In that it constitutes a bulwark of protection against destruction of the American government and deprivation of those typically American liberties that were won at such great cost.

Koehn denied emphatically that the American Legion has in mind the plan for any more concessions to the so-called World War veterans. The only pension program in which the Legion will be interested henceforth, he declared, will be continued care of widows and orphans of war veterans, and the only grants to be asked hereafter for the men will be in behalf of disabled veterans.

The American Legion is now engaged in fostering a program of national defense, strict neutrality, Americanization and child welfare, Commander Koehn said.
