

ZIONCHECKS ENJOY WADING IN PLAZA POOL

New York, May 27 (AP)—Rep. Marlon Zioncheck, of Washington, who took Broadway night life apart until the "zee" hours yesterday morning, descended on a startled Rockefeller center later and taking off shoes and socks, waded in Plaza pool for the benefit of newspaper cameramen.

Wading with him, in sight of hundreds at the center, one of this city's best known showplaces, was his bride, who also helped him subdue the nightclubs.

"I always wanted to do something like this," Zioncheck said as he splashed around in the pool.

"You see," he explained to his wife, "this pool belongs to John D. Rockefeller."

The wading party took place late in the afternoon, because the congressman admitted, he was in a bit of a haze this morning and besides he wanted to introduce to the world the Zioncheck zipper.

The zipper, he explained, was of sufficient potency to make a man want to fight the Puerto Rican army—a fact which he almost accomplished while experimenting with the concoction on his honeymoon trip to Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, concluded yesterday.

The Zioncheck zipper, as the congressman demonstrated to newspaper men who flocked into the room where Mrs. Zioncheck was in bed and Zioncheck, himself, was in pajamas and bathrobe, is composed of equal parts of tropical honey, rye and ice. To that a few sprigs of mint must be added.

Zioncheck drank quite a few sippers as part of the preparation for the assault on Rockefeller center. Mrs. Zioncheck had one or two herself.

Laughing with great glee at the fun they had wading in "Mr. Rockefeller's pool," the Zionchecks repaired to the cocktail lounge in Radio City.

Their immediate plans were uncertain but Zioncheck said he thought he might get an inspiration in the lounge.

Landmark Lore

By E. B. FLETCHER

Not far beyond the East Hill at Silverton there is a large two-story landmark well-known by the older residents of that community. It is owned now by a member of the family who has never married, and the building appears silent and alone, as if it were resting from the busy life of the past.

This landmark, and other buildings grouped about it on the 230-acre farm, were erected some sixty years ago by Mr. and Mrs. Scott Taylor Hobart. These pioneer people were fine representatives of the many energetic and enterprising citizens about Silverton, who have been engaged in farming and stock raising.

The Hobarts were of New England ancestry, and inherited, to a marked degree, the qualities that were handed down from school-going, church-going, orderly times. Hobart was born in Hancock county, Illinois, December 25, 1845, crossing the plains by ox-team in 1853. Emeline Fletcher Hobart was born in Mercer county, Illinois, October 22, 1853, and crossed the plains to Oregon in 1864.

Mr. and Mrs. Hobart were married October 23, 1870, by Rev. Thomas Small, pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian church. Mr. Hobart was a pioneer school teacher for many years, and she taught for a while at North Howell, District 51. Many guests shared the hospitality of their home, and stock buyers who came from a distance made it the rule to put up there for the night.

Friends and relatives helped them celebrate their silver wedding anniversary on the farm in 1895, and their golden anniversary was celebrated at the Silverton residence in 1920. They were often called to fill places of responsibility in churches, schools, and lodges of Silverton.

Mr. Hobart could recall many interesting experiences as a barefoot boy in crossing the plains. They lived for a time in the Waldo Hills above Silverton. During a cold winter the four boys of the family had not sufficient pairs of shoes to "go round." Wolves, bears and other wild animals, coming down from the mountains, kept the family busy looking after the young stock that they kept about the place.

Produce, in Mr. Hobart's boyhood days, was brought to Salem in a "linch pin" wagon, drawn by a yoke of oxen. The produce was exchanged for necessary provisions and clothing. This journey required two days. A customary place for the Hobarts to "put up" for the night was at the donation land claim of the Savages, at the crossroads east of the Salem fairgrounds.

Successful farming, raising, buying and selling stock, enabled Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Hobart to retire from the farm and go to a home in Silverton on McClaine street, where they resided until her death January 6, 1932, and his death June 15, 1933. Children of this family are Arthur F. Hobart, Mrs. Meda Brandt, Mrs. Daisy Langley and Edgar L. Hobart, all of Silverton.

NEWSPAPER ADS SHOW BUSINESS GAIN

Seattle, May 27 (AP)—Frederick R. Gamble, of New York, executive secretary of the American association of advertising agencies, told interviewers today that "there is a revived spirit in advertising"—and that newspaper lineages figures are greater, month after month, than the corresponding periods of 1935.

"The increase in the use of human interest appeal is striking," he added.

He is here for a 4-H Washington chapter dinner. He will fly east tomorrow.

Round-up of Redheads Bring Out Titians And Brickyard Blonde

Taft—The Redhead bathing beauty contest, one of the principle attractions of the Redhead Round-up, to be held here, June 20 and 21, is expected to attract over 100 entries.

This feature of the unique celebration has attracted wide attention, and last year resulted in the Round-up receiving national publicity, when 62 shapely and beautiful titian-haired misses promenaded before the judges in competition for the handsome trophies which rewarded the winners.

Mary Jean Bonness of Portland was declared the winner by a margin of one vote over Inez Eberman of the same city. Miss Bonness, by reason of her victory, received a considerable amount of screen work with the Esle Film company of Portland and Hollywood, and her picture appeared in the magazine sections of many of the leading newspapers in the country.

This year, one of the leading movie weeklies will film the red-head beauties. A number of prominent citizens from various sections of the state will act as judges of the contest.

Other events on the Round-up program will be a "Redskin Revue," featuring a group of coast Indian braves and squaws, in an aboriginal pageant of songs, dances and native ensembles, a redhead prize contest, a beach ski race, swimming and diving exhibitions, a carnival, dances, a twilight beach picnic, fireworks and other interesting attractions.

Each redhead who attends the Round-up will be presented with a beautiful souvenir by the Taft-Nelscott chamber of commerce which is sponsoring the celebration.

Fifteen thousand people attended the festival in 1933. Plans are being made to entertain at least 20,000 visitors this year, according to Dr. O. B. Long, general chairman of the Round-up committee.

HOP MARKET SHOWING LIFE

Pacific coast hop markets, particularly Oregon, developed marked activity during the week ended May 20, with trading and movement the heaviest for several weeks, according to the Weekly Hop Market Review of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Sales by growers in the three coast states during the past seven days totaled 2,002 bales, according to trade reports, with sales of 1,556 bales in Oregon, 250 bales in California and 196 bales in Washington.

Prices ranged from 6 1/2c to 9c per pound, net to growers, for 1935 crop clusters, with 221 bales bringing the 9c price, and the bulk of the sales ranging around 7 1/2c to 8c per pound, for prime quality. Sales of 214 bales of 1935 crop Fuggles were reported at 10c per pound, net grower. A few more contracts for one year, covering the 1936 crop were reported written during the week, at 12c per pound, net grower. Weather conditions were reported somewhat less favorable for the growing crop, and some downy mildew infestation was appearing in Oregon yards, according to trade advisers.

Washington hop markets were rather quiet, with sales by growers during the past week limited to 156 bales of prime quality 1935 crop clusters, which netted Yakima valley growers 10 1/2c per pound. No further contracting was reported.

California hop markets were only moderately active but held steady during the week. Demand for spot hops remained rather narrow and was confined to domestic outlets, but growers were not attempting to force sales, and prices held about unchanged as compared with other recent weeks. Partly influenced by the increase in California acreage this season, growers generally were preparing to carry over old crop hops rather than sell at current market levels.

RIGHT WINGERS PLAN MEETING

Seattle, May 27 (AP)—Defeated right-wing leaders of the Washington state democratic party widened a breach with victorious left-wingers today by discussing plans for a convention to protest platform plank adopted at the state convention in Aberdeen.

The left-wing victory over the week-end, and adoption of the left-wing platform, including production for use and public ownership plank stirred many "old line" democrats.

King county democratic chairman Joseph A. Whetstone, Seattle, said he was considering calling another convention to repudiate the left-wingers' actions.

At Spokane, in eastern Washington, Attorney Charles W. Gillespie, right-wing democrat, said a meeting of Spokane conservative members of the party would be called, but did not set a meeting time. "Liberal" democrats, including C. W. Greenough, former county prosecutor, branded Gillespie's announcement a "one-man revolt."

From various parts of the state came derogatory statements from right-wing delegates who attended the uproarious Aberdeen conclave.

STEAMBOAT VET MEET JUNE 28

The 11th annual reunion of the Veteran Steamboatmen's association of the west will be held this year at Bonneville Sunday, June 28. The reunion this year is to be dedicated to the United States lighthouse service.

The reunion will feature the 75th and 100th anniversaries of the steamships Shubrick and Beaver respectively relative to their service in the Columbia river. The Shubrick was the first lighthouse tender on the Pacific coast. The Beaver was the first steamship to enter the Pacific ocean. For half a century before its tragic end on the rocks at the entrance to Burrards Inlet the old steamship was in service.

Active officers of the steamboatmen's association are: Master, Captain Arthur Riggs; pilots, Captains Eugene Hayden, Walter Monical and Charles Nelson; purser, Mrs. Sara Riggs; chief mate, Captain Ray Moore; mate, Captain Widler; McClintock; paymaster, Captain Clyde Rabbe; designer and builder, Thomas Barbare.

Scotts Mills—Mrs. Earl Deane of Tillamook is spending a few days here with her sister, Mrs. Ethel Cox, helping care for her mother, Mrs. Hattie Coulson, who is very ill.

Stayton—Helmer Hagen and son Donnie are here from Longview, Wash. Mr. Hagen will assist his brother, O. L. Hagen with carpenter work here.

BONUS BOND TIME NEARS

Government agencies worked at top speed to insure delivery of 38,000,000 $50 bonus bonds to 2,000,000 World War veterans by June 15, the date set for mailing. The tremendous job was in its final stages when the picture was snapped. 200 FRIARS FACE TRIAL, COBLENZ

Coblentz, Germany, May 27 (AP)—Trials of about 200 Catholic Franciscan friars charged with immorality began today. The hearings are expected to last several months.

Today's hearings, from which the public was barred, concerned a friar, a neophyte, and two youths.

The friars, operating institutions in the Rhineland and Westphalia, are accused of immoral acts against male minors entrusted to their care.

The German government asserted it had employed only Roman Catholic officials to investigate the charges and to prepare the indictments. A government source said 276 friars were found to be involved but 61 of this number had themselves transferred to monasteries in the Netherlands.

Those whose trial opened the series were Friar Peter Steinhoff, 46, known in his order as Friar Leovigil; Wilhelm Schroeder, 28, a neophyte, and two youths aged 19 and 18 years. Government officials said Steinhoff pleaded guilty.

Presiding Judge Van Koelbyk said: "The trials, which probably will last several months, have assumed dimensions none of us expected."
