved. The plaintiff seeks to have her maiden name, Mary Amelia Monnango, restored to her.

leaders are represented, was the direct result of three things:

1—The effort of President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull to restrict trade in key materials to Italy.

2—Germany's restriction of the export of raw materials, a body blow also to Italy.

3—Argentina's decision to add the commodities voluntarily to the list of those already under embargo.

The decision also is a sign that League nations believe they have succeeded, beyond their fondest hopes, in getting off to a running start on the first mass front effort in world history to penalize a war making nation by a bloodless attack.

If Italy can be deprived of oil, coal, steel, and iron, it is believed that she can not long conduct her war. Not only her war industries but her industry as a whole should be paralyzed.

DEGREE FILED IN FORECLOSURE

Decree covering 715 parcels of the 1411 mentioned in foreclosure proceedings, brought by the county has been filed with County Clerk Boyer. Proceedings were instituted under a statute of 1933 covering installment payment on taxes for 1930 and prior years which were unpaid. To institute foreclosure it was necessary that three installments against the property had been unpaid.

The number named in the original foreclosure proceedings was reduced practically half by owners coming in and paying up. The sheriff states that property may still be saved from foreclosure by paying the tax, penalty, interest and costs involved but this must be done before the sheriff's deed is issued as no provision is made for redemption after that time. He stated that the present proceedings and property are in no way affected by provisions of an act of the recent special session which eliminates penalty and interest payments on taxes of 1934 and prior years.
