Poppy Day to Be May 23rd

Poppies will bloom in Salem on Saturday, May 23, growing on the coats of remembering Americans in honor of the World war dead. The women of Capital unit of the American Legion auxiliary will offer the poppies on the streets, giving everyone an opportunity to pay tribute to the war dead, and to help the war's living victims with contributions given for the little red flowers. The American Legion poppy not only gives us a means of rendering personal tribute to the memory of those brave young men who sacrificed their lives for America, it also gives us a means of aiding those who also sacrificed but are still within reach of our help. From the annual wearing of the little flowers come benefits reaching into every corner of the country and touching the lives of thousands of unfortunate men, women and children.

The vast program of welfare and rehabilitation work carried out by the Legion and auxiliary draws its principle support from the poppy. The dimes, quarters and half dollars we drop into the coin boxes of the poppy workers supply the means for local, state and national activities for the benefit of disabled veterans and the families left in need through the death or disability of veterans. The poppy day contributions make aid available during the other 364 days of the year to those who still are paying in steady installments the war's bitter debt of suffering and privation.

When we put on our poppies this year, there should come to us all a vision of the part we are playing in the effort to heal the nation's war wounds. We should look upon our poppies not only as flowers of memory for the dead but as flowers of hope for the living.
